estate and the top price August 26 was $5 per hundred, selected sprays. Lilies, too, have fallen, and the best were selling at the week end at 5 cents each. The supply is lighter, however. Orchids have held their abnormal price because of the scarcity, the best gigas bringing from $1 to $1.25 each, and, occasionally, a few specials realizing $1.50 each. The market still is dominated by the aster and gladiolus shipments. Gladioli bring from 50 cents to $2 per hundred, the high price being for the novelties. Of the lower grades many thousands do not sell at all. The same may be said of the asters, save that the selected flowers are excellent and sell at $2 to $3 per hundred.

McCray Florists' Refrigerators

The McCRAY construction keeps flowers cool and fresh longer than by any other system of refrigeration. It provides an even temperature of the correct degree for cut flowers and stops the great waste and profit loss that is caused by imperfect refrigeration.

The various compartments in a McCRAY are of different sizes to accommodate the different lengths of cut flower stems and your flowers are given an inviting display.

For interior linings you have your choice of either handsome bevel plate mirror or beautiful white enamel, which are very easy to clean. The exterior may be of any finish desired to match the interior of your store woodwork or other fixtures.

Invest in a McCRAY. Make it a partner in your business. You will value it more highly than its mere intrinsic dollar-and-cents value. Investigate anyway!

The Market.

The last two weeks have seen the beginning of fall weather—cooler nights and cooler days. We have had almost continual sunshine and as a result conditions have changed materially. Roses now are arriving freely, of reasonably good quality, save the reds, which still are scarce. Carnations are beginning to come in, the whites most satisfactorily, and quality is surprisingly good for so early. Gladioli are more in evidence than they were two weeks ago.

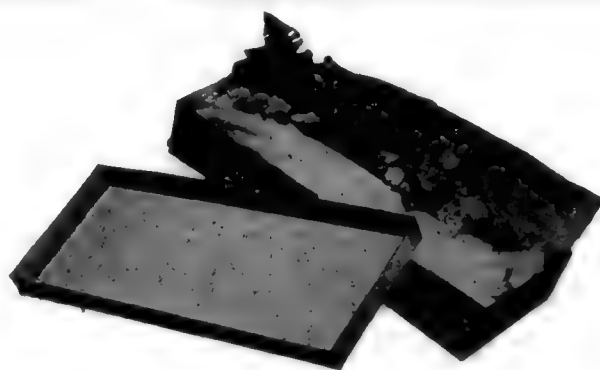

Business has shown some symptoms of reviving and a week ago there was a run of funeral work that cleaned up everything in sight.

The chrysanthemums are showing up unusually well for the season and, while there are not so many in the benches this year, there is promise of as good stock as was ever grown in the city.

I saw a sample of soil from a mum house the other day that contained the mycelium of a mushroom of some sort. The mums were being killed by the growth as fast as it spread, and as the trouble was in the soil it was hard to reach. The sample was brought to the city to see if anyone knew a remedy. Was this introduced in the manner, and is it common?

cut of white roses has increased and, while these still are scarce, it is possible to fill orders on this stock with some degree of satisfaction. Russell is good as pink. Killarneys are fairly plentiful and are selling out each day.

New carnations are beginning to make their appearance on the market. The stock looks good, although the stems are quite short. The supply is not yet large enough to have any influence on the market. Asters still are coming in heavily and the quality is fair, considering that this year has not been a good one for this stock.

Gladioli are selling well and are in good condition. Valley is scarce, with no sign of an appreciable increase in sight. Taken as a whole, conditions are slowly improving and the next few weeks should show a much healthier condition than has obtained for some time.

The Market.

The arrival of a few cosmos and dahlias is a harbinger of fall and hints that the chrysanthemum season is not far off. For several weeks the standbys have been gladioli, asters, hydrangeas and some roses. Asters have been a trifle scarce and the quality of the stock is none too good, but it is improving. There is no dearth of gladioli and their quality is good. Business is expected to improve a little after Labor day, but the florists do not anticipate really good business for a month yet. Growers in this vicinity have a fine lot of mum plants, from which they expect to realize good returns.

Various Notes.

W. H. Witheridge reports business quiet now. There is not the usual volume of funeral work.

George Penek last week had a good window display, representing country and seashore.

R. F. Jolley, of Irvington, has completed the erection of a greenhouse.

August Begerow has a fine lot of chrysanthemum plants at his range at 16 Girard place. Mr. McKnight, the grower, says that carnation plants are small for this season of the year, but that the plants are healthy and vigorous and doubtless will develop properly later.

The Market.

The supply of cut flowers has increased since a week ago, but business continues good for the season. Roses are coming in more freely, but the majority of the flowers are short-stemmed and of inferior quality. Some flowers, however, are arriving of a remarkably good grade and bring excellent prices. The best Beauties make $20 to $25 per hundred. Some fancy hybrid teas bring $8 to $12 per hundred, the stems of these being eighteen to thirty inches long. Even the smallest of the short-stemmed grades clean up nicely. Stanley is proving a fine summer rose, as well as Maryland, Double White Killarney and Ophelia, and some good Russells are beginning to arrive. A few short-stemmed carnations appeared last week. Lilies are abundant and sales on them now drag considerably. Sweet peas are scarce and of poor quality.

Gladioli continue in overwhelming supply and sell in the main at unprofitable prices, a good many going as low as $10 per thousand. Asters are not yet at all abundant and sell well. Some fine indoor stock makes $4 to $5 per hundred and outdoor flowers bring $1 to $3 per hundred. The crops are a failure with many growers. A good deal of cosmos is seen, but it sells poorly. Among the miscellaneous flowers are Buddleia magnifica, hunnemannia, Liatris pycnostachya, lupines, annual larkspurs and sweet sultans. Catleyas are scarce, with a light demand. Asparagus plumosus and Sprengerii move slowly.

Various Notes.

The new salesrooms of the Waban Rose Conservatories, at 4 and 5 Winthrop square and 261 Devonshire street, opened for business August 29. The whole of Boston's wholesale cut flower industry is centralized in or about Winthrop square. The new salesrooms are up-to-date and wonderfully light, with ceilings fifteen feet high. They are bound to be cool and comfortable. Nothing has been left undone to make the salesrooms convenient and up-to-date, the clerical department having been as well considered as the salesrooms. The ice chests are roomy. By an ingenious process ice is hoisted above the chests and the cakes are pushed into their compartments with ease. The quality of roses grown by the noted Waban Rose Conservatories is too well known to need additional mention. Since Alexander Montgomery became manager, nearly thirty-five years ago, the roses have attained and maintained a national reputation and from the greenhouses have emanated such noted roses as White Killarney, Russell, Mrs Bayard Thayer and Mrs. Moorfield Storey, to mention only a quartette. Del Cartwright, for many years the genial and popular head salesman, still will be at the helm in the new quarters. With such a grower as Mr. Montgomery and so successful a salesman as Mr. Cartwright, there is little likelihood of the Waban brand of roses being in any but the front rank.

didate for representative from the Seventeenth Middlesex district. For some years he has held office in Tewksbury as chairman of the board of selectmen, as a member of the board of assessors, overseer of the poor and a member of the board of health, and has many friends. He is well qualified to serve them in a larger field.

Patten & Co., of Tewksbury, among the new carnations this season are planting Nancy, Belle Washburn and their new pink seedling, Antoinette, which is similar in color to Mrs. Ward, but holds its color better. Their new King house is not complete as yet. This has delayed the finishing up of the carnation plantings.

H. F. Calder, of Norwood, grew heavily of asters under glass this season and the plants have done remarkably well, many of the flowers easily selling at $4 to $5 per hundred. The comparative failure of outdoor asters with many growers, especially such as were planted on low land, has made indoor-grown asters a remunerative crop.

Growers and others are reminded of the annual auction sale of stalls, to be held at the Boston Coöperative Market September 9, at 9:30 o'clock. Last year it was deemed best not to hold the usual auction sales, but the great improvement in business fully warrants holding them this season.

John Marshall, of the Fruit Hill Greenhouses, Providence, is shipping a fine lot of Scotch heather, liatris and Asparagus plumosus to W. H. Carr.

John Fraser, of Wellesley, is sending in a nice lot of Buddleia magnifica to the markets. This summer he has built concrete underpinning for his houses, new cement beds in the greenhouses and also a large room to hold his ice chests, etc.

The first new crop carnations of the season came from James Tulis, of South Sudbury, and included Matchless, Pink Delight and Beacon.

At Welch's, 280 Devonshire street, August business has been of a satisfactory volume. Gladioli, asters and roses are the heaviest sellers at present.

William H. Carr, the popular salesman at the Flower Exchange, has returned from his vacation and honeymoon well bronzed and a few pounds heavier than when he left. He reports some successful trout fishing and gives thrilling accounts of the big members of the finny tribe that he just missed landing.

A. M. Davenport reports heavy sales of small ferns in flats this season. He has a large stock of begonias, cyclamens and poinsettias, although the latter did not root so well as usual. Of Begonia Mrs. Heal he has a fine batch in 5-inch and 5½-inch pots.

The meetings of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club will be resumed September 19. A stereopticon lecture on "Birds and Their Value to Gardeners and Florists" will be the leading feature. A collation will be served, followed by dancing. The ladies, as usual, are cordially invited to be present. There will be a large accession of new members to start the fall campaign.

The Boston Rose Co. is receiving its initial shipments of new crop Russell roses from the Montgomery Co., Hadley, which realize fancy prices.

While many growers are deploring the failure of their aster crops, White Bros., of Wilmington, have had splendid success with their plantings and are sending in some fancy flowers.

with the Henshaw Floral Co., of New York. Mr. Cartwright has been a successful salesman here for several years and is popular. He is bound to succeed in his new field.

L. E. Small, of Tewksbury, this season will drop carnations entirely and devote all his houses to bachelor's buttons, in the culture of which under glass he is a past master. Lewis Smith, also of Tewksbury, will devote his houses to bachelor's buttons and sweet peas.

Wax Bros. have had an exceptionally busy month with funeral work, with quite a few wedding orders sandwiched in. Their windows are attractively arranged with various annuals and perennials, gladioli, lilies and nymphaeas.

J. W. Simpson says he will start cutting Golden Glow mums in a few days. He has a fine batch of Early Snow. In carnations he especially likes Benora, Alice, White Wonder, Beacon and Fenn.

The exhibition of children's gardens' products at Horticultural hall, September 2 and 3, and that of dahlias and fruit, September 9 and 10, are both expected to be large and interesting.

The fine new front at the store of R. & J. Farquhar & Co., on South Market street, is a decided improvement. Bulbs are beginning to arrive quite freely here. W. N. Craig.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

The market was in a fairly good condition last week and the supply of stock, although not heavy, was equal to the demand. Retailers report little trade except for funeral work. With the opening of the schools next week, business should show a little improvement, but the real busy season will begin with the first frost. There are plenty of roses on the market and the best of them sell well, but the short stock brings little or nothing. A few short carnations are arriving, but these have little demand. Asters sell well and advance orders take up the daily supply. There was a large cut of extra good single tuberose last week. Dahlias are coming, but as yet only in small quantities. Cosmos soon will arrive in large supply. Valley still is scarce. Easter lilies are plentiful and sell well. Gladioli are fine and in large supply. Smilax is scarce and in strong demand. All other greens are plentiful.

Growers' Annual Picnic.

The St. Louis County Growers' Association held its third annual picnic at upper Creve Coeur lake August 24. It proved to be one of the best picnics ever held by the association. The weather was fine and there was a large attendance. The committee in charge of the arrangements consisted of A. S. Cerny, Alfred Werner and W. A. Rowe. These gentlemen deserve a great deal of credit for the manner in which they handled the outing. President Winter, Vice-president Thomas Kirkwood, Secretary Deutschmann, Treasurer Hartmann and Trustees Ude, Gross and Ahner, all were present, with their families.

The games were in charge of the committee and prizes were won by the following:

Men's race—N. C. Hauser, first; R. Stevens, second.
Girls' race—Lucille Miller, first; Emma Gross, second.
Ladies' novelty race—Mrs. Gus Gross, first; Mrs. W. A. Rowe, second.
Boys' race—J. Cerny, first; H. Butzel, second.
Ladies' time walk—Mrs. Roth, first; Mrs. Paul Ahner, second.
Growers' race—A. Ahner, first; R. Gross, second.
Horseshoe game—Joseph Hauser.
Boys' race—Gus Cerny, first; Arthur Gledis, second.
Watermelon-eating contest—Otto Ahner, first; R. Stevens, second.
Calico contest, ladies only—Mrs. Roth, first; Mrs. Charles Meyer, second.
Men's tug of war—Joseph Hauser's team won over William Edwards' team.

The ball game proved quite interesting. Two teams were made up, one of the growers and the other of employees. The growers won by a score of 11 to 2.

This ended the program and the rest of the day was taken up with fishing, dancing and boating.

President Bourdet, Secretary Beneke,
Treasurer Smith, Trustee Windler and Secretary-elect Windler, of the St.

with the members of the association.

Mrs. Joseph Hauser proudly displayed a big catfish that Mr. Hauser had would be hard to find.

When it comes to pitching horseshoes,
Hugo Gross, Gus Hartmann, Joseph Hauser, F. W. Ude and William Edwards are a hard set to beat.

The greatest sport of the day was the watermelon-eating contest. You have got to hand it to Phil Goebel, Jr., who, although he did not win the prize, certainly did punish the watermelons specially grown for this contest.

The tug of war was between a team of Germans chosen by Captain Hauser and a team of Englishmen chosen by Captain Edwards. The Englishmen went down to defeat after one of the hardest pulls ever seen. It lasted nearly thirty minutes.

The Retail Florists' Association held its monthly meeting August 21 in the Mission Inn Garden. It was one of the best attended meetings ever held by the association. Business of great importance was transacted. The member-the St. Louis Seed Co., returned with his family from a western vacation trip and is now over head and ears in work, filling advance orders for fall bulbs. This firm shows a big increase in business.

The H. J. Weber & Sons Nursery Co. is installing a large Kroeschell boiler this week. The company is not growing any stock for cut flowers this season, as the greenhouses are being used for spring bedding plants.

M. F. Widmer, of Highland, Ill., has his big rose range in excellent shape for the coming season. He consigns a lot of fine stock to the St. Louis market and is much sought after by local buyers.

The local growers are looking for the tulip bulbs to arrive for planting in flats. The canna specialists are busy at work labeling, so as to be ready for early frosts.

The St. Louis County Growers' Association will hold its monthly meeting September 5, at the Eleven Mile House. A large attendance is looked for.

Mrs. John L. Koenig will entertain the Lady Florists' Home Circle, September 13, at her home, 3511 Clarence avenue.

The following were visitors in this city last week: P. L. McKee, of the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., Chicago; Paul Berkowitz, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, and A. F. Longren, of the Burlington Willow Ware Shops, Burlington, Ia. J. J. B.

MINNEAPOLIS.

The Market.

Business was rather quiet last week. There was a little funeral work and some decorations for social affairs, but outside of this business was dull. Good stock still is hard to procure, although roses of splendid quality now are more easily obtainable. Especially is this true of Ophelia. Gladioli are abundant. The stock is fine, but the prices are somewhat low. Rubrum and Easter lilies are much in demand, but somewhat scarce. Sweet peas, too, are scarce. A few garden flowers still are to be had. Gaillardias and asters of splendid quality were shown last week. The asters, tion was held at Excelsior, Minn., last week, and attracted much attention.

There were many good exhibits by both amateurs and professionals.

The Eldridge Floral Co. reports business good, with a considerable number of funeral orders.

Mr. Hayden, of the Florist Shop, recently purchased a fine lot of elaborate flower pots of various sizes and designs.
These were displayed in the window last week.

O. C. Swanson is remodeling his store and making many improvements. He has a fine stock of plants and cut flowers.

Oscar Amundson is fortunate in having a fine lot of sweet peas. This is due to the great care he exercises. He cuts many fine blooms daily.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich.;
Secretary-Treasurer, O. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

THE sweet corn in the middle west is in need of a good September.

THE death is announced of Mrs. J. M. Thorburn, at the age of 91 years.

THE acreage of onion sets in Nebraska is less than usual this year, due to the high price of seed and bad weather at planting time.

C. HERBERT COY, Mrs. Coy and their son spent last week at Chicago, America's great summer resort. They made the 600-mile drive from Valley, Neb., to Chicago in their Moline-Knight in three days.

THE obituary of Henry A. Salzer, president of the John A. Salzer Seed Co., of La Crosse, Wis., who, as recorded in these columns last week, was killed in an automobile accident in Minnesota August 22, will be found on page 21.

STRAGGLING parcel post shipments of German seeds continue to come to hand, having been remailed in Holland and (probably) thus eluded the British censors. The arrival of several small lots of cyclamen seed via this route is reported this week.

THERE have been reports of the curtailment of the melon-growing industry at Rocky Ford, but these are without foundation. The fact is the acreage of melons is larger this year than ever and the district constantly is expanding until it now stretches down the valley of the Arkansas almost to the state line.

THE boat from Bermuda which reached New York August 24 brought only twenty-seven cases of Harrisii lily bulbs, thirteen for F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N. Y., and fourteen consigned to Maltus & Ware. Previous imports were only 1,098 cases, indicating that the production of bulbs on the island steadily is diminishing.

MRS. H. L. HOLMES, wife of Harry L. Holmes, the well known seedsman of Harrisburg, Pa., and her son, Jack Holmes, motored to Canton, O., last week to visit H. L. Holmes, Jr., president and general manager of the Holmes-Letherman Seed Co. there. Messrs. Holmes left this week to inspect seed crops in Michigan and Canada.

THE Leonard Seed Co., Chicago, reports its staff does not have a dull season any more, as they are so busy with growing crops and booking orders on future goods that there is no time to even go fishing. The travelers are working right through the season, as there are so many inquiries coming in from different sections for next year's prices that it is impossible for any of the men to leave their territory for long at this time.

DUTCH BULBS COMING SLOWLY.

How seriously the operations of the Dutch bulb exporters have been hampered by the labor shortage and, especially, the extremely wet weather of June and July is shown by the record of imports arriving at New York. The first boat to bring bulbs arrived August 5; it brought only 360 cases. The second consignment was on the Nieuw

RAINBOW (many bright colors) FREESIAS

Rainbow Freesias are great money-makers for all florists, whether they grow for their own retail trade or for the wholesale market. Moreover, the habit of plant is branching, each bulb giving two to three flower spikes with stems long enough for all floral purposes.

The mixture offered includes several shades of yellow, orange, lavender and pink, all harmonizing with each other when bunched together.

BEAN MEN IN FIGHTING MOOD.

The bean growers of Michigan—and their output is said to represent not far from seventy per cent of the American bean supply and worth from $12,000,000 to $15,000,000—have decided to lock horns with Uncle Sam's pure food experts in deciding in court whether an "anthracnose" bean is unsuited for human food.

The government authorities have brought suit against the Oceana Canning Co., of Shelby, Mich., for having packed beans of the sort mentioned, and the case has been set down for hearing in October, at which time the consolidated bean men will present their case through Sheridan F. Master, of the firm of Swarthout & Master, of Grand Rapids.

The bean, akin to all forms of vegetable life, is heir to ills. Anthracnose is one of them. As near as the wise men of science can learn, it is a fungous disease which usually attacks the pod, and, if severe, eats its way through and leaves its mark on the enamel of the matured bean. It has probably existed as long as the bean has been under the cultivating influence of man.

The government pure food experts say the anthracnose bean is a decomposed bean and as such is deleterious to health and unfit for food. Not long ago, on these grounds, they seized a shipment of canned beans from the Oceana concern. The officials of the company protested. They admitted that the disease left its black mark on the bean, but argued that the weight of scientific authority proved that the eating of anthracnose beans had never had ill effect on man or beast. They said that while it may not be as good looking as a bean unsullied by anthracnose, yet its food properties are not diminished and that it should not be driven from the market.

Throwing out the anthracnose beans, say the growers, is going to have the effect of materially decreasing the production of marketable beans. The disease has been quite prevalent for the last two or three years and casting aside as unfit a few bushels from each acre's yield is going to count up in the aggregate to several hundreds of thousands of bushels. It may total up in a year to fifteen or twenty per cent of the whole crop.

Then too, they say, if the grower proceeds to hand-picking for the elimination of the anthracnose bean, the cost of handling the crop is going to increase considerably and the additional cost is bound to be figured into the price which the consumer will be asked to pay.

Another probable effect, if the anthracnose bean is condemned by the courts, is that many growers, discouraged by the restrictions thrown around the industry, are likely to abandon beans as one of their big crops.

ACREAGE FOR THE CANNERS.

The government has been gathering statistics of the canning industry and the bureau of crop estimates has issued the following statement of acreage contracted for this year by canners for the three principal crops, corn, peas and tomatoes:

rather disappointing, but on a good many farms there are fine crops of most of the important vegetables. Labor has, of course, been scarce, and the cost of production is the highest on record.

FLOWER SEEDS IN WASHINGTON.

A report from White Salmon, Wash., is as follows: "A valuable experiment in commercial seed growing has been tried out by C. W. J. Reckers, of The Eyrie, and proved practical as an added source of revenue for growers of this district. About an acre of sweet pea seed of the Spencer varieties was planted in rows eight feet wide and from 100 to 300 feet long. They were grown commercially for one of the leading Portland seed houses and the growing of other flower seeds is contemplated for next season."

DUTCH BULB STATISTICS.

The U. S. consul general at Rotterdam, in discussing the 1915 commerce at that port, says: "The value of bulbs exported increased little, but the quantity was considerably larger than in 1914. Owing to the difficulties in exporting to the belligerent countries and the diminished demand as a result of the war, the growers were obliged to dispose of their bulbs and flower roots in the United States at lower prices than heretofore."

The quantity of bulbs and flower roots invoiced at the Rotterdam consulate for export to the United States increased from 115,193,760 in 1914 to 135,408,000 in 1915, but the value increased only from $1,251,138 to $1,272,968.

TOPEKA, KAN.

Edward G. Bass, whose home and range were almost completely destroyed by fire August 17, has announced that he will rebuild immediately. Mr. Bass valued his range at $16,000. He thinks his losses will approximate $10,000, of which $5,000 is covered by insurance.

The Bass family has been living in a large tent near the ruins of the former home. In speaking of the new range, Mr. Bass said: "The new boiler house will be of cement and steel, so that no fire can spread from it. One fire is enough in a lifetime."

Mr. Bass started in the business twelve years ago. He moved to his present location five years ago and enlarged and improved his range until it ranked with the best in the state. Mr. Bass was born in an Indian settlement

SPENCER SWEET PEAS

NEW EARLY-FLOWERING LONG-SEASON SPENCERS

Early Spring Maid—Color light pink on a cream ground, and the blossoms have the same splendid characteristics of Mrs. Hugh Dickson for a florist's flower. It is a most effective flower and carries a great wealth of blossoms borne in fours on long stems. 25 seeds 25c, tr. pkt. (1/4 oz.) $1.00.

Early Melody—Rose pink on white ground, closely resembling Countess Spencer and Hercules. The flowers are borne on long stems and mostly four large well-waved blossoms to each stem. 25 seeds 25c, tr. pkt. (1/4 oz.) $1.00.

Early Heather Bell—Flowers are very large, borne in fours and threes on long, stout stems; beautiful, bold Spencer form. The color is a rich but pleasing mauve; after standing in water the color becomes a beautiful mauve lavender.

Early Snow Flake—Best early-flowering white-seeded Spencer. Very large and of the best waved Spencer form. The flowers are borne in wonderful profusion on long stems. 15 seeds 25c, tr. pkt. (1/4 oz.) $1.25.

Early Song Bird—The flower is light pink on white ground, and borne on long stems. Nearly every one carries four large blossoms. 25 seeds 25c, tr. pkt. (1/4 oz.) $1.00.

WINTER-FLOWERING, SPENCER TYPE

Blanche Ferry Spencer—One of the best commercial varieties.....1 oz. 1/4 lb. $0.90 $3.50

Mrs. A. A. Skach—Flowers exceedingly large, much fluted, usually 4 to a stem, bright shell pink......75 2.75

White Orchid—White flowers of good substance......90 3.50

Lavender Pink.....1 oz. 1/4 lb. $0.75 $2.75

Venus—Perfect shape, standard white, slightly blushed pink wings, in Winter nearly white.. .90 3.50

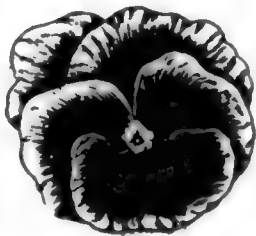

Yarrowa—Flowers exquisitely waved and of large size. Color, bright rose-pink with lighter wings......75 3.00

New Early-flowering or Winter-blooming GIANT PANSIES

An entirely new and distinct strain of Pansies. The main advantage of these new Pansies over all hitherto existing pansies is the extreme earliness of flowering and its unusual hardiness, which enables them to withstand quite severe winters and to bloom right on into the summer. Sown at the same time as other Pansies, they begin flowering the early part of March or as soon as the snow is off the ground, many times having four or five large flowers to a plant, when all other Pansies are only showing buds. The flowers are large, well formed and fragrant. They are highly recommended for Autumn planting on graves and for very early bedding, as well as for early cut flowers.

14. WINTER SUN. Golden yellow, eye. 16. CELESTIAL QUEEN. Light or sky blue.
15. ICE KING. Silvery white, with eye. 17. CHARM OF MARCH. Dark velvety blue.
18. MIXED. The above four colors with other shades and variations. Each color separate or mixed.

500 seeds 50c., 1000 seeds $1.00, 1/4 oz. $2.00, 1/2 oz. $3.75, 1 oz. $15.00.

20. PRINCESS. The New Upright Pansy. This strain is entirely distinct from all others. It is absolutely compact, upright growing, and extremely weatherproof, enduring many storms without damage to its flower. The flowers are mostly blotched and frilled like the Masterpiece, of good form and heavy, velvety texture, on heavy stems carried well above the foliage. Attractive by the brilliancy of its colors. 500 seeds 20c., 1000 seeds 35c., 1/4 oz. $1.00, 1/2 oz. $2.00, 1 oz. $7.50

22. KENILWORTH MIXTURE. A collection of beautiful colors and markings. 32. PARISIAN. Enormous blotched flowers, very showy.

24. KENILWORTH SHOW. An extra fine strain of immense flowers. 34. BRONZE. A mixture of bronze, brown and copper shades.

26. KENILWORTH CUT FLOWER MIXTURE. Has long stems and large flowers. 42. ADONIS. Light blue, white center.
28. MASTERPIECE. A large flower with curled, wavy petals. 82. ORCHID FLOWERED. A mixture of rose, pink, bluish mauve, fawn, light brown, orange and chamomile.
30. THREE AND FIVE BLOTCHED FLOWERS. Of rich velvety colors and great substance. 118. PSYCHE. Curled white, blotched.
138. WHITE. Large, satiny white.
140. WHITE, with violet blotch.
142. YELLOW. Large golden yellow.

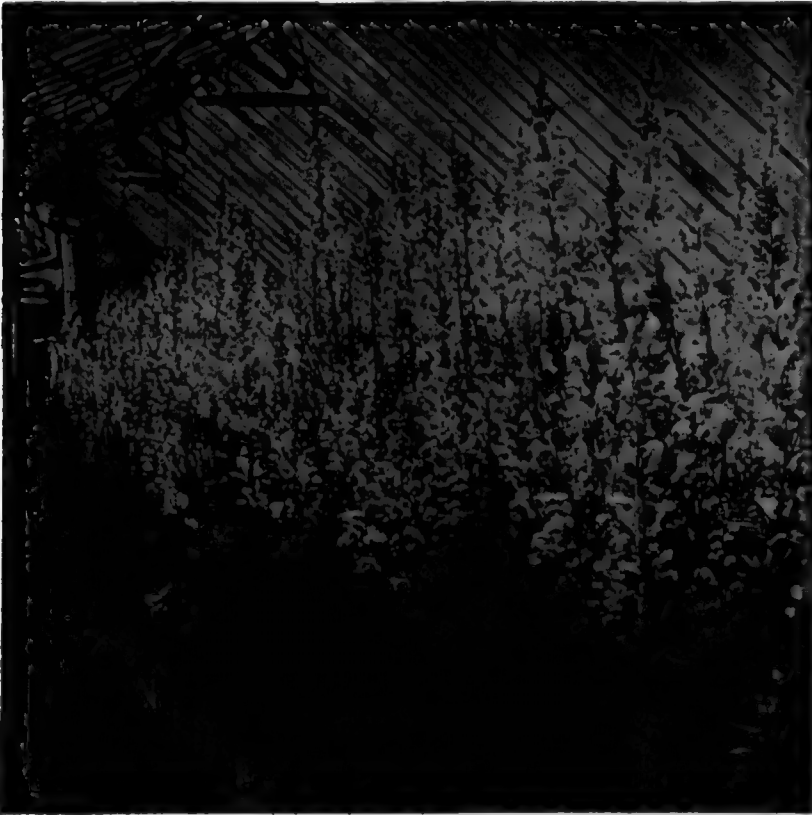

PRICES OF KENILWORTH PANSY SEED:

All sorts and mixtures except the new Pansy Princess and the Early Flowering or Winter Blooming are $5.00 per oz., $1.25 per 1/4 oz.; 5000 seeds $1.00; trade pkt. of 1000 seeds 25c.; any 5 pkts. $1.00. Please order by number.

VEGETABLES AND FRUITS DEPARTMENT

CULTURE OF HORSE-RADISHES.

I have set a dozen or more horse-radish roots in moist ground within the last three weeks and they have made a fine growth. What kind of soil is best suited to horse-radishes, for commercial purposes? As irrigation is necessary here, what would be the best plan of planting? Is it too late to plant now for next year's crop? Will pieces of roots develop into plants? How close may the plants be profitably grown? Is it best to mulch them in winter and do they need much water?

E. C. L.—Colo.

Horse-radishes succeed best on a medium loam. If the soil is heavy, the roots are liable to come much branched. This is also the case when there is a hard subsoil. Plow or spade the ground deeply. Add rotted manure moderately, as it has a tendency to cause scabby and branched roots. Use a commercial fertilizer rich in potash—this is not an easy proposition at present. A fertilizer containing twice as much potash as nitrogen is best. If your space is limited and you only want a small bed, you can plant the roots twelve inches apart each way. If you want to plant a larger area, let the rows run three and one-half to four feet apart, to allow horse cultivation, placing sets twelve inches apart in the rows.

The sets should consist of roots not less than one-fourth of an inch in diameter at the top and five to eight inches long. Be sure the thick end is uppermost and cover the tops three to four inches. Cultivate the plants well through the growing season, and, if you wish to sell off the crop, dig it up before the ground freezes, packing the roots in sand in a coldframe rather than in a dry cellar. Reserve a sufficient number of roots to plant the following season, selecting, if possible, a new piece of ground each season. Planting should be

A range of full iron frame curved eave Jacobs' greenhouses of an elaborate and decorative design are now under construction on the estate of J. Insley Blair, at Tuxedo Park, New York.

The specifications by Carrere & Hastings, the architects, called for the very best and most modern equipment. The plant, which is so designed that almost any flower or plant can be grown, will be heated throughout by hot water and steam with vapor system. It will have both hot and cold water irrigation; also a liquid fertilizer system.

Jacobs' construction, material, workmanship, responsibility and price, were the main factors in our securing the contract.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Spokane, Wash.—L. B. Hill, who has been out of the business for some time, now is employed in the store of Hoyt Bros. Co.

San Francisco, Cal.—The California Dahlia Growers' Association will hold its first annual show at the Palace Hotel September 7 to 9. The membership of the society is largely amateur, but many of the trade are actively interested, as the dahlia is a garden flower of large importance on this coast.

Spokane, Wash.—There has been, and is now going on, considerable building among the greenhouse men in this section, as well as a number of changes in the retail stores here. Business bids fair to be better than ever this season and most of the concerns in the trade are preparing for it by enlarging and improving their facilities.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

Local trade has been a good deal better during the last seven days, and this despite a heat wave that struck us a few days ago. Several weddings and the usual quantity of funeral work have helped to keep down surplus flowers. Outdoor roses have been better than indoor roses of late, while good carnations are coming from under lath and under glass.

For local trade the cut of Lilium rubrum is fine, but it does not ship well. Gladioli are still good. Asters are improving again and are excellent for funeral work. Dahlias are showy and good, while the usual small flowers and novelties help out. Wholesalers say that the out-of-town trade has fallen off considerably, as it always does during August.

Various Notes.

Despite the slack season of the year, large numbers of boxes are seen leaving the store of the L. A. Floral Co. for long-distance shipment. In the intervals of business Fred Sperry has been entertaining eastern friends.

Walter Garbett, of the California Evergreen Co., returned August 26 from an extended trip to eastern points, in the course of which he visited his old home and did considerable business in desert holly and other specialties of his concern.

At the W. Armacost & Co. place, at Sawtelle, an additional five acres of land has been purchased, to give elbow room. Mr. Armacost says that two and one-half acres of this will be covered with lath, to extend the plantings of Asparagus plumosus. Two new glass houses are to be added this year, besides those already mentioned, and this will fill up the entire block, even to the steam battery at the south end of the property. The new greenhouses are to be 28x207 feet each and, like the last erected, will be up-to-date in every particular. The steam mains are already in and the glass is on the ground.

The Germain Seed & Plant Co. store was an attractive and busy place for several days last week during the dahlia show. This large store is just the place for showing a large collection of flowers and the most was made of the occasion by decorating the store with fine palms, ferns and flowering plants. Thousands of dahlia blooms in about 300 varieties were shown, and the manner in which they were exhibited and the way the flowers maintained their freshness was a great credit to all concerned. Hundreds of people crowded the store day after day and this show is bound to prove an excellent advertisement for other lines as well as dahlias.

G. W. Smith and Mrs. Smith have returned from their trip to Bear lake and say they had a pleasant time. Mr. Smith is a busy man these days, what with his new nursery, his landscape work and the store. At the latter funeral work is keeping up well.

Staiger & Fincken are building a new greenhouse at the salesyard on West Washington street. A new truck has been added to the equipment, but Mr. Staiger says he has not made up his mind yet whether the truck is an asset or a liability.

At the Montebello ranch of the H. N. Gage Co. the new greenhouses are completed and planted to ferns.

many scabiosas, marigolds, cornflowers, etc. Owing to the popularity of basket arrangements, old-fashioned flowers have met with great success here this season. Gladioli are going off crop, after flooding the market for several weeks, their place being taken largely by dahlias. There are plenty of the latter and the flowers show excellent quality, but their sale is limited to a certain extent by the many blooms grown in private gardens. Amaryllis appears everywhere. Asters have much competition, but they are always salable, especially when the quality is as good as at present. Prices are rather low, however. Zinnias continue to hold their own.

The carnation supply is moderate, but there are enough of these for all requirements. Roses are coming in more plentifully, but more good stock could be used. The Beauties show better color, and with cleaner foliage they move readily. The demand for other roses is fairly good. Lilium rubrum is much in evidence and it has a good sale. Violets were greatly improved by the cool, foggy weather of last week. Orchids, gardenias and valley remain extremely scarce, and it is hard to fill orders with any degree of satisfaction.

Various Notes.

J. B. Pagano, buyer for Pelicano, Rossi & Co., is spending a two weeks' vacation in southern California.

E. James is bringing in some cut cyclamens, which are about the first to be offered locally this season. They are well received.

Miss Bertha Cohn, of the Bellevue Florist Shop, on Geary street, is expected back shortly, after spending three weeks in Los Angeles. During her absence Miss Rothschild, her partner, has been busy. According to Miss Rothschild, business is brisk for this time of the year.

Amadeo Podesta has resumed his duties with Podesta & Baldocchi, after an automobile trip to the southern part of the state.

"THE HOME OF ASTERS"HERBERT & FLEISHAUER

McMINNVILLE, OREGON

back next week. They say business has been fairly good since the opening of the city schools, which brought back to the city many of their regular customers.

Daniel MacRorie, of the MacRorie-McLaren Co., retiring president of the
S. A. F., is expected home from Houston any day. His friends are awaiting his account of the convention with interest.

The Art Floral Co. decorated the Union League Club's rooms for the reception of Mr. Hughes last week. Yellow chrysanthemums were used exclusively. This and another large decoration made a busy week for the company, as transient trade was better than for some time, according to Mr.
Matraia. He reports a steadily increasing demand for baskets.

The California Dahlia Growers' Association will hold a meeting of its members at the Palace hotel September 1 to complete final details for the show to be held the end of the following week. Applications for space indicate that the show will be the biggest affair of its kind ever held in this city. Besides the dahlia show, the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society is preparing for a similar show in October, and other exhibitions are being made, which show that great interest is being taken in the effort to popularize the dahlia in this city. An amateur dahlia show is to be held the end of this week under the auspices of the Park-Richmond Improvement Club at Park-Richmond hall, 649-651 Eighth avenue.

We have harvested part of the following

Winter Orchid Flowering Sweet Pea Seed which we are ready to ship as long as they last:

Mrs. A. A. Skach, White Orchid, Red Orchid, Lavender Orchid, all at $1.00 oz. Pink and White Orchid, Orchid Beauty, at 75c oz. Mrs. Jos. Manda, Mrs. M. Spanolin, Dolasky Orchid, at $1.25 oz. Miss Fl. Roland, Apricot Orchid, at $2.00 oz. Morning Star, The Czar, Servian Prince (magenta), CHRISTMAS PINK ORCHID, all at $4.00 oz. Lavender Nora, Lavender Queen (same as Anita Wehrman), at 50c oz. VENUS, $1.50 oz. Bohemian Girl, $2.00 oz. Less in pound lots.

All other varieties will be harvested soon. Ask for complete list. You can get almost all those varieties in my original packets from A. L. Randall Co., Chicago; R. J. Irwin,
New York; S. S. Skidelsky, Philadelphia. Never accept any Winter Orchid Sweet
Pea Seed in open packet or without my trade mark on it. It surely will be fraud.

We were certainly pleased with the results secured from your Seed last year and florists who visited the University greenhouses said they were the finest sweet peas they had ever seen. They made an unusually strong growth and produced great quantities of blooms.

WARNING:—There are or will be advertised many so-called new Winter Spencers. I have seen many new names on the Exhibition tables, but by careful examination all were identical with my older Winter Orchid, years in commerce, excepting the Yarrowa. Should you buy any such so-called novelty, test it side by side with my original varieties and judge for yourself.

Work on remodeling the wholesale establishment of Domoto Bros., on Bush street, is progressing nicely. The principal feature is the construction of a mezzanine floor at the rear of the sales-room. This firm is bringing in some fine valley, but the quantity is limited. They are doing fairly well with the new Tipperary rose.

Three thousand blooms, representing more than 400 varieties of dahlias, were used in the decorations at the luncheon given to C. E. Hughes at the Commercial Club. The flowers were furnished by the California Dahlia Growers' Association.

Mr. Baldocchi, of Podesta & Baldocchi, says that business continues rather spotted, but that there are enough busy days to make the total compare favorably with that of any former season. He says there is a large demand for basket arrangements.

For some time there has been a movement among retail florists to cooperate with the wholesalers on certain matters affecting both departments of the business. A definite step was taken in this direction Wednesday, August 23, when a large gathering of both interests met at the call of F. J. Bertrand, manager of Joseph's. Mr. Bertrand had notified all the downtown retailers and wholesalers of the meeting and every house responded to the call, which showed that the time was ripe for action. A spirit of good fellowship prevailed and the desire for cooperation was encouraging. Various trade abuses were discussed, including the practice of wholesalers selling at retail and retailers buying direct from the growers. After each side had presented its views in a friendly way, committees were appointed to go into the various problems more thoroughly. It is probable that the movement will result in a permanent organization of the retailers and, possibly, of the wholesalers. S. H. G.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Last week brought the first really uncomfortable summer weather of the season here. The mercury climbed into the nineties several times, and August 24 a record of 96 degrees was made, with a drop back into the seventies by bedtime. Social events were cut down, but the demand for funeral work was brisk. A large supply of seasonable flowers was offered in great variety, including scabiosas, zinnias, asters, centaureas, gaillardias, sweet peas, dahlias, helianthus, gladioli, iris, cosmos, salpiglossis, coreopsis, phlox, Golden Glow, ageratums, verbenas, hennemannias, foxgloves, monbretias, stocks, gypsophilas, water lilies, and auratum, rubrum and album lilies. Potted asters are offered. These, with a few gloxinias and celosias, cover the list of flowering plants.

Various Notes.

E. J. Steele says twenty hands are now employed in gathering seeds at Steele's Pansy Gardens. The season has been favorable and the seed is plump and fertile.

Hans Niklas and his family spent a short vacation at Salem.

S. G. Lubliner is making improvements in his store in the Hotel Portland building. Mirrors and grill work about the show window, painting, refitting and rearranging the interior, all have added to the attractiveness of the place. Mrs. Lubliner has returned from a three months' visit at her former home in Walla Walla, and her brother, Edgar Strauss, is expected back from his vacation about September 1.

Clarke Bros. report a good demand for water lilies. They use them frequently in funeral work.

Elmer Feig, of Niklas & Son's store, went as a member of the band on the recent trip of the naval militia to Alaska. They went up as far as Sitka. Elmer said the band members were exempt from drilling with the ship's guns or holystoning the decks, so he had a pleasant trip.

W. E. Scott, of the Woodmere Floral Co., said his stock of Whitmani ferns was better this season than usual.

The Chas. H. Lilly Co. is moving into new quarters on Front street, between Morrison and Yamhill streets.

It Pays

To Pacific Coast Florists:

What stock have you for sale to the trade?
Is it moving as it should?
No?

Then tell the trade about it by using the Pacific Coast Pages of The Review.

Pacific Coast advertisers almost invariably report good results. Like this:

Say! That ad's a humdinger for getting the business.—Everett Floral Co., Everett, Wash.

I sold all the Mum cuttings advertised, and you will not hear from me again until I can get some more stock ready. Shall root 100,000 Carnation cuttings for next season, as I know The Review will sell them for me.—Frank Wilhelm, Los Angeles, Cal.

Please cut out of our advertisement in The Review the cyclamen seedlings. We sold all our surplus cyclamen seedlings as a direct result of our advertisement in your paper.—Spokane Greenhouses (Inc.), Spokane, Wash.

We want to say that our last advertisement in The Review brought us orders from both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. We had, strangely enough, on following days, orders from Salem, Ore., and from Salem, Mass.—State Floral Co., North Yakima, Wash.

We are well pleased with the results obtained by advertising in the Pacific Coast Department of The Review. We sold out clean and refused many orders. The Review surely gives results.—Van Slyke & Seamons, Tacoma, Wash.

The transient rate for space is $1 per inch per insertion. Those who have stock to offer all or a considerable part of the year around should write for contract rates.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President, John Watson, Newark, N. Y.; Vice-president, Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo.; Secretary and General Manager, Curtis Nye Smith, Boston, Mass.; Treasurer, Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.

PETERSON NURSERY, Chicago, began digging peony roots August 28. Shipments of iris roots have been going out for a week or more.

GOOD & REESE Co., Springfield, O.; tell their customers that early orders indicate that this will be one of the best seasons ever known for the sale of peony roots.

THE fortieth annual meeting of the Georgia State Horticultural Society was held at Albany August 17 and 18. For many years R. C. Berckmans has been regularly reelected president of the organization.

THE eighteenth annual convention of the American Association of Park Superintendents will be held at New Orleans October 10 to 12. A program is being prepared providing for the discussion of subjects of special interest to park men. Wm. Allen, secretary of the New Orleans Association of Commerce, is chairman of the local committee on arrangements. The officers of the organization are: President, Emil T. Mische, Portland, Ore.; secretary, Roland W. Cotterill, Seattle, Wash.

CEMETERY MEN CONVENE.

Officers Elected.

The thirtieth annual convention of the Association of American Cemetery Superintendents was held at Norfolk, Va., August 22 to 24. The 3-day session was called to order at 10 o'clock by President James Warren, Jr., of Providence, R. I., and the morning's meeting devoted to routine business, reports of officers and committees. In the afternoon an auto tour was made of the city's parks and cemeteries, followed by a visit to Ocean View. The return to the Monticello hotel, the convention headquarters, was made by interurban.

Nomination of officers was the main feature of the evening session on the second day. R. A. Kesterson, superintendent of the Greenwood cemetery, Knoxville, Tenn., was nominated for president and W. N. Rudd, president of Mount Greenwood cemetery, Chicago, vice-president. Both candidates, having no opposition, were elected by acclamation at the final session August 24. Two men were nominated for secretary-treasurer, W. B. Jones, of Pittsburgh, and George W. Creasy, of Salem, Mass. James Warren, the retiring president, was named a member of the executive committee.

After the nomination of officers several members discussed government markers, or headstones, emphasizing the fact that they are of poor marble and not in keeping with a modern cemetery. W. N. Rudd and Thomas Wallace, of Chicago, and R. D. Howell, of Washington, were appointed a committee to draft resolutions of condemnation of government headstones. S. J. Hare spoke interestingly on the importance of proper settings for monuments, maintaining that the setting is as important as the monument itself.

Next Meeting at Barre, Vt.

The morning session on the last day was devoted to papers by William Allen, of Homewood cemetery, Pittsburgh, and Bellett Lawson, Jr., of Chicago, and an address by A. L. Kimball, of Kimball & Combe, Providence, R. I. Mr. Lawson spoke about the deceptions practiced by the "unprincipled promoters," who sold lots for twelve graves when eight adults was the most they could hold. The location committee recommended Barre, Vt., as the meeting place of the next convention. In the afternoon members were given a trip around the harbor as guests of the Chamber of Commerce.

The final session of the convention was held at Cape Henry, following a dinner at the Cape Henry Casino. A paper entitled "Starting and Operat-

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

Stock is declared to be unusually poor. Were it not for a few thousand fairly good locally grown roses coming in each day, it often would be impossible to fill orders for these flowers. Dahlias are improving slowly. Hydrangea paniculata grandiflora now is at its best and helps out greatly with the general shortage now present. It is more than welcome, as it makes a good showing, particularly so now that the gladiolus and aster crops have almost gone off the market.

The old carnations have finished their work and the new stock has not yet made its appearance. There still are a few gardenias to be had and these are being snapped up at good prices, even up to $6 per dozen, because of the shortage of orchids and valley. There is practically none of the latter produced here, and what is shipped in from northern points is soft and poor generally, even without thinking of the prohibitive price the grower must get for it.

Funeral work is good and there comes a fairly good wedding order every once in a while, and occasionally a decoration. During the last week there were several fair-sized decorations in town, while the Warrenton, Va., horse show brought good business to at least one local florist. It is unusual to receive orders for house decorations during the month of August, but nevertheless they are being booked. This probably is due to the fact that Congress has remained in session.

Various Notes.

Among the visitors last week were Johan Hagemeyer, of the West India Gardens, Pasadena Nursery, Pasadena, Cal., and Mr. and Mrs. George J. Starr, of Wilson, N. C.

George C. Shaffer and his son, Clarence Shaffer, have returned from a visit to Ocean View, Va., where the former went for the purpose of benefiting his health.

The next regular meeting of the Florists' Club of Washington, D. C., is scheduled for Tuesday evening, September 5, at 1214 F street, northwest. A number of important matters are due to come up for discussion. The outing committee is due for a final report and there will be something said about the proposed joint show planned by the Aquarium Society for the fall.

The Senate committee on the District of Columbia has made a favorable report to the Senate on the fraudulent advertising law for the District of Columbia, which measure has already passed the House of Representatives. It is expected that the upper branch will take similar action and that the President will sign the bill, making it a law early in September.

The Market.

Last week found stock still on the short side of the market. Roses now are fairly good, but there is not enough of the medium and long-stemmed stock. Those that arrive clear in a short while. Short roses are more plentiful, and, having good buds, are especially suitable for corsages. Ophelia and Reid roses predominate. Beauties are scarce, the few to be had arriving from Chicago. Valley clears well and is held at $6. Lilies are not plentiful and some are coming from New York state. Japanese lilies also are in rather inadequate supply. Asters and gladioli are sufficient for all demands, though gladioli are inclined to drag.

Various Notes.

E. A. Fetters has sold his lease at Woodward and Clifford streets and is going to move to the Church building at Grand Circus park. This will make two stores on the circle, as one of John Breitmeyer's Sons' stores also faces the park. J. F. Sullivan's new location will only be a few doors from the park, on Woodward avenue.

Albert Winkler, of John Breitmeyer's Sons, has returned from his vacation, which included a trip to New York, Pittsburgh and Baltimore. Frank Danzer, of the same concern, is on his vacation.

PITTSBURGH, PA.

The Market.

The week opened with rain and cooler weather, the rain being badly needed, but it is likely that both were too late to do the asters and gladioli much good. Asters have about disappeared from the market, at least those that are of any account, and gladioli are showing the effects of the continued dry spell. Most of them are small and not up to the standard. The good stock brings fair prices, but some of the poor stock has no value whatever.

Roses are arriving more satisfactorily each day, including some good White Killarney, Killarney, Maryland, Mock and Russell. Quantities of small stock are to be had. There are plenty of lilies and enough Beauties to satisfy all demands; in fact, there is enough good stock, leaving out valley, which has disappeared from this market, to take care of any business there is, and that was not bad last week.

Most of the retailers have enough funeral work to keep them in good humor. I have not heard any complaints, as all say that July and August business has been better this year than that of the same months of any other year.

The wholesalers are having an easy time of it. There is just about enough stock to take care of all orders, with a clean-up every day and not too much work about it. The growers have nearly completed their benchings and soon will be ready to clean up their work for fall business. Labor has been difficult to obtain, some of the growers having had to resort to the traveling class of workers, those who stay only a day or two and then pass on to make room for more of like caliber. Conditions in these respects are far from satisfactory and everyone has to do the best he can.

NEWPORT, R. I.

At the third annual midsummer flower show, held last week under the joint auspices of the Newport Horticultural Society and the Newport Garden Club, the sweepstakes prize was won by James Bond, gardener for Mrs. M. H. Brooks. The prize offered by Governor Beeckman for table decorations of not more than twelve covers, fully set with silver, glass and table ornaments, was won by William Gray, gardener for Mrs. W. B. Leeds. The society's silver medal for the seedling gladiolus, Ridgemere, went to Christian Bugholt, gardener for Miss F. Foster, who also received the Grosvenor cup for the best novelty in the show.

One of Leikens' delivery autos was run into while returning from Middletown a few nights ago and the occupants had a narrow escape. A wheel of the car was torn off and the men thrown out. All were more or less cut and bruised.

An attempt is being made to secure the sale of the so-called Bennett lot, on Bliss Mine road, Middletown, now leased by Carl Jurgens, Jr., who is occupying the land with his business.

A committee composed of President J. B. Urquhart, William McKay, William F. Smith, Andrew S. Meikle, F. P. Webber and William Gray has been appointed by the Newport Horticultural Society to arrange for the annual ball of the society. It has been decided that the net proceeds will be used, as in other years, for a course of free lectures on horticultural subjects.

W. H. M.

CLEVELAND, O.

Saturday, September 2, the big open-air flower show will open in full blast, says Timothy Smith, who is chairman of the committee. Ten retailers have signified their intention of entering decorated tables, changing them each day.

The committee expects to receive a lot of calls from florists throughout Ohio and nearby cities during the week. Anyone knowing the activity of the Cleveland florists will feel safe in stating that a trip to Cleveland next week will be well worth while.

Why we believe NEBRASKA to be the best scarlet in sight today:

Habit: Strong, easy grower, making large plants in the field and lifting easily; it also makes a strong root growth, has no surplus grass, every shoot throwing a bloom in a very short time.

Blooms: Large, 3½ inches and over, with a delightful, spicy fragrance.

Color: The brightest scarlet.

Style: Full, well built, slightly fringed.

Calyx: Long and strong, absolutely never splits at any season or in any temperature.

Stem: Long, 24 to 36 inches, heavy and strong, holding the flowers perfectly erect.

There are no culls, all blooms being first grade.

CHICAGO NEWS NOTES.

The wedding of James Kolar, of J. J. Kolar & Son, Cicero, was celebrated the night of August 26. Many members of the trade were present.

A new store will be opened by Johnson & Spetz at 1924 East Seventy-first street September 2.

The week end and Labor day will be spent in Detroit by H. W. Rogers, of Weiland & Risch, and his family.

The man with the brush and the paint bucket is supreme in the sales-rooms of Zech & Mann this week.

Barring a railroad strike, T. M. Waters, head of the supply and fixture department of the Poehlmann Bros. Co., will leave for eastern points immediately following Labor day. He will combine business with pleasure and in the course of his trip will visit all the larger New England cities.

An infected left arm places Morris Grossberg, of A. L. Vaughan & Co., at a greater disadvantage this week than it otherwise would, owing to the absence on vacation of the shipping clerk, William Johnson.

The three new 400-foot greenhouses of George Weiland, of Evanston, were completed August 26 and will be devoted chiefly to Russell, Ophelia and Milady roses. He expects to be cutting in six weeks. Members of the Weiland family believe in boosting the trade, as evidenced by the fact that September 6 Miss Margarette Weiland, Mr. Weiland's sister, and Miss Mary Geimer, his cousin, will be bridesmaids in different wedding ceremonies.

Visitors.

William Blackman, of Evansville, Ind., once one of the largest cut flower buyers on this market, has been paying his annual visit this week. His firm now has a large range of glass, but still draws considerable quantities of stock from this market, especially in the supply line.

George A. Kuhl, of Pekin, Ill., has been looking over the market this week, doing his fall buying.

S. W. Pike, of St. Charles, Ill., who is a frequent visitor, was in town August 28.

J. J. Karins, representing Henry A. Dreer, Philadelphia, is calling on customers here.

Julius Schaefer, a former Chicagoan, now located at St. Louis, has been spending his vacation here and has called on many old trade associates.

A visitor on the market this week was Mrs. Grover Lee Rambler, known to the trade as Miss D. E. Ruch, of Shreveport, La. As this is the occasion of her bridal trip, she was accompanied by her husband.

Business brought Mr. Rentschler, of the Rentschler Floral Co., of Madison, Wis., to the city this week.

One of this week's visitors was H. L. Hill, of Maquoketa, Ia.

Members of the trade were visited this week by A. F. Longren, of the Burlington Willow Ware Works, Burlington, Ia.

Brazil, Ind.—A. Dinkle has received notice from the supervising architect's office at Washington that he has been awarded the contract for embellishing the federal building grounds here. The specifications call for 446 trees, shrubs and plants to be planted on the post-office grounds.

EVANSVILLE, IND.

The Market.

Business continues excellent, but there is not enough good stock to make really good work. Roses are small and there is not much substance to them. Carnations are short-stemmed and small and dahlias are not good this year. Gladioli rank well as to quality, but asters are poor. The weather is cooler and if it continues indoor flowers soon will improve.

Various Notes.

August 26 a severe thunder storm, accompanied by a wind that reached a velocity of 105 miles per hour, visited this city, but little damage was done to greenhouses.

J. C. Elsperrmann has had considerable funeral work, but he has had a hard time to obtain enough stock.

Karl Zeidler's roses, carnations and mums are looking well and promise good crops later.

C. L. Niednagel has his rose stock in fine condition and soon will be cutting good blooms.

Julius Niednagel & Sons have completed their plantings. Carnations and mums are doing well.

The William Blackman Floral Co., which of late has had much funeral work, is cutting some good roses and asters. George Blackman is in Chicago for a short stay.

The next meeting of the Florists' Club will be held at the residence of Ernest Lutz, at Boonville, Ind., September 13.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

GET YOUR COAL IN NOW.

Growers are warned to get their coal bins filled to capacity, and lucky is he who has space enough to store his season's requirements of fuel.

The indications are that the arrival of winter, with its slower movement of cars, will bring the most acute car famine in the history of American railroading, a shortage the like of which no grower with fast-disappearing coal supplies ever has experienced.

The monthly car report issued last week showed a surplus of only 10,000 cars as of August 10. It is only one-third the surplus at the same date in 1907, when the following winter brought the record shortage. The Railway Age-Gazette, a railroad publication, analyzing the car situation, has issued the following warning:

"The figures indicate clearly that unless there is some unexpected and radical change in commercial, industrial and transportation conditions, the railways and the shipping public will have to deal this fall and winter with one of the worst shortages of freight cars in the history of the United States."

PIPING A FRAME.

I have a coldframe which I wish to heat, so as to use it for bulbs, spring plants, etc. It is 6x38 feet, thirty-six inches high at the back and twenty inches high in front. How many 1¼-inch or 1½-inch pipes will be required to heat it to 45 or 50 degrees in the coldest weather, with hot water? How should the pipes be arranged? The piping is to be connected with the greenhouse boiler, which is six feet below the level of the ground where the frame stands. The frame will be covered with hotbed sashes and the sides will be covered with tar paper.

F. E. S.—R. I.

The simplest method of heating the coldframe would be to use 2-inch pipe. Run one line along the back, starting Kirkwood, Mo., May 22, 1915.

Gentlemen:—

Now that the firing season is over, and after a long cold winter, the coldest night being 6° below zero, I want to say I am well pleased with the No. 46 Water Tube Steam Boiler and the No. 14 Hot Water Boiler. They are doing all you claim for them and more. The No. 14 Hot Water Boiler is heating that large house to 60° with the greatest ease in zero weather without the help of the steam boiler.

This steam boiler I think is a wonder, a quick steamer, and holds the steam, the easiest boiler in the world to clean and to keep clean. The double steam trap system is working fine, keeping all the steam lines well drained.

The boiler tube hot water system is the winner, the rapid circulation and even temperature obtained from this system is wonderful.

After being told repeatedly by other growers that roses could not be grown with hot water heat, we are getting the best kind of results not only from the heating systems and boilers, but also from the roses.

Yours very truly,

(Signed) W. J. PILCHER.

Dubuque, Iowa, Nov. 28, 1915.

Gentlemen:—

I wish to report that I have used my No. 45 Kroeschell Water Tube Steam Boiler for the past two seasons, and will say I could not compare it with my former boiler, as it is so far superior in every way that there is no comparison whatever.

It does the work of two tubular steam boilers—saves fuel, needs less attention, as the fire lasts much longer—is easily cleaned, there being no flues to clean every night, as was the case with the old boilers.

If I should need another boiler, I would not think of buying any other kind.

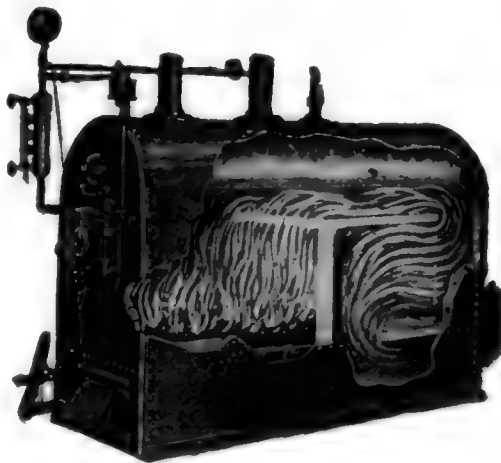

Yours very truly,

(Signed) S. E. MUNTZ.

The Kroeschell

is making the most wonderful greenhouse heating record in the world. Florists who have used other makes are constantly giving the Kroeschell the highest praise.

13,468,320 sq. ft. of glass was equipped with the Kroeschell Boiler during the past five years.

The Kroeschell

is used by hundreds of Florists' Review readers and mighty is their praise. The year of 1915 brought an enormous number of new customers who saw our boilers in operation at other places. We attribute the large sales of this season to the good work the Kroeschell Boiler is doing everywhere.

Burnhams are made in over 80 sizes. They will heat from 1,850 to 27,000 square feet of glass.

The smoke box damper and every other operating part is right on the front of the boiler.

Our friend is shaking the grates in the back half only.

Separate cleanout doors to each flue. Also note the big fire door.

Four Points Worth Thinking Over

HERE are just four of the common-sense reasons why the Burnham Boiler is so easy to get along with:

1. Every single operating part is right handy on the front of the boiler. No crawling around in back of it to turn your damper, clean out your flues or tend to anything else. You can tend to everything from the front of the boiler without moving a step.

2. Grates shake half at a time, which just naturally makes them twice as easy to shake. In mild weather you can bank up your back half with ashes and run your fire on the front half, getting just the heat and burning just the coal that you actually need—no more.

3. Every flue has a separate cleanout door. Makes it easy for you to clean your flues. The easier it is to clean them, the more often you're going to do it. The cleaner your flues are kept, the more economical your boiler's going to be.

4. The fire door is a good big, generous-sized one—nothing skimped about it. You can swing a real man-sized shovelful of coal through it without danger of banging it against the sides and spilling the coal all over the floor.

Order your Burnham now and make sure of surely having it when you need it.

How Much Work Do You Get From Your Steam?

AT some plants they spend good money in turning water into steam, and then let the steam get away without its having done more than a lick or two of work. That isn't business, although there are plenty of successful establishments doing just this thing.

But at the very big and notably successful concerns, where they keep a pretty close watch on the leaks, you will find steam pumps, traps and an ever increasing number of "Detroit" Systems.

Wherever you find installed one of these means of handling condensation you can be sure that steam is not being allowed to escape into the atmosphere before it has given something like a fair share of the heat that has been put into it. Even the poorest of them will cut enough from the coal bill to make its purchase a highly profitable investment.

But a "Detroit" System does not let any of the heat in the steam escape unused and it requires very little power to operate. It is absolutely automatic in its action and so simple in its construction that it is almost impossible to conceive of its getting out of order.

The "Detroit" System is just as big an improvement over the steam pump as the steam pump was over having no device at all.

A steam pump handles condensation up to 212 degrees—it saves 147 degrees (63 is probably as warm as tap water is). The "Detroit" System handles condensation at about 340 degrees, or 138 degrees hotter than the steam pump can take care of it. Think of the coal saved by utilizing this waste heat (or power) that is in the steam.

You can see why there are "Detroit" Systems that have paid for themselves in a month's time.

There is an interesting book that not only shows the saving a "Detroit" System can make, but tells just how it improves the operation of a steam plant. Why not ask for "Watch Your Condensation," Book No. 5-A?

six or eight inches from the top and carrying it with a fall of one inch in ten feet along the back, then across the farther end and along the front of the bed to the end nearer the boiler.

Pipe as small as 1½-inch might be used, placing a flow and return on each side, but this is rather small pipe for hot water unless the frame is several feet above the boiler. If 1½-inch pipe is to be used, we would suggest placing a flow pipe on each wall and then connecting each of them with a return located two feet from each wall, six inches below the surface.

STEAM OR HOT WATER?

I have a range of four houses, running north and south. The entire north end of the range is protected by the boiler room and potting shed. All the south gables are glass. House No. 1, on the east, is the only separate or entirely disconnected house; it is 18x145 and nine feet to the ridge; it has wooden walls; it is used for chrysanthemums, followed by sweet peas, and needs a temperature of 50 degrees. House No. 2 is 18x135 and ten feet to the ridge; the east wall is wood; there is a glass partition between it and the next house to the west; it is used for roses, with a temperature of 60 degrees. Houses 3 and 4 are not separated by a partition; they are each 30x145 and fourteen feet to the ridge; the west wall is wood; they are used for carnations, with a temperature of 50 degrees.

Will a tubular boiler, 3x12 feet and containing thirty-six 3-inch flues, heat these houses? How large should the grate be in such a boiler? House No. 1 is now piped with a 3-inch flow and four 1½-inch returns. House No. 2 has a 2-inch flow and six 1-inch returns, but that is not enough and I expect to repipe it with 3-inch tubes. I am planning to pipe Nos. 3 and 4 with 4-inch tubes; how many will be needed? The lowest outside temperature here is usually from 10 to 18 degrees, but sometimes zero has been recorded for a short time.

Could I heat with hot water? The boiler is in a pit and is tapped for 6-inch pipe for the main flow and return. The top of the boiler is about three feet below the lowest part of

Are You Ready for Jack Frost?

Do you remember those sharp mornings last January when you went down to find your steam pipes choked up with condensation—the atmosphere uncomfortably cold—the entire greenhouse in the grip of Jack Frost?

How continual irregularity of temperature in your growing houses spoiled the perfection of your most promising flowers?

Soon the chilly blasts of another winter will be here—but you need not worry if you see that the “Morehead” System is installed.

Write today for copies of letters from enthusiastic users who are getting better flowers with less expense—for actual data on savings in time and fuel.

A Uniform Growing Temperature All the Year 'Round—

Uniform growing conditions in all of your houses during June and January alike—a practical solution of the “winter-months” problem which has been cutting down your profits for years!

That is what hundreds of florists are getting from a simple and inexpensive installation of the

Morehead Back to Boiler SYSTEM

The “Morehead” System keeps your steam lines free from accumulating condensation—and makes it easy for you to maintain the constant temperature which produces the finest flowers.

Easily and quickly attached to your present apparatus, the “Morehead” System

Soon Pays for Itself in Saving of Fuel by returning the condensation to your boilers as feed water while it is pure and hot.

Now—before the winter months are upon you again—investigate this economy equipment for yourself.

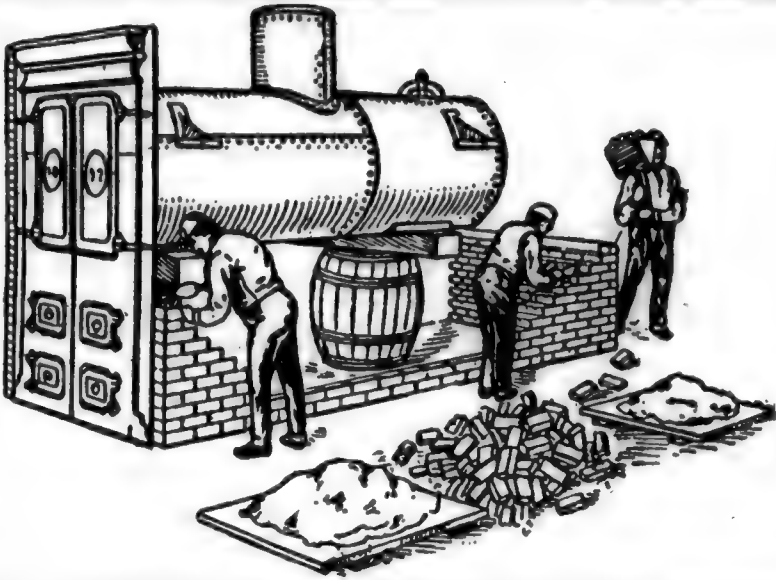

Tell us about your present steam heating plant—our engineers will give you expert information on exactly what you may expect the “Morehead” System to do for you—and send you a book which covers greenhouse temperature troubles thoroughly.

feet above the boiler. The flows can have a fall of eight inches in 100 feet and the returns the same. The houses all have solid beds; so the pipes must be on the walls and posts in the two wide houses and on the walls in the two narrower houses. Can I use the tubes for returns in the wide houses? I have 1,400 feet of 4-inch tubes, 600 feet of 3-inch tubes, 870 feet of 1½-inch pipes, 800 feet of 1¼-inch pipes, 150 feet of 2-inch pipes and 300 feet of 3-inch pipes. Which will be better, steam or hot water? J. T. E.—Ga.

We would prefer to use hot water for heating the houses described, especially as nearly three-fourths of the radiation for which pipe is on hand would be 3-inch or larger. On the other hand, we prefer not to use pipe smaller than 2-inch in houses more than 125 feet in length for hot water heating. This would mean that of the pipe on hand 2,500 feet will be too large, except as flow pipes, if steam is used, while only 800 feet is too small for hot water, and one-half of this will answer provided it cannot be exchanged for 2-inch.

There should be no difficulty in heating the houses described with the boiler referred to, either with steam or hot water, using a grate 3x5 feet. For hot water heating use 600 square feet of radiation in house No. 1, 800 feet in house No. 2 and 950 feet each in houses 3 and 4. For steam heating use half these amounts of radiation.

REBUILDING AND REPIPING.

I am rebuilding a greenhouse and should like to get some advice about the heating of it. The house is 18x120, twelve feet high to the ridge and five and one-half feet high to the eaves. There are forty-two inches of glass in the south wall and one gable is glass. The sashbars are nine feet long on one side and twelve feet on the other side. Solid beds are used.

The present piping is as follows: A 3½-inch main from the boiler to the house; then two 2½-inch flows, one on each purlin, extending to the farther end of the house, where they are connected with two runs of 1¼-inch pipes on the south wall, three runs of 1¼-inch pipes in the south path, seven runs of 1½-inch pipes on the north wall and one 2-inch pipe in the north path. Should such a system of piping heat the house to 50 degrees in zero weather? I should like to use the same pipe in the rebuilt house.

No one who buys and reads The Review is forced to do so. He does it from choice.

Your business announcements stated in The Review come to the attention of the buyers you seek in a manner and at a time that is psychologically correct.

You can print in The Review a half page, each issue, for a whole year, for what one circular would cost if you attempted to reach the entire circulation of The Review just once.

The Comparison is Startling

The one distribution of 12,200 circulars would cost approximately $600.00—one "flash in the pan," then silence.

A half page in The Review would cost only $546.00 for a whole year; it would be seen, read and remembered, if not this week, then next week for 52 issues—634,400 copies.

Last winter I had some trouble with the expansion tank. When the fire was burning hard the water boiled over, and when the fire became low there was no water left in the tank. The overflow is taken from the highest point of the main. The tank holds eight to ten gallons. E. L.—N. Y.

Our suggestion for heating the house described would be to use three 2½-inch flow pipes, locating one under each purlin and the other under the ridge. Only seven 2-inch returns would be required, and we would have three on the south wall, two on the north wall and two in the walks.

While 1¼-inch pipes may answer for hot water returns, we do not like to use them except in houses fifty feet or less in length and when the returns are several feet above the top of the boiler, unless a closed system is used. We judge that the boiling over of the system is due to the small pipes or to their being but little above the boiler, or perhaps to both causes. If, as we understand, there are thirteen lines of return pipes, these are more than enough to provide the needed radiation.

The Market.

Business during the last two weeks was exceedingly quiet, a condition laid to the intense heat. The only activity seemed to be funeral work and an occasional wedding. A cool wave, however, arrived August 26.

The supply of cut flowers has been far from plentiful this summer, a fact that is principally charged to the unfavorable weather. Gladioli are more abundant than any other flower at present and good varieties are to be had. Asters are not to be reckoned with, as they are poor in quality and few in numbers. Dahlias also are poor and scarce this year. Roses are good, for summer flowers. The first carnations from the young plants are coming in. Easter lilies are plentiful.

Various Notes.

The New Haven Floral Co., of New Haven, Ind., is sending some good carnations to this market. Its asters and White Killarney roses also are finding a market here.

Frank J. Knecht & Co. are cutting good Russell roses.

Miss Rhoda Doswell, of the Doswell Floral Co., has returned from a two weeks' vacation at Winona Lake, Ind.

A visitor last week was D. Geddis, representing the cut flower department of Vandervoort's, of St. Louis, Mo.

Misses Margaret and Catherine Vesey are making an extended western trip, touring Yellowstone park and visiting relatives at Livingston, Mont.

Miss Mildred Flick has returned from a three weeks' vacation at Portland, Me., and Boston, Mass. She was accompanied by her aunt, Miss C. B. Flick, of Toledo, O.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Blossom are joyous over the birth of a son. R. F.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

The Market.

The cool weather of the last two weeks has been a great help to the crops of asters and gladioli, and these now come in plentifully and of fairly good quality. Roses still show marks of the hot weather and are hard to obtain in the better grades. Short-stemmed stock seems plentiful.

Carnations are almost off the market, excepting a few from the new stock. Easter lilies are not good and the price is too much for the quality. As a whole, business is not so good as everybody would like to have it. Several large weddings will take place the first of September and should give a good start to the fall trade.

Various Notes.

The Wealthy Avenue Floral Co. has all but two houses of its carnations benched.

Eli Cross has a good crop of new roses coming in.

Field of Hollyhocks Saved in December

Mr. Alexander Klokner, of Wauwatosa, Wis., writes us the following interesting letter:

"How the Skinner System saved a field of hollyhocks. They usually get winter killed, if not covered with snow from early December until March. On a cold day, in absence of snow, in trying to save them, I turned the irrigation on them. In about an hour they were literally covered with ice; then we scattered leaves over the ice, some more water was turned on the leaves; that formed a hard crust over the plants, which was cold and sun-proof. Of course, I had the pleasure of seeing my hollyhocks all in the best condition when spring arrived, which was very gratifying indeed."

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

The market is in about the same condition as reported last week. Flowers are not more plentiful and their quality is far from what it should be. The supply of outdoor stock is uncertain; some days the cuts are quite small. The terrific heat of August 22 burned the gladioli badly and the number of blooms has been sadly reduced. Some good rains would help stock along greatly. Most of the asters are poor, but some fair stock arrives and sells almost at sight. Sweet peas are scarce and inferior. Hardy hydrangeas sell well and are used a great deal for funeral sprays and baskets. Carnations are scarce. Some good Golden Glow chrysanthemums are arriving and sell fairly well. Easter lilies are of good quality, but the supply is not large. Valley is not overabundant and only arrives every other day. The supply of roses is not heavy, but the quality is fairly good. Russell, My Maryland, Ophelia, Francis Scott Key, Sunburst and the Killarneys all sell well. Water lilies do not move fast. Yellow daisies, marguerites, callendulas, zinnias, snapdragons, cosmos, etc., are all found most useful just now.

Little is seen of potted plants, aside from a few small begonias. Ferns and palms meet with a good demand. The supply of greens is fairly plentiful and the demand is good.

Various Notes.

Miss Sutherland, of Spencerport, is cutting some excellent asters, which are handled by one of the city flower stores and sell rapidly, as asters in general are inferior.

George Cramer is spending a few days at Conesus lake, along with Henry Krauss and Joe Cannon, of S. A. Anderson's force, of Buffalo.

Charles E. Sharpe has been ill for the last two weeks. He is under a physician's care and is confined to his home, at Sea Breeze, N. Y.

The annual carnival of flowers was held in the Masonic Temple, Spencerport, N. Y., August 22 and 23, and attracted large crowds. The chief features of the carnival were flowers, evening entertainments and a baby show. Considering the dry season, the quality of the flowers was good, and although the exhibits were not so large as last year, the committee was well satisfied. The judges were H. E. Rogers and J. M. Dickenson, of Spencerport, and Horace J. Head, of Rochester.

Dewey Lester has left the employ of the Rochester Floral Co. and is taking a month's rest at the lakeside. Mr. Mahoney, formerly of Buffalo, is taking his place.

John Dunbar, assistant superintendent of parks, has returned from his trip to Houston, Tex. He is enthusiastic over the S. A. F. convention.

Mrs. Harry Merritt has been spending a two weeks' vacation with relatives in Toronto, Can.

Mrs. Babst, of the Rochester Floral Co., is spending two weeks at Atlantic City, N. J.

Edwin C. Kaelber, Inc., is doing a fair amount of business and appears to be well satisfied. He has a fine lot of art chinaware, which sells well.

Paul Campas has opened his stand again at the "four corners" and is doing a good business. H. J. H.

The Market.

There is little change in market conditions, business continuing better than is usually expected at this time of the summer. Carnations are scarce and of rather poor quality, but roses are plentiful enough for present needs and rank well as to quality. Gladioli, which have swamped the market, are fine at this time. A few asters are received and help to offset the scarcity of carnations to a certain extent. Snapdragons are abundant and sweet peas show a great improvement over those of two weeks ago. Greens remain plentiful.

Various Notes.

A distinctive lot of Boston ferns has been shown at the store of the Park Floral Co. In the houses good-looking begonias and cyclamens promise well for Christmas.

Emil Glauber, of Montclair, must have been born under an unlucky star. Surely he seems to be the unluckiest florist in the state. Two years ago this summer hail shattered ninety per cent of his glass, and then, owing to a long delay in securing new glass, his rose plants were touched by frost to such an extent that Mr. Glauber did not have a crop until December. Last week, on the evening of August 21, to be precise, Mr. Glauber's range was visited by another hail storm, this time breaking just about seventy-five per cent of the glass. As previously, Mr. Glauber was the only grower in these parts to suffer a loss. In other sections of the city no hail fell at all.

On a recent visit to the Elitch Greenhouses I found all the roses and carnations benched and, to the credit of Harry Harlowe, the grower, let it be said that I have never seen a better looking lot of plants. The Milady, Hoosier Beauty and Ophelia roses are especially fine. Many repairs are being made at the greenhouses and Manager Roberts is leaving nothing undone that will assure a winter of first-class cuts.

Newlander & Rollin have given their place a coat of paint, and after some repairs have been completed the establishment will look like new. Mr. Newlander is recovering from his recent illness and is able to get about a part of each day.

Fred C. Schumann is bringing in some splendid Easter lilies from his place at Edgewater. R. S.

PLANT TUBS

EVERLASTING VIRGINIA WHITE CEDAR

EVERYBODY agrees that Plant Tubs made of everlasting Virginia White Cedar will best resist rot or decay. The "Keystone" brand of White Cedar Plant Tubs are made of this celebrated wood, and these goods are painted inside and out with best oil paints, a rich green.

They are bound with heavy steel hoops for the large size, and electric-welded wire hoops (galvanized) on the small size. The large sizes are trimmed with handsome drop handles and metal feet, and have perforated, removable bottoms.

These Cedar Tubs are made in all sizes, from 24 3/4 inches top diameter down to 6 inches, amply large for a Bay Tree and small enough for a Hyacinth. Every one guaranteed. Booklet in colors, with prices, furnished upon request.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

In sharp contrast with that of the few preceding weeks, business last week was unusually good and practically everything in sight was cleared daily. Asters are longer, stronger and, generally, better, and in consequence there is an increasing demand for them. Gladioli also are a strong feature of the market.

Various Notes.

The claim of George H. Johnson, of the Elmwood Greenhouses, against the estate of Charles Mohr for flowers and plants amounting to $67.22, was heard last week before a commissioner. The case was continued until September 7.

James B. Warren, superintendent of the North Burial Ground, attended the annual convention of the Association of American Cemetery Superintendents, of which he was president, held last week at Norfolk, Va.

Smith, the Florist, 25 Washington street, has repainted the interior of his store.

George A. Saunders, superintendent of parks of Pawtucket, who has been seriously ill of late, has recovered sufficiently to be out and attend to his duties.

Albert L. Warner, the octogenarian florist of 102 East street, Pawtucket, has the sympathy of the trade in the death of his wife, Mrs. Emma J. Warner, August 22, after an illness of several months. She was in her sixty-ninth year and would have celebrated her golden wedding anniversary August 26.

The large greenhouse of the Park Greenhouses, on Broad street, is being torn down to make way for tenement houses, which J. G. Jensen proposes to erect. The material from the large structure will be rebuilt into a number of small houses at the rear of his property.

The Elmwood Greenhouses report an unusual quantity of outdoor work and are calling for additional men.

Several of the landscape gardeners have given notice of an advance in price of labor, now charging 30 cents per hour for lawn work and 35 to 40 cents per hour for tree-trimming.

The decorations for the annual costume ball at the Narragansett Pier Casino were designed and in charge of Peter S. Byrnes, of Wickford.

Eugene McCarron is having his range of houses on Hope street thoroughly overhauled and repaired. W. H. M.

WHAT IT MEANS TO YOU

THAT is what you are interested in. Thousands of florists buy what they require in Ventilating Apparatus and Greenhouse Fittings from us. There certainly must be a reason, and there is a reason. Our material gives entire satisfaction. Don't you think it will pay you to invest? Just write for our catalogue. It is good business judgment to listen to reason. We have the reasons and will explain them in answer to your inquiry. Write us today for catalogue.

TOO LATE FOR H. OTAKSA.

How should I treat Hydrangea Otaksa that did not bloom last spring? These plants were cut back last January and left in the same pots. They need transplanting and cutting back. When is the best time to do it? I want them to bloom in May of next year. Should they be exposed to a light frost?

C. L.—O.

It is too late now to do much cutting back on hydrangeas. If this work had been done last April, or even May, the plants would have made a good growth, which, if well ripened and carried properly through the winter, would have given you plenty of flowers the following spring. Your plants should have been repotted long ago, or, better still, planted outdoors. It will hardly pay you to bother with these plants and I would suggest that you buy some field or pot-grown stock from one of the specialists in hydrangeas who advertise in The Review. H. Otaksa can be subjected to a light freezing, but a stiff freeze will kill the flower buds, especially where the wood has not been well matured.

Just Supposing

SUPPOSE last spring, when the building rush was at its height, that one of the largest customers from another greenhouse concern had come to us with a nice snug order.

Suppose he wanted our best house, and wanted it quick, with no haggling on price.

Suppose he complained to us about the poor service he had been receiving and said he came to us because of our reputation for promptness and dependableness. Do you suppose we would have jollied him along and promised an early delivery, when we knew it was next to impossible?

Not by a long shot!

We would be absolutely frank and fair about it.

Frank to him.

Fair to our old customers.

We would have shown him the orders and promises ahead, and, pointing out our old customers, declared, "We must take care of them first."

Then we would have explained to him that the way we were treating these old customers would be exactly the treatment he would always receive from us, year after year, when he once became our customer.

This "supposing case" gives you a peep into our business policy. If it's the kind of policy that you have been looking for—then we are looking for you.

We go anywhere for business, or to talk business.

MAKING IT PAY IS THE ONLY WAY

The purpose of this symposium is to increase the sales of flowers; to increase them by presenting the positions of buyer and seller each to the other; to increase them by showing that each party to the transactions must make a profit, and by showing how the profits can be made.

HERE is perhaps no section of the country, in these whole United States, that buys as many flowers from long distance as does the state of Texas." The speaker was addressing the recent convention of the Texas Florists' Association, and he added, "Also I feel safe in stating that no one has the trouble in settling for these flowers that we florists of Texas do."

That was the theme of nearly every speaker on the program and it prompts the idea that a statement by a buyer and one by a seller will undoubtedly make the subject better understood and result in increased business, for the Texas buyers wish to buy even as the distant sellers wish to sell—both at the necessary profit.

"All of us," said the Texan, "receive literature of some kind soliciting our cut flower business, and most of us buy. We wire for a few hundred carnations, a few roses, some valley, or peas, perhaps, or whatever stock we may need for some social function a few days later.

Trouble Begins.

"Now bear in mind before I go further, there is no market closer than twenty-four hours in which to get this stock, and we have promised to have the flowers for this certain social function. Getting back to the illustration: The stock is due to arrive the evening before or the morning of the occasion. It arrives on time (we feel relieved), we open the box, we get the shivers and the first thing we say to ourselves is: 'What will I tell Mrs. Blank?'—we have found the stock unfit for use, or most of it. We call Mrs. Blank on the phone or jump in a car and go see her to explain matters and patch it up by using something we have on hand—cutting the price in half. Now, there is Loss No. 1 for the retailer. Our customer apparently is satisfied, after it is all over, but only a fourth of them in such cases really are satisfied. Next time the majority of them will seek elsewhere. Loss No. 2.

"Extra" Stock.

"The day the box came we wired or wrote to the shipper that the stock arrived in useless condition—'Please' give our account credit for same.' In a few days comes a letter: 'We are sorry stock reached you in poor condition; it was good, fresh stock when shipped and, as we have already settled with the growers, we will be unable to give you credit; however, would be pleased to put in some extra stock in your next shipment to make up for your loss.'

THE WHOLESALERS' POSITION

[As Stated by One of Them.]

Wholesale florists, while thoroughly appreciative of the distant customers' necessities and difficulties, are bound by certain facts and conditions:

First, cut flowers are wholesaled on a margin of 15 per cent to cover all contingencies; the wholesaler's costs usually are 10 to 11 per cent, frequently considerably more; his net profit is seldom greater than 4 to 5 per cent, frequently considerably less.

Second, any customer whose claims average more than 4 or 5 per cent of his purchases becomes an unprofitable customer. The wholesaler is better off without him, especially because—

There seldom is important waste of flowers in a successful wholesale house; there always is a home cash customer, and—

It is more profitable to sell, even at a slight concession, to a buyer who pays cash than it is to ship at full market rates to one who demands an allowance—claims, if any, almost always exceed the wholesaler's net profit on the order.

The remedy lies in the retailer at great distance recognizing that he must make his purchases profitable to the wholesaler, ordering a grade of stock that will stand the journey, paying a price that will warrant the most careful selection, charging enough at retail so he can stand the almost inevitable occasional loss that comes from handling a highly perishable article, stating his needs comprehensively, stating complaints without vituperation, paying promptly.

There are many such accounts. If any wholesaler, happy in the possession of one of them, should fail to make the most diligent effort to hold it, there are plenty others who would do so.

"Now, how many of us ever got out on a proposition like that? Few, I dare say, ever did or ever will. How would it sound for me to go to the customer for whom I ordered the stock and insist upon her paying full price for the inferior goods simply because I might have to pay the man who sold them to me? It would not do at all, but it is just as consistent that I insist on her paying me as it is for the other fellow to insist on my paying him.

"Well, we have to pay for the shipment, or at least a good part of it. There is Loss No. 3. Then there is the express ticket—Loss No. 4. Here comes the telegraph bill—Loss No. 5—to say nothing of loss of sleep, temper and hope of the hereafter. Yet, most of the wholesale houses from which we buy, if we take the matter up with them, insist that it is ridiculous for the retailer to hold them responsible for shipments that open up unfit for use. I, for one, fail to see on what ground they make this contention.

Fresh Flowers?

"We all know it is a long haul to us from most of the markets, but where is there a grower who wouldn't be writing to every expert in the country trying to locate the trouble if his stock was in such condition that it would not keep forty-eight to seventy-two hours after being cut? Yet the shippers say the stock was absolutely fresh when shipped! In many cases, no doubt, these things occur through the carelessness of help, but should we be expected to stand for that?

"Making shipments good by sending extra stock to the value of that which arrived in poor condition sounds reasonable on the face of it, but it is almost impossible to get out on such stock, for one who has regular shipments coming in has, or ought to have, it figured pretty closely as to what he requires. Consequently, a lot of extra stock dumped on him with nothing special on hand is a problem. 'Put on a sale!' Yes! Loss No. 6.

"By the foregoing I believe I have made clear the difficulty that confronts almost every florist in the state, and will now try to make clear a few prescriptions for this sleep-disturbing, temper-unbalancing trouble.

Difficult Remedies.

"I believe the easiest way to overcome this difficulty is more commercial glass or a good commission house in the state. This commission house, to my way of thinking, should be a stock company and the stock held by the florists of the state. I am sure practically every florist in Texas and in parts of Oklahoma and Louisiana, as well as some of our northern growers, would take stock in such a concern.

"I believe the foregoing to be the most practical way of disposing of our difficulties along this line, but there are other ways of overcoming them. Another method would be for all buyers to insist on a cash credit on all stock which failed to open up in good condition. If, on the first of the month, when payment is made, this credit is not forthcoming, buy elsewhere. Have it understood that such a settlement is absolutely the only kind acceptable—and stand by it. The Texas flower business is large enough to demand such settlements and it is growing larger every year.

"While most of the concerns, I am sure, feel justified in their stand, it is up to us to show them the error of their ways and in the end I do not believe the wholesale houses would lose anything, but it would simply make them more careful in selecting good, absolutely fresh stock for this long haul, consequently reducing bad shipments to a minimum."

Hart and Adam Graham, Cleveland. For the private garden exhibits they are M. L. Ruetenik, South Brooklyn, O.; C. E. Kendel and Adam Graham, Cleveland.

Miscellaneous Exhibits.

Hitchings & Co., Elizabeth, N. J., showed a model greenhouse.

A. H. Austin, Wayland, O., and Joe Coleman, Lexington, O., each made an attractive showing of cut gladioli.

Stumpp & Walter Co., New York, shows a fall line of seasonable bulbs, grass seeds, etc.

John Scheepers & Co., New York, show spiraea plants and a general line of bulbs.

Although the affair is not of large trade interest, it will be the means of attracting public attention in no small measure, for the several exhibitors and for the coöperative display, as the attendance is large.

AT ROCHESTER, N. Y.

An Auspicious Start.

With ideal weather prevailing, the annual exposition at Rochester was opened September 4, Labor day, by Mayor H. H. Edgerton. Everything pointed to a record crowd, thousands of people entering the park before noon. While there is much that is old, there is vastly more that is new.

Nearly 400 thoroughbreds, the pick of America's equine aristocracy, are at the show, and it is safe to say that never before have so many pedigreed horses been brought to the Rochester show. Flower stores, department stores and other places of business have gayly decorated windows in honor of the event. In the horse ring flowers are greatly in evidence, as the high jump is lined on either side with Vick's asters. The hedges are sixteen feet long and these, too, are partially covered with flowers. More than 600 hydrangea blooms are arranged in tubs and arbovitæ trees, twenty to twenty-five feet in height, stand near the grand stand.

On entering Exposition park at its main entrance the first thing one notices is the peristyle, with a mammoth lily pond that contains numerous aquatic plants, ferns and grasses. A fountain throwing a spray nearly twelve feet high forms the center of the pond.

TWO EXPOSITION FLOWER SHOWS

AT CLEVELAND, O.

Flowers Staged in Tent.

Under the management of M. A. Vinson, who came to the favorable attention of the trade through his work for the big Cleveland flower show last autumn, the Sixth City this week is pulling off another unique success in the form of a so-called Industrial Exposition and Fair, held in Edgewater park, the exhibits staged in a number of large tents, one of which is occupied by a flower show under the direction of the Cleveland Florists' Club. The committee consists of Timothy Smith, retail florist, chairman; Frank A. Friedley, commercial grower; H. P. Knoble, retail florist; Chris. B. Wilhelmy, retail florist; E. A. Bause, superintendent J. W. Corrigan estate, Wickliffe, O.; O. P. Blackman, superintendent W. S. Tyler estate, Rocky River, O.; Geo. Jacques, superintendent Wm. G. Mather estate, Bratenahl, O., and Robert Weeks, superintendent A. F. Holden estate, Bratenahl, O.

The Industry's Display.

The Florists' Industry of Cleveland—in other words, the publicity committee of the Cleveland Florists' Club—is represented by a handsome display occupying one side of the tent for flowers. The scene was staged at a cost of $800, provided from the subscription advertising fund, and attracts more attention than anything else in the tent. The committee provided 25,000 circulars for distribution, one side carrying the names of sixty-five subscribers to the fund, the other the following statement:

We have gathered a few statistics to show you the wonderful amount of flowers and plants required to supply Cleveland and vicinity for one year; for instance, there are:

Twelve million carnations,
Over five million roses,
Five hundred thousand chrysanthemums,
Twenty-six million sweet peas,
One million lily of the valley,
Eight hundred thousand Easter lilies,
Three hundred thousand peonies,
Two hundred thousand dahlias,
One hundred thousand Boston ferns,
Three million gladioli,
Two million asters, etc., etc., etc.

The average would easily be 100 flowers per year for every man, woman or child in Cleveland.

Other Exhibits.

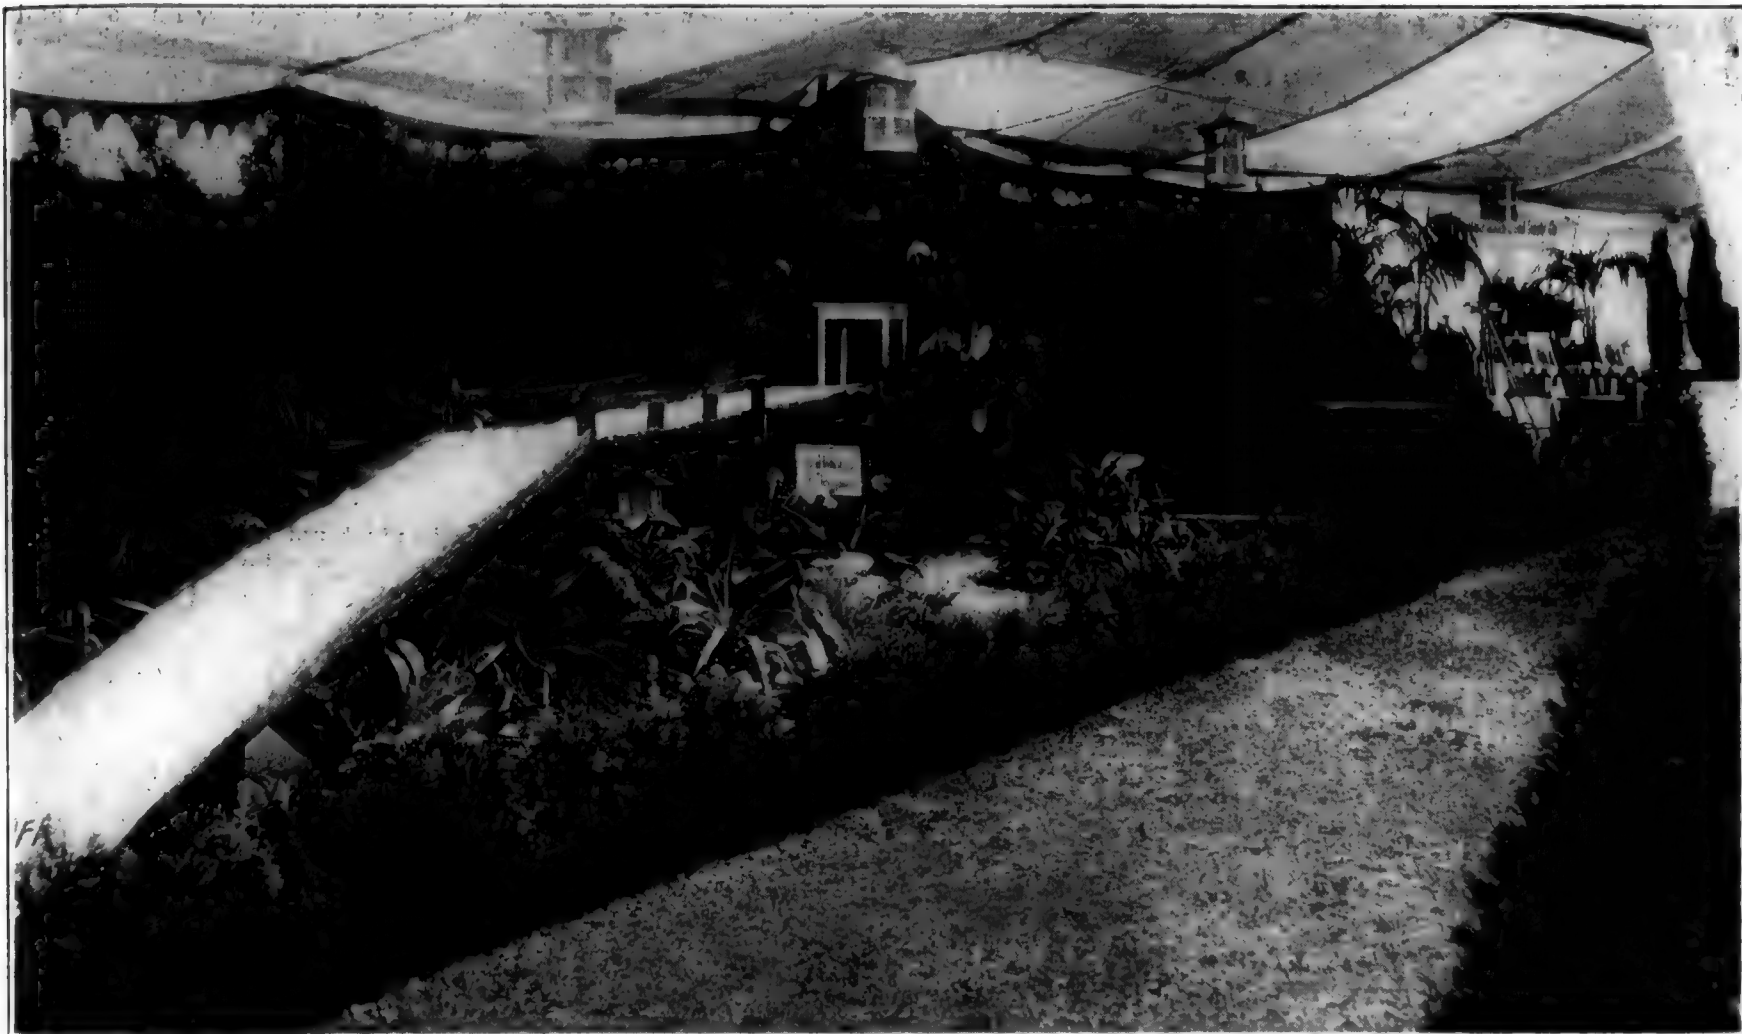

The schedule of premiums did not provide any competitive classes for commercial growers, but there are classes for retailers. The table decorations are the principal feature, to be rearranged every other day for eight days, each time with a different flower. On the days not specified the exhibitor can do what he chooses. The contestants are Knoble Bros., Timothy Smith and Charles B. Wilhelmy. The same exhibitors are maintaining a display of basket arrangements, changing the flowers to conform to the schedule.

There is a large list of premiums for private gardens. The principal class was for group of foliage plants to occupy 150 square feet, first prize being awarded to Nagiroc Gardens and second to Woodside Gardens.

The judges announced for the trade exhibits are Ed. George, of the Storrs & Harrison Co., Painesville, and Herman General View in the Flower Show Tent at Cleveland.

Display Representing the Florists of Cleveland at the Industrial Exposition, Now in Progress There.

The windows of the peristyle are greatly improved this year by the addition of window boxes filled with arbor-vitæ, and at the entrance of Music hall are large boxes filled with asters and vincas. A good-sized bed of asters and greenery is laid out near the pond. Above the two entrances to Flower hall are large cedar boxes filled with geraniums and vines. The hall itself is beautifully decorated with greenery and wild smilax, with small trees of arbor-vitæ arranged around the entire room. The pillars also are covered, and resemble trees. Hedges of the greenery run around the room.

During the day the natural light in Flower hall is quite good and at night the hall is well lighted. The coolness of the room is favorable for the flowers and in many ways the hall is superior to the building used last year.

The flower show division of the exposition, according to the reports of the committee, easily surpasses last year's as regards the quality of stock. The bad season has favored us with some wonderful flowers, and on the whole the display is far better than was expected. The committee in charge consists of Charles H. Vick, chairman; George T. Boucher, George B. Hart, A. H. Salter and E. P. Wilson. They have done everything in their power to make the show a success and great credit is due them for the admirable way in which it is being handled.

The Leading Exhibits.

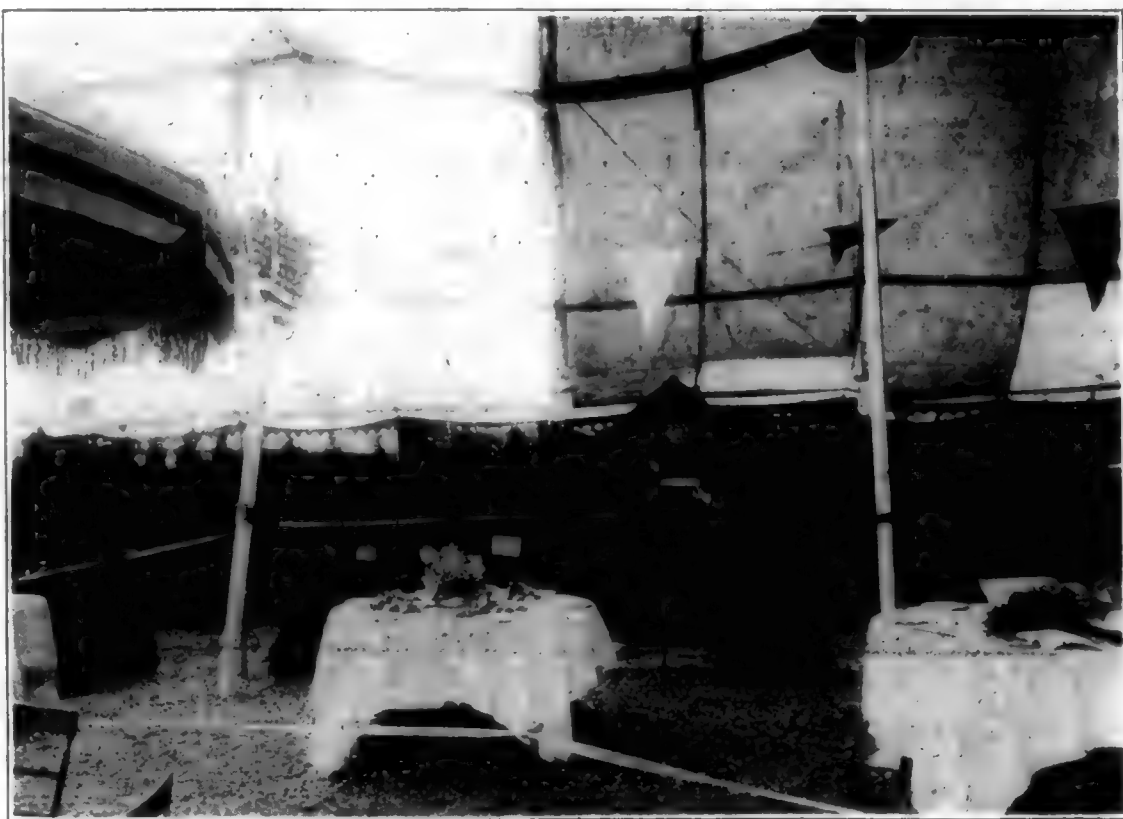

The Rochester parks department is always ready to help out with exhibits of fine collections of flowers, shrubs, ferns and palms. The whole width of the hall is given to the park department, which displays Japanese lilies, flowering allamandas, begonias, dracenas, crotons and cacti. Some fine new varieties of hydrangeas, with monstrous blooms, are included in the exhibit. Boston, maidenhair and Whitmani ferns furnish a beautiful edging.

One of the largest attractions in the flower department is the waterfall gotten up by George Cramer. The water comes through an open window, cleverly arranged so as to resemble a stream coming through a wood, and falls into the pool beneath. The window is completely hidden on either side, above and below by arbor-vitæ bushes. The stream bed, made with cement and broken rocks, is most realistic. Logs covered with moss, as well as rocks, water flowers, rushes and fungous growths, are arranged in the pond. On either side of the pond are large beds of asters supplied by James Vick's Sons.

George B. Hart has a novel and unique display of many kinds of orchids. A stand on which a wire frame is built, which resembles a large umbrella, is covered with moss, and from each tip hangs a tube containing orchids. The base of this stand is surrounded by gladioli, with an edging of Boston ferns. Mr. Hart also displays a large quantity of gladioli, American Beauties, Sweetheart and Maryland roses.

H. E. Wilson is to be highly commended for his exhibit, which consists of hanging baskets, palms, ferns, foliage plants, boxwoods, bay trees, vases of flowers and baskets of chrysanthemums.

Charles W. Curtis exhibited a fine collection of twenty varieties of gladioli, and these were in first-class condition. His asters, too, were especially fine.

James Vick's Sons are well represented with a wonderful collection of annuals and perennials. Their gladioli are splendid and include many of the new varieties. There are large vases of dahlias, salpiglossis, hardy phloxes, cosmos, delphiniums, zinnias, hydrangeas, coreopsis, veronicas, Golden Glows, rudbeckias, helianthus, butterfly plants, calendulas, potted petunias, Boston ferns. The exhibit is in charge of H. L. Glenn.

The Awards.

The winners of premiums in the professional classes are as follows:

ing, the plants will steadily improve and water at the roots can be applied more freely. The same holds good with O. Pescatorei, O. Rossii majus, O. gloriosum and other odontoglossums.

Vandas.

The vanda family is a fairly large one, but American growers usually recognize but one variety; that is, V. cærulea, the only one of commercial value, our finest blue orchid and one of the most beautiful in cultivation. The natural flowering time of V. cærulea is fall, but where a number of plants are grown it is possible to have a succession of flowers from August until January, with occasional spikes in other months. This vanda must not have heavy shade; if so shaded, it will be of a rich, dark green color, but will flower sparsely. Plants grown in a fairly strong light have paler foliage, but usually flower well. A top-dressing of fresh sphagnum, which can be kept growing, seems to be favorable to V. cærulea. As the flower spikes appear, be sure to attach to them a band of cotton wool as a protection from shell snails. The same protective measure is necessary with odontoglossums and oncidiums, to all of which snails seem to be partial.

Vanda teres is a beautiful variety, not much seen. It grows with anyone, but only a few succeed in flowering it. The trouble always is too much shade. Give the plants plenty of light, only diverting the strongest rays of the sun from them, and there will be no trouble in flowering them. Such vandas as tricolor, Amesiana, Sanderiana, Luzonica and suavis succeed well in a warm, moist house and require more shade than V. cærulea and V. teres.

Cymbidiums.

There are a considerable number of cymbidiums now in commerce and the number is being steadily added to by the skill of the hybridists. All are beautiful and have wonderful lasting properties. The flowers of C. Lowianum, one of the best known of the genus, will keep fresh on the plants from three to four months. Of course, I do not recommend leaving flowers on for so long a period, as it is debilitating to the plants, but even when cut they excel all other orchids in keeping qualities, with the possible exception of cypripediums. No great skill is needed to keep cymbidiums green and of a good color, but they should have a little house to themselves, or, if that is not possible, give them one end of a house, such as the cooler end of a cattleya house. The majority of cymbidiums succeed well in a compost of equal parts of fibrous loam and fern fiber. During the growing season, all that are well rooted are benefited by waterings of cow manure or Clay's fertilizer. The following are extra good commercial varieties: C. eburneum, C. Lowianum, C. eburneo-Lowianum, C. insigne, also called Sanderi, and C. Traceyanum.

Oncidiums.

Some spikes are already fully developed on Oncidium varicosum Rogersii, the most popular florists' variety, but the main crop of spikes will bloom in October and November. Keep the plants that are in bud or flower well shaded and not too warm. This will give the flowers more substance. O. ornithorhynchum is starting to open its spikes of rose-colored, deliciously scented

SEASONABLE NOTES.

Calanthes.

The flower spikes are now showing at the bases of the new calanthe bulbs, which, however, have not yet nearly attained their full size. If the pots are well filled with active roots, as they ought to be, applications of liquid cow manure once in four or five days should be continued until the leaves begin to mature—that is, to lose their green color. Calanthes are gross feeders, and really fine bulbs and spikes cannot be had without the use of liquid food. Calanthes should have a warm, moist house right through their growing season. On all but the hottest nights, a slight warmth in the heating pipes, to take away the clammy-like feeling, will be found helpful. A successful calanthe grower attributed much of his success to the fact that his plants had the benefit of a little fire heat every night, and on cool, damp days right through the growing season, just sufficient fire being used to warm the hot water pipes.

Odontoglossums.

Odontoglossum grande, commonly called the baby orchid, now is starting to flower. It is one of the few odontoglossums which succeed well in our American climate. The majority of the family suffer severely through our hot summers and have their vitality much impaired. O. grande succeeds well in a cool house in the summer and should have quarters a little warmer than O. crispum in winter. It does particularly well in shallow pans, hung well up to the light. O. pulchellum majus, sometimes called the lily of the valley orchid on account of the resemblance of its pure white spikes of sweet-scented flowers to the lily of the valley, is another variety which does not mind our summer heat. This variety grows well in the cooler end of the cattleya house and does well in pots surfaced with sphagnum.

Odontoglossum crispum, the most beautiful of the family, and the orchid par excellence in Europe, where it grows magnificently, does not enjoy our summer heat and, even when grown in a lath house or north house, has a more or less distressed appearance after one of our periodic heat waves. Shading the plants from the direct sun, giving a good supply of atmospheric moisture and keeping the plants themselves on the dry side, helps to circumvent the heat spells. Now that cooler nights are comed flowers, which are abundantly produced, especially when the plants are grown in small baskets and kept suspended from the roof in a cool orchid house. Look out for snails on this oncidium, or they will assuredly eat every spike.

Another oncidium which is now in bloom, and which produces its curious flowers for a long time, is the butterfly orchid, O. Papilio. One or two flowers of this variety in a store window are bound to excite the wonder of passers-by. O. Kramerianum is another variety with flowers much resembling butterflies. A fine variety, which comes in season after O. varicosum, is O. tigrinum. The fragrant flowers are yellow, blotched with brown, and are three inches in diameter. This Mexican variety is more seen at Christmas than any other oncidium. The Guatemalan O. splendidum, O. Cavendishianum, O. sarcodes, from Brazil; O. flexuosum, an old but free flowering variety, and O. fuscum, are all well worthy the attention of commercial growers who are looking for a constant succession of orchid flowers.

HAVE YOU A SCRAPBOOK?

A scrapbook is a desirable thing to have. It is a volume for the preservation of pieces of print clipped from newspapers, trade journals and magazines. It is to the methodically inclined man what the ledger is to the business house; it saves time, it saves labor and it saves information. Surely the florist who favors a little system about his office and home will recognize the manifold advantages of the inexpensive scrapbook. Instead of having clippings, bits of information and data, trade articles, etc., strewn all over the place, hidden away in this drawer and that drawer, placed here and there, and the clipping wanted never to be found when most needed, enlist the services of a good scrapbook and note how easy it is to do the right efficiently. With the aid of the scrapbook, properly indexed, one can find such and such a clipping on such and such a subject in a jiffy. The directions on how to control mildew of roses are quickly accessible if one maintains a scrapbook. But if one does not possess the article, the precious directions may have gone out with the sweepings of the last house cleaning.

Granted that the scrapbook is a good thing in the home or office, the next step is to describe its make-up.

If a complete file of any periodical is retained, the issues should be kept in their consecutive order. Each copy of the publication carries a serial number, the current issue of The Review, for instance, being No. 980. Then all that is needed is an index book, in which subjects can be entered under appropriate headings as they come along. If, for instance, a peony grower desired to keep track of the American Peony Society's affairs, under "P" in the index book he would have a heading "Peony Society," and under this a subhead, "1916 annual meeting, No. 968, page 11." And so on with each heading and subheading.

In case it is desired to keep clippings from a number of periodicals and not keep a complete file of the publications, the usual system is to procure or make a scrapbook, which may be of any size, but preferably the size of the standard

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE—AND WHY

L. H. GENY.

PROBABLY L. H. Geny, vice-president of the Tennessee State Florists' Association for Davidson county, could write a comprehensive and flattering sketch of someone else, but when asked to tell the story of his own life he crowded it into four brief sentences, thus: "Was born in Nashville, Tenn., March 7, 1874, and have been in the florists' business all my life. Am married and have three children. We have a modern range, comprising over 150,000 square feet of glass." Like all true men, he is proud of his children, and he seems to feel a moderate degree of pride in the Geny business as a whole, but has little to say about his own part in making the firm of Geny Bros. so widely known and respected. Undoubtedly the state society, when selecting him as an officer, knew of other points in his favor besides his connection with the Nashville firm.

invoice book. A page, or more, if necessary, should be allotted to each subject, and an index made in the front of the book. If, for example, a grower wanted to keep a record of all matter he read on insecticides, under "I" in the index he could enter the word "Insecticides," together with the number of the page devoted to clippings on the subject. Then, by pasting all the clippings on the same page, or on adjoining pages as the quantity grew, he would be able to turn to this scrapbook and find the desired clipping without loss of time.

Those who keep a complete file of The Review and desire to have certain printed reports, cultural directions, disease remedies, etc., handy at all times, need only make the index book, as described in the first instance.

MARGUERITE MRS. F. SANDER.

When should Daisy Mrs. F. Sander be benched to insure a good crop for Memorial day, in a carnation house temperature? When should seed be sown in order to have plants for that day?

E. A. R.—III.

This marguerite must be propagated from cuttings and not from seed. The cuttings should be put in during October and benched from 4-inch pots after Christmas. Of course, you can propagate as late as January and bench in early March, but the plants will lack size.

Troy, N. Y.—George I. Cain has purchased the florists' business of Felix Menand, who has been almost a lifelong dealer in flowers in this city. Mr. Menand is seriously ill.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Lilium Candidum.

The arrival of the useful and most beautiful of all pure white lilies, Lilium candidum, from Europe is now due and it is necessary to unpack the bulbs at once and pot them as soon as possible. L. candidum at this season makes a growth of leaves which remain on the plants through the winter, and if the bulbs are left in boxes or baskets for even a few days at this warm season they will make considerable leaf and root growth and be seriously damaged. Only north-of-France candidums are of any value. These are the true broad-petaled type. The bulbs are more pointed than the inferior type commonly sold and the scales are thicker.

Candidums succeed better grown several in a pot, rather than singly like longiflorums. Plant four to seven bulbs in 8-inch to 10-inch pots. Stand them outdoors or in a coldframe. Water them moderately, and afterward not at all until leaf growth is well started. An excess of water soon after potting often causes the bulbs to rot. Once the pots are well filled with roots, allow them to stand outdoors and have several freezings before placing them under glass. Many growers fail to handle this lily profitably, as they attempt to grow it in the same way as Harrisii or longiflorum. Forcing should not be started before December 20 and then only in a cool house. Candidums succeed best in a night temperature not exceeding 52 degrees. The cooler they are grown, the larger will be the flowers.

Primula Malacoides.

If the plants of Primula malacoides are now ready for 3-inch pots, they are quite large enough. This is a rapid-growing primula and a few years ago, when it was a novelty, growers made a natural mistake in sowing it in January or February, along with P. Sinensis, obconica and Kewensis. This gave them plants of immense size before winter, which rotted badly. We now know that July is sufficiently early to sow P. malacoides and have strong plants in 5-inch to 7-inch pots from Christmas onward. For some weeks yet a coldframe will be the ideal place for this primula; after that a cool and light greenhouse will be needed.

Primula Obconica.

In spite of the somewhat poisonous properties of Primula obconica, it continues to be largely grown and is sold in great numbers at both Christmas and Easter, as its flowering season is a long one. In repotting the plants, guard carefully against too deep potting, which is responsible for many blind plants. The old, matured leaves may preserve a healthy look, but the tender flower spikes and many leaves will rot with too deep potting and you are liable to blame caterpillars for destroying them. Keep the plants potted along before they become potbound. Plants for Christmas sales should now be in their flowering pots, which should be of the 5-inch or 6-inch size. Those needed for later sales, if still in 3-inch or 4-inch pots, will make good plants. Use a light, moderately rich soil and keep the plants in coldframes for some time yet; they will grow there much better than in a greenhouse. About the middle of September house the plants wanted in flower for the holidays.

Hydrangeas.

Pot-grown plants of the French hydrangeas wanted for early forcing should have a somewhat reduced water supply, to assist in stopping and ripening the growth. Let the plants have all possible sunshine. The new French varieties are much better for early forcing than the old and ever popular Otaksa. The former also are more easily injured by frost when the growths are soft, but it is a mistake to class them as tender plants, as stock left out last winter on high, well-drained ground came through the winter perfectly and flowered well, although minimum temperatures of 10 degrees below zero were recorded and snow lay deep for many weeks. Hydrangeas planted out should be lifted and potted, or tubbed, as soon as possible. If some ball is left on each plant they will wilt but little. Spray freely for a few days and give the plants an open, sunny exposure.

Winter Myosotis.

If you have any use for forget-me-not and have a place to grow some in, it is not yet too late to root cuttings or to sow seeds for a winter or spring crop of flowers. Myosotis dissitiflora is a good winter-flowering variety; a form of it, Perfection, is of a deep blue color and carries fine spikes. The myosotis flowers freely if planted along the sides of a bench in a house kept at 46 to 50 degrees at night. It is of no use to sow seeds of M. alpestris, palustris or sylvatica. These are of no use under glass, although all are excellent for outdoor planting.

Late Asters.

The crops of asters have been almost a failure in many localities this summer, owing to excessive rainfalls, and the prices consequently have averaged much higher for early and midseason varieties. Asters are useful flowers for country florists and they can be profitably used over a long season. If you have any late plants and there is a likelihood of frost getting them before they flower, why not try the plan of planting these in a coldframe where you can give them the necessary head room? Use a rich soil and keep them well supplied with water. Stir occasionally and place the sashes over them if frost threatens, also when the flowers start to open. It is well to leave the plants covered, as this insures cleaner flowers than can be had outdoors.

Propagation of Bedding Plants.

Be sure to take an ample stock of cuttings from alternantheras, coleus, achyranthes, acalyphas and other tender bedding plants. Put the coleus and alternanthera cuttings in flats. Do not lift old plants; they are simply headquarters for mealy bug. Do not start too soon on the propagation of geraniums, as the cuttings are soft now. In the cooler nights and days they grow less rampantly and become harder, and such cuttings are less liable to damp off. Remove the leaves closely from the cuttings, also all scales, and cut below a leaf joint. Of course cuttings will root if not made in this way, but they are less likely to damp off if cut below a leaf joint. Lay the geranium cuttings on a shelf to dry after making them, and let them remain there at least twelve hours; there is less likelihood of their damping off then. Water well to settle the sand about the cuttings, then quite carefully. Give full sun all the time.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS FOR SOUTHERN FLORISTS

SWEET PEAS IN THE SOUTH.

If the first sowing of sweet peas has not been made, no time should be lost in doing so. The winter-flowering Spencers easily surpass the old grandiflora type. While their cultural requirements are not many, it is essential that all of them should be met, if the best paying results are expected. Sweet peas in the south do best on solid beds, and the soil should be fresh, with about one-third cow manure added. The rows should be at least three feet apart, and one vine every six inches in the row is close enough. The vines, when they do well, will grow to a great height, probably twelve feet, and that amount of head room should be provided. A medium mulch of manure may be applied when the vines are twelve to eighteen inches high, but liquid manure should not be applied until the flowering season starts. Syringing must be regularly done and it is always well when watering to soak the plants well.

To prevent wilt when the vines are starting, I have found the following plan effective. Throw the rows into low ridges, make a furrow along the ridges and water thoroughly on both sides of the ridge and in the furrow. Place a little clean, wet sand in the furrow, sow the seeds and cover them with more wet sand. This will make enough moisture to start the seed and any water required until the vines start to run up the supports may be supplied on both sides of the ridges. By following this plan for the last three years, I have never lost a vine from wilt. L.

OPEN LETTERS from READERS

ASTER BLIGHT.

I have noted with interest the inquiry of F. W. H. on page 40 of The Review for August 31, in regard to aster blight. Having had more or less experience with asters, I have often noticed the same trouble with my plants, but have come to the conclusion it is due to a check in the growth of the plants, often when they were first put out, which does not show immediately, but will sooner or later cause the plant to "yellow off" in the manner described.

Soil that has grown asters the year previously will not produce good plants, but the effect of this is seen from the first in thin, spindly plants which apparently have no vitality.

H. G. McCallum.

REMEDY FOR ASTER BEETLE.

I have noticed a number of inquiries in The Review relative to a remedy for the destructive aster beetle. For asters, gladioli, dahlias or any other outdoor flowers which are subject to the beetle, Hammond's Slug Shot will do the work. Apply the exterminator with a fine sieve, usually in the morning, when the foliage is moist. In a few hours the beetle will have disappeared. The remedy is not injurious to either the foliage or flower. I have never found it necessary to make more than two applications in a season and sometimes one is sufficient. I do not consider Paris green a safe remedy. It is apt to burn the foliage and should not be used where flowers are intended for market.

G. R. Gause.

A NATIONAL FLOWER.

A national flower should be really national, and not sectional. The mountain laurel has been pushed to the front in this connection and is receiving favorable consideration. But this cannot be grown in one-fourth of our domain. At our experiment station here in York, Neb., we planted and cultivated it with the greatest care and put it under a screen, but it would not live.

The peony is regarded with favor for the purpose and it is a noble flower, but it will not grow in the gulf states or in southern California, and it is not a success in the semi-arid regions, on account of the continuous drought and excessive heat.

The phlox succeeds only in a limited area.

There is a Columbine Society, which for years has been pushing its favorite flower, but it is not an impressive or conspicuous flower and it must be confined to a limited area.

The goldenrod has been mentioned, but it is a miserable weed and remains bright but a short time.

The iris should be our national flower, for the following reasons:

We have enough native sorts to give it a claim to our attention.

There are 170 native species of iris and over 1,000 hybrids. By a judicious selection you can have flowers every day for two months and in southern California you can see them in bloom every day in the year.

It can be made to grow in every state in the Union.

It is the best of all drought-resistant flowers. It has the faculty of gathering the moisture in the roots and holding it there during the worst drought and heat.

It multiplies rapidly and is not expensive. There is no flower which can be grown from seed with surer or more satisfactory results. We are on the verge of cheering possibilities in the origination of new sorts, and the process is so simple that a little girl can produce marvels of loveliness.

There is no family of flowers which can surpass the iris in beauty; some of the newer sorts defy description. Daughters of the rainbow, they come "In garments of woven delight,

Of sunset, aurora and light."

There is not a family in our vast domain that cannot grow the iris and enjoy it. So it should be our national flower. The iris is sometimes said to be the national flower of France, but it is not. The French emblem is a water iris, named from one of the French rivers.

HYDRANGEAS FOR EASTER.

I want to start some hydrangeas that I can bring into bloom for Easter. How should I treat them and what size of plants should I buy?

W. C. H.—Pa.

Easter comes April 8 next year. You will succeed best with the French hydrangeas, rather than with the old H. Otaksa, for early flowering, and you should buy pot-grown plants. You can buy these in 4-inch, 5-inch and 6-inch and larger sizes. The 5-inch or 6-inch should suit you. These can be turned out of pots, of course, for shipment. Give these plenty of sun and gradually reduce water supplies. Give the protection of a coldframe as the weather becomes colder. Endeavor to ripen the wood well; do not keep the plants dry, but if you water heavily they will not ripen up so well.

The plants can be started in January for Easter flowering. Good varieties to buy are Radiant, bright pink; Mme. E. Mouillere, white; General de Vibraye, bright rose.

Robinson, Ill.—After an illness of several weeks, E. T. Oldham says he is beginning to feel like himself again.

Mount Vernon, Ill.—The 10-acre plot of ground owned by G. Holabeck, of St. Louis, is to be planted to vegetables, flowers and small fruits next spring. Mr. Holabeck expects to erect greenhouses later on.

News from Abroad

Glasgow, Scotland.—In 1915 palms for export to the United States valued at $10,629 were certified through the U. S. consulate here. In 1914 there were no exports of this character.

Sassenheim, Holland.—The bulb market has firmed up in a way that was wholly unexpected, following the British embargo. Tulips have advanced sharply, compared with quotations before harvest, hyacinths less abruptly and narcissi to a still less extent. The reasons for the advance are found in a much smaller supply of merchantable bulbs than was expected, due to decreased acreage, bad weather and shortage of labor.

Marseilles, France.—It is officially announced that "the S. S. Savonian was sunk by a torpedo in the Mediterranean, after leaving Marseilles Sunday, August 13. It carried about two-thirds of the French bulb crop destined for England. It consisted of Roman hyacinths, freesias, and other French bulbs. The crop was an extremely poor one and the bulbs were small, but it is a loss to horticulture which cannot be replaced this season." It is stated that the shipments of bulbs lost included important consignments for the largest buyers in England, Sutton, Carter, Howcroft and others.

Berlin, Germany.—It is announced that boats of the Holland-America line still leave their mails in England.

Glasgow, Scotland.—Referring to the new opening for the extensive employment of women, arising from the war conditions, that of horticulture, in the Portobello gardens of Dobbie & Co., seedsmen, women and girl workers have for some time been largely in the majority. "We would have been almost helpless without them," the manager told a correspondent in the course of a tour of the grounds. "From the point of view of the workers themselves the success of their new occupation is not in doubt. Their length of service and the rarity, almost the complete absence, of cases of the employees leaving their new work, are sufficient testimony on this fact. There are different duties for different attainments in skill. They do potting, pruning, weeding and watering, and the various other duties formerly undertaken by the men. Some of the girls working out of doors found themselves hampered by their skirts. This difficulty has been removed on the part of a number of the workers by the adoption of male attire. One of the girls appears in knickers and puttees, which give her a smart military appearance."

HIGHER PRICES NEEDED.

P. M. Read, secretary of the Pot Makers' Credit Association, Sharon, Pa., has undertaken a campaign to induce florists to raise their prices. Because The Review believes that higher prices are necessary, the following communication in Mr. Read's series is given place here. He says:

"Can any grower give a good reason why he should continue to sell geraniums at the old established price of $7 per hundred in 4-inch pots (and give the pots), a price which was one of the customs in use fifteen or twenty years ago, at which time he paid between $6 and $9 for his labor and all supplies used were purchased at less than half the present prices? For instance, one grower pointed to a pile of old newspapers used in packing, for which he paid $15, just three times the cost two years ago and just twice the cost two months ago for the same quantity, and he says that, $7 per hundred for 4-inch geraniums being an established price, he fears that with an advance he would be unable to move his stock.

"I suppose he and all other growers will agree that the market value (so advertised) of geraniums out of 2 1/4-inch pots is $25 per thousand whether he buys or sells, and he will also agree to figure the 4-inch pot at 1 cent, making 3 1/2 cents indisputable cost. He must then figure nine or more other items of expense before the 4-inch geranium is sold, viz.: Labor, coal, soil, water, fertilizer, rent, taxes, interest on investment, delivery, and perhaps some will also figure tools, implements, repairs, etc., all of which are sure expense. In labor and coal we find the greatest expense, while the raw material, such as soil and water, is small. Under the head of labor can be figured time spent in growing the plant for market, usually from October until spring.

"To sum the above, I believe the grower does not obtain a new dollar for the old one on 4-inch geraniums at $7 per hundred.

"I also gather from talks with representative geranium growers that none of them will ever pay a large income tax if they continue to sell at such low prices. I am not a florist, but, coming in daily contact with them and watching their troubles, I should like to have some geranium grower explain how they do it."

BUFFALO.The Market.

Now that there has been a let-up in the heat, flowers arrive in better condition, especially roses. Beauties are small and the daily consignments are rather insignificant, but there is a brisk demand for them. Other roses are arriving in larger quantities. Francis Scott Key, Ophelia and Mrs. Russell now are about the best in the market. Some, of course, as yet are short of stem, but they nevertheless are perfect flowers. The short roses come in handy for funeral work.

Asters are becoming more abundant, but their quality remains about the same, all of them seeming to be more or less inferior. Occasionally some extra fine asters arrive, and then there is a wild scramble. Gladioli are plentiful and of good quality. There always seems to be a demand for these flowers. The supply of valley continues inadequate, as usual. The same is true of cattleyas at present. Daisies and sweet peas are done for this season and snapdragons are rapidly going the same way.

The Easter lilies are tightening somewhat in supply. There has been a steady demand for them throughout the season, the prices averaging good. Golden Glow chrysanthemums are again with us. They moved somewhat slowly, as they usually do until the public becomes used to them.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Suchy, of San Antonio, Tex., stopped off at Buffalo on their way to New York. They motored to New York, but will return by water.

It becomes our sad duty to record the death of Mrs. Catherine Legg, wife of William Legg. She is survived by Mr. Legg, two sons, William J. and Thomas Arthur, and one daughter, Mrs. A. J. Bingham. The deceased was a member of the Queen Alexandria lodge, Daughters of St. George and other orders. Members of the trade extend their sympathies to Mr. Legg.

The Schultz Flower Shop, of Tona-wanda, reports a heavy run of funeral work. Since the opening of the new store business has been satisfactory.

Miss M. Roth has returned from her vacation. Joseph Speidle found it difficult to stay away from his friends any longer. Both are of the W. J. Palmer & Son store. Several letters have been received from W. J. Palmer, who is spending his vacation in northern points of Canada. A. E.

SPIRÆAS FOR EASTER.

How shall I handle spiræas to have them in bloom for Easter?

W. C. H.—Pa.

Allow the plants of old Spiræa Japonica eight weeks; grandiflora and Gladstone, nine weeks; Queen Alexandra, pink, ten weeks in an average night temperature of 60 degrees. Spiræas want an abundant water supply at all times and liquid manure when well rooted. Do not fumigate with tobacco stems, as the foliage is easily scorched. C. W.

DENVER, COLO.The Market.

Market conditions remain unchanged. Gladioli and asters are plentiful and carnations are improving. Roses are good and the supply equals the demand. The shipping business is unusually good.

Various Notes.

A new store is being-fitted up at 20 Twentieth avenue and will be known as the Astor Flower Shop. J. D. Wilmot is the proprietor.

Fred Hall and family spent a week at Estes Park and another week at Evergreen recently. Mr. Hall and his daughter are motoring through Nebraska this week.

Harry Collins, of the Park Floral Co., has returned from a month's visit with relatives at Boston and Washington. From what I know of Harry, I will wager that most of his vacation was spent in the big league ball parks. R. S.

Des Moines, Ia.—A handsome store was opened September 2 on the corner of Walnut and Fourth streets, the sign over the door giving the business title of Kirkwood Floral Co. The new establishment is but an enlarged edition of the Kirkwood Florist store, which was owned and operated by Mrs. Ray Holt, at 404 Walnut street, who is part owner of the new store. O. Chrisman, for years associated with the Iowa Seed Co., is the other head of the concern. A department for birds and goldfishes will be managed by Miss A. Place, who has had twelve years' experience in this line with the Iowa Seed Co.

Fairmont, Va.—In the flower and plant classes for professionals at the recent show the H. Weber & Sons Co. was awarded eleven firsts and two seconds.

Hillsboro, Tex.—Philip Foley, of the Foley Greenhouse Mfg. Co., Chicago, recently was in town to confer with the M. C. Wood Seed & Floral Co. regarding the erection of a greenhouse.

Eureka Springs, Ark.—The business of C. I. Poor has been acquired by A. Woerner, who formerly operated houses at Clinton, Mo., and until recently was occupied at Pleasant Hill, Mo.

Asheville, N. C.—Allison's Drug Store has become Allison's Flower Shop to a number of its customers. The flower department is operated in connection with the West Asheville Greenhouses.

Norman, Okla.—A greenhouse to cost $4,000 is being erected here for W. A. Rowe, who formerly was associated with an Oklahoma City florist.

Burnside, La.—Wm. Green has returned from his annual midsummer vacation trip and is busy getting things into shape for active autumn business.

Ada, Okla.—W. E. Pitt says that last year he bought fifty Godfrey callas, which he divided this year in changing the soil. He found the increase had been so rapid that now he has 278. He says that not only do they multiply fast, but they bloom more profusely than the old Æthiopica. Mr. Pitt learned of the Godfrey calla through an article in The Review and says, "If a man will read The Review he will keep posted; I cannot do without it."

OBITUARY

William J. Newton.

William J. Newton, 33 years of age, of Norfolk, Va., died in the Protestant hospital of that city August 29, after several weeks of illness from typhoid fever.

The deceased's whole life had been spent in the florists' business at Norfolk, first with his father, the late A. J. Newton, who was among the pioneers of the business there, and then branching out for himself at his father's death. His ability and striking personality soon earned for him a good patronage, with the result that he built a business second to none of the kind in the city. His store on Granby street was beautiful and his modern range of houses on Colonial avenue turned out some of the finest stock seen in Norfolk.

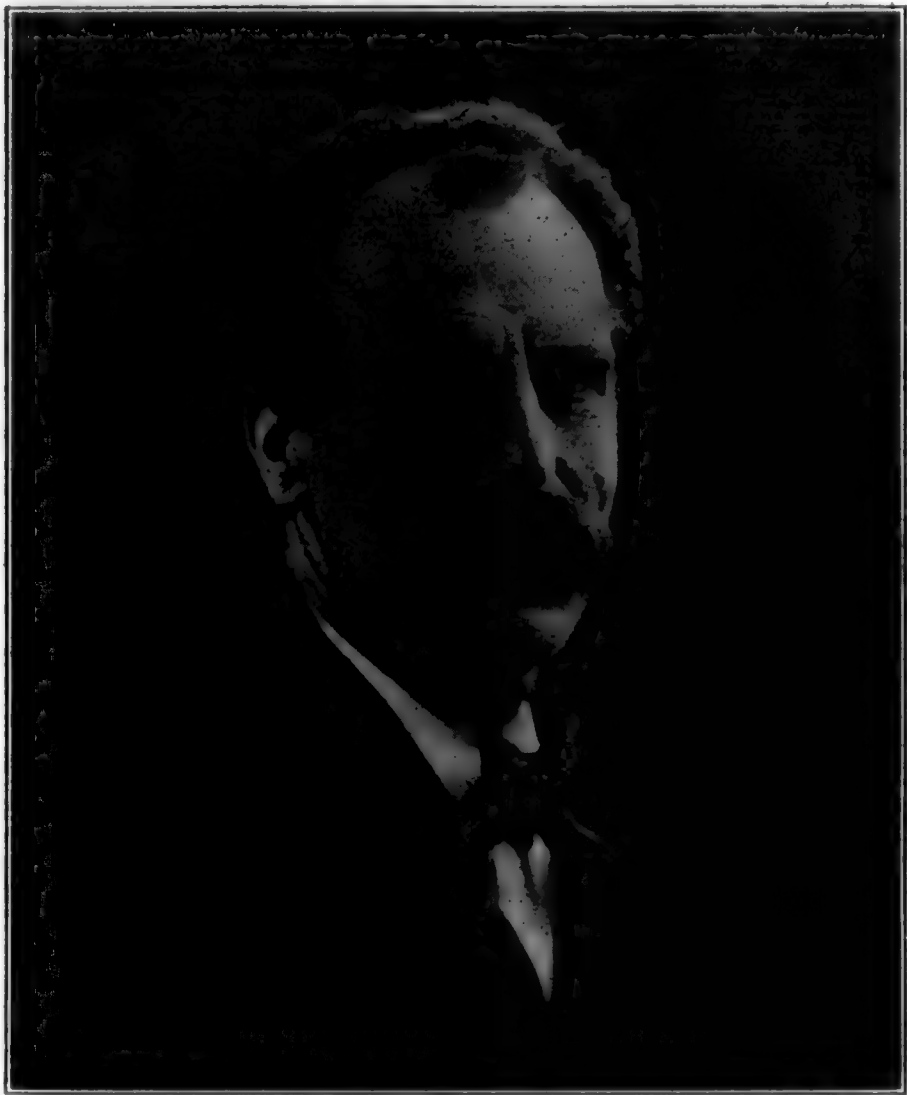

Besides his mother, wife and two children, three brothers, Ernest J., Alton R. and Arthur M., survive him, all of whom are engaged in the florists' business in the same city. The funeral was held from the late residence, August 31, many members of Elk and Moose orders, of which he was a member, being in attendance.

William T. Bell.

Walking home along the tracks after he had paid a visit to a friend at Conneaut Lake, William T. Bell, aged 73, one of the best known citizens of Franklin, Pa., was struck and instantly killed by an Erie passenger train in the afternoon of August 29.

William Temple Bell was born February 19, 1843, in the village of Eals, county of Northumberland, England. The family came to the United States in 1849, settling in Franklin. Mr. Bell had received little education from the schools, as he began working when quite young. Largely to gratify the wish of his father, he began the study of law and January 24, 1865, he was admitted to the bar and became a partner of Samuel Plumer, with whom he practiced the legal profession for some time, being most interested personally in the study and investigation of titles to real estate and the laws relating thereto, and in the preparation of conveyances, contracts and other legal papers, and caring less for that branch of the business formerly known in England as "Old Bailey practice."

His natural inclinations, however, led in other directions and in 1868 he embarked in business on a small scale as a florist, being the first to engage in that pursuit in the section of the country where he lived, but as there was but little demand for his productions at the beginning of his experience in that line he, as he expressed it, starved out twice and was compelled to seek other employment, being engaged by an attorney in Oil City to assist him in the practice of his profession, but after having saved a sufficient amount of money to justify him in doing so, he returned to the business of his choice, which, because of his careful and intelligent industry, continued to improve and was carried on successfully for more than forty years. The business now is conducted by the Bell Floral Co., under the management of the sons, John and Edward.

William T. Bell.

Mr. Bell was a prolific writer and contributed many articles to The Review, frequently illustrating them with photographs of his own making. In earlier years he was called on to judge many flower shows, last serving in that capacity at the Pan-American Exposition. His last appearance at a trade convention was when he read a paper at the Pittsburgh convention of the American Carnation Society in 1910. As early as 1866 he published two small volumes of verse and he subsequently produced many essays, poems, songs, historical sketches and illustrated lectures. He served six years as school director and was also at one time on the board of managers of the Franklin cemetery.

Mr. Bell left his wife, who was Rachel Likins, of Ohio, and to whom he was married December 1, 1869; also the following children: Miss Anna, at home; John, of Niles; Philip, of Dallas, Tex., and Edward, at home. Two sisters survive: Jane F. Bell and Rachel Bell, of Sandycreek township. Edward and Miss Anna Bell were absent, on the homeward journey following a tour of the Yellowstone, at the time of the accident and it was several days before they could be reached with the sad news.

The funeral was largely attended and there were many flowers.

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.

The Market.

The local growers are all preparing for fall and winter. The unusual weather conditions have delayed a good deal of the work, but with the present bright, cool days it will not take long to catch up.

The early bulbs are coming in and the appearances are that there will be more of these than ever.

Late asters of good quality are scarce. Gladioli are plentiful and cheap. Business in general was unusually good for August.

Various Notes.

The work of preparing for a busy winter at the establishment of the Peckham Floral Co. is coming on in fine shape under the guidance of the manager, Samuel Peckham.

Ernest Chamberlain is contemplating another move. He is not entirely satisfied with his present location.

The best late asters in the city are being cut by Edward M. Pierce. He has some fine carnation plants housed. His violets in the field are also as fine as anyone would wish to see.

George N. Borden has returned from a two weeks' vacation spent at Jolly island, Lake Winnepesaukee, N. H.

The carnations in the field of Robt. H. Woodhouse are of poor quality, owing to the unusually wet summer and the low ground on which they were planted.

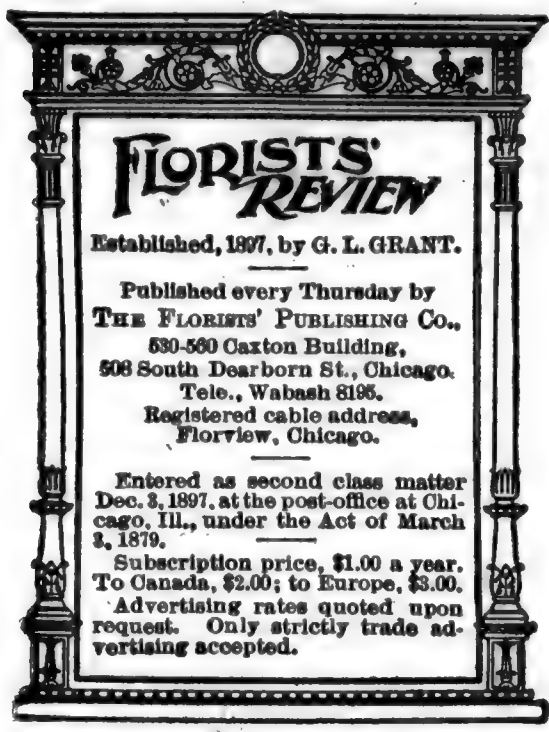

Wm. P. Pierce has given up his shop on Pleasant street and will conduct his business entirely from his greenhouses on Elm street.

Wm. Davenport reports business as rather dull at present.

A recent visit by the writer to the Kingston Gardeners' place, at Kingston, Mass., found everything looking fine. H. J. Walsh, the grower, has some good carnations in the field. He is cutting some first-class gladioli.

W. M. P.

Bydal, Pa.—Harry Markhorst, a Hollander, has started a florists' business here.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.

Officers for 1916: President, Daniel MacRorie, San Francisco; vice-president, R. C. Kerr, Houston, Tex.; secretary, John Young, 53 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, J. J. Hess, Omaha.

Officers for 1917: President, Robert C. Kerr, Houston, Tex.; vice-president, A. L. Miller, Jamaica, N. Y.; secretary, John Young, 53 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, J. J. Hess, Omaha, Neb.

Thirty-third annual convention, New York, N. Y., August 21 to 24, 1917.

RESULTS.

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

AMONG the scarcest items this season is Cocos Weddelliana in all sizes.

As a class the aster growers are having a poor season, in the east too much rain and in the middle west too much drought!

THERE is quite general confidence in the trade that business will be better than ever this season and nearly everyone is preparing for it by enlarging or improving his facilities in one way or another.

BALDWINVILLE, a village in western New York noted for the number and size of its aster growers, makes the flowers a means of national advertising and will celebrate its second annual aster day September 9, inviting all the world to come and see.

INQUIRIES continue to come to hand regarding the non-arrival of German cyclamen seeds. It seems quite clear that many growers still are depending on their usual sources of supply in spite of the common knowledge of the British blockade.

WHILE the Florists' Hail Association, purely a mutual organization, has suffered severe losses in the last year, it is not the only one. A number of the big general insurance companies that write hail policies on farm crops have been called on to pay such large claims that many of them plan to do more than raise rates; they will go out of the business of insurance against hail.

HONORABLE MENTION.

Not a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper. Among those who have this week enrolled themselves for more than one year in advance are:

FIVE YEARS.

Earl, Howard M., Doylestown, Pa.
Murray, S., Kansas City, Mo.
Raasch, G., Kankakee, Ill.

TWO YEARS.

Skiles, A. C., Downingtown, Pa.
Kellmer, P., Hazleton, Pa.
Zoller, N. C., Willsville, O.
Kropp, H. W., Columbus, O.
Button Bros., Lake Geneva, Wis.

The Review stops coming when the subscription runs out. The green notice with the last copy tells the story; no bills are run up; no duns are sent.

THE NAME OF QUINLAN IS GOOD.

The Review has more readers in the state of New York than in any other one state in the Union, which would account for such letters as the following except that the orders come from everywhere:

We are all sold out of carnation plants; 11,000 removed through The Review in less than a week.—P. R. Quinlan Estate, Syracuse, N. Y., August 28, 1916.

The Quinlan advertisement cost $3.20. It offered plants at $6 per hundred, $50 per thousand. If all were sold at the thousand rate the sales totaled $550, which made the advertising cost a trifle more than one-half of one per cent.

Just think of it, $550 of sales at a cost of $3.20! Can you think of any other way that pays as well?

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty sure he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

BUSINESS EMBARRASMENTS.

Cleveland, O.—Attorney D. L. Shaw says: "I have been advised by my former client, Jack Keck, that The Review published an article in reference to him in which it was stated that he had been in business only five weeks. I understand that The Review got this information through letters written to Mr. Keck's creditors. If our letters stated five weeks, it was an error on the part of our stenographers; it should have read five months. I might add that Mr. Keck seems to me to be honest and I also think he has the ability to make his business pay, but starting in with $200 or $300 and striking the bad season, and without enough funds even to fill his orders, it is no wonder that he found himself in financial difficulties. Had he so desired, Mr. Keck, by claiming all his exemptions, could defeat all the claims of all his creditors, but after consultation with me I advised him to make some arrangements for an extension of time with his creditors."

GYPSOPHILA ELEGANS IN FLATS.

Please ask your correspondent, C. W., who answered an inquiry about gypsophila in The Review of August 17, page 44, how far apart each way he plants Gypsophila elegans in flats for best results. G. R. N.—Ky.

A flat 12x24 will hold fifty of the seedling gypsophilas. They require four to five inches of soil. Sowings may be made at intervals of a fortnight, from the middle of January onward. A good place for the flats is on shelves in a carnation house, or any other house having a similar temperature. When the flats are well filled with roots, feed the plants with liquid manure and be sure to use a rich soil for the seedlings. Of course flats of a larger size may be used if preferred. G. R. N. will find this a profitable, useful and easily grown annual under glass. C. W.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

The arrival of September is shown in the increased supply of roses and the continuance of cool days and cooler nights has resulted in a marked improvement in the quality. As the annual early autumn crop came on, demand the latter part of last week betrayed an inclination to fall off, due, in some measure, no doubt, to a fear of a railroad strike. With this ghost laid, however, the demand resumed its former strength and, in the department of telegraph orders, gave evidence of increased activity. Some little congestion was caused September 5 by the fact that no mail was delivered Labor day.

During the last few days there has been a great increase in the supply of Beauties. Demand for all lengths, with the exception of extra long, can be satisfied. Quality is good and it is likely to continue such, as new houses are constantly coming in.

Russell still leads the general rose list, with Milady and Sunburst giving a good account of themselves. In fact, all roses are moving satisfactorily. Prices average higher as longer stems are cut, in spite of the fact that a given sum buys a better rose now than it did a fortnight ago.

Gladioli are gradually going down, both in supply and quality. Demand, too, is becoming sated with them, and as a result it is not unusual to hear of clean-up sales at low figures. Valley is thoroughly consistent in its behavior and shows no sign of leaving the short side of the market. Easter lilies, too, are leaning toward the scarce side. There are a few rubrums, though not enough to cut much of a figure. A few sweet peas may be found, and a handful of snapdragons here and there, but neither is in large enough supply to constitute a real item on the market. Chrysanthemums are available in some of the houses, but the quality usually is not much to boast of at this season of the year and, in addition to that, it is not easy to force demand. But few cattleyas are reaching the market and, though there is little demand for them, they succeed in realizing fairly high prices. Good asters continue scarce, and this at the time of the year when they should be in heavy supply. Marigold is making a timid entrance to the market, but so scarce is field stock that its appearance is easily noted.

Greens are moving in a highly satisfactory manner, as supply and demand are practically equal.

August Business.

There is considerable variation in the reports as to August business. In a retail way it was with many considerably better than any previous August and this was reflected in the wholesale market; stock was so scarce and de-

YOU CAN GET OF US GOOD BEAUTIES

THE LARGEST SUPPLY IN THIS MARKET

We are not among those who have displaced Beauties with other roses —our supply this season will be as large as ever. The cut now on is specially strong on MEDIUM LENGTHS, good stock in every respect. You know your customers would rather have good medium-length Beauties than any other flower. You can order of us, any quantity, any length up to 36 in.

THE LEADING ROSES

Roses have improved in marked degree as the result of cooler weather, and we are beginning to cut our heavy Autumn crop. You will recognize our list as containing the Roses that stand highest with your customers: Russell, Sunburst, Milady, Ward, Killarney Brilliant, Ophelia. Specially strong on Russell.

FINE EARLY MUMS

We are ready to supply you with Golden Glow Chrysanthemums of first-class quality.

FANCY ASTERS

All season we have led the market on Asters—largest supply of good quality. We still have them, including special fancy stock that the city buyers take on sight at $5.00 and $6.00 per 100.

NEW GLADIOLI

We have a fine cut of Gladioli—all the old favorites, like America, King and Augusta, and novelties you seldom can find elsewhere, like Glory, Myrtle, Mrs. Pendleton, etc.

Lilies

You always can get first quality Giganteum here.

Greens

Ferns, Adiantum, Mexican Ivy, and Asparagus strings and bunches.

LILY OF THE VALLEY

We can supply all the Valley you need—on telegraph order if need be, but why not arrange for regular shipments, so YOU will always have some on hand?

mand so good that nearly everything went out through legitimate retail channels and little was left for the bargain counters, producing the best average prices ever known in August. But good prices were of no avail to the man who had nothing, or next to nothing, to sell and where certain growers and wholesalers will say August was "the best ever" others will tell you it was "about as usual."

August Weather.

August was a hard month for the growers, because the rainfall was considerably less than half the normal quantity and because the heat of July continued with only slight interruption during the entire month of August. The monthly mean of 76.6 degrees is the highest on record, the greatest previous record being 76.3 degrees in 1900. The month was dry, with excessive sunshine, as well as warm, and of the total rainfall, 1.05 inches, 0.94 inches fell within a period of twenty-four hours. The percentage of sunshine was eighty-six as compared with the greatest previous August record of eighty-two per cent in 1896 and 1908.

Various Notes.

The first meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club since the adjournment for the summer, June 8, will be held at the Morrison hotel, September 7. The feature of the evening will be a paper by Allie Zech, on cut flowers from a commission man's viewpoint. The secretary promises discussion of some important matters. Refreshments will be served.

The early return of Andrew Benson, who has been in the Philippines collecting orchid plants for Poehlmann Bros. Co., is expected. Mr. Benson, who had made previous trips to Central and South America on the same errand, sailed from Manila some time ago. A letter which preceded him required forty days to reach Chicago. It was Mr. Benson who won the big silver punch bowl raffled off last spring by the Chicago Florists' Club. He has not yet seen his prize, but it is not supposed he is returning for that reason, although he may take it with him on his next expedition into the wilds just as the Englishman does his tub.

As the result of William Homburg's name appearing in the death notices of the daily papers of September 5, the telephones of the Alpha Floral Co. were kept busy for a while. But Mr. Homburg assures his friends that he never felt better in his life. Another case of duplication of names.

The exclusive sale of the new carnation Thenanthos, grown by Anton Then, has been placed in the hands of the A. L. Randall Co.

N. J. Wietor took advantage of Labor day to take his eldest son, Leo, to St.

A National roadster has been ordered by M. Pekarek, proprietor of the California Floral Co. This is not half bad for the end of a summer season.

Paul Richmond, with W. J. Smyth, is receiving congratulations on the arrival in his home of a baby girl.

Gladiolus Panama, while a popular color, is not liked by the retailers because of its lack of keeping quality and C. S. Clausen predicts that it soon will be grown only for garden decoration.

ends with September, but the record of the best previous year's sales was passed several weeks ago.

A large shipment of French chiffons to Joseph Ziska & Sons has reached here, but it is tied up in a freight house as a result of the freight handlers' strike.

William Wienhoeber and Mrs. Wienhoeber have returned from a vacation motor trip in Wisconsin in their Moline-Knight.

The members of the Mann Floral Co., East Chicago, Ind., are rejoicing over the recent birth of a girl in the family of George Mann.

According to A. F. Keenan, 1220 and 1306 East Sixty-third street, the recent repainting of his delivery car must have given a forward impetus to business. If this is not the cause, something else is, for he has been unusually busy.

Among those issuing new catalogues is the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co. The pages are unusually large, 11x17 inches, and the list is quite comprehensive. It not only deals with greenhouses, but with parts, accessories and paints. It is printed on a high grade of paper in large, clear type and is profusely illustrated. A unique feature of this catalogue is that it is of loose-leaf construction. President P. L. McKee says pages will be added from time to time, thus keeping the book right up to the last word on the various subjects.

That the shortage of good asters will be relieved to some extent in the near future by large shipments of eastern stock is the opinion of Charles Erne, of Erne & Klingel.

An exhibit of roses, consisting of Beauties, Ophelia, Sunburst, Killarney Brilliant, Dark Russell, Killarney, White Killarney, Cecile Brunner and George Elger, was staged by Wieter Bros. at the Schobermesse of the Luxemburg Brotherhood of America, held Labor day, in Rogers Park. Other exhibitors were the W. W. Barnard Co. and Vaughan's Seed Store, both showing excellent gladioli.

America at 10 cents per dozen, a special sale by J. H. McNeilly, September 2, seems to indicate that gladioli have fallen from their high estate just as the season is ending.

A most artistic and highly attractive catalogue of prepared goods, artificial flowers, decorative baskets and electric fountains has been issued by the A. L. Randall Co., under the title of "Display." The book contains over two dozen color plates and is alive from cover to cover.

The advent of cooler weather has been hailed with joy by the forces of Peter Reinberg, both store and greenhouse, as it took just that to put their roses in shape. An average of 3,500 Russells are being cut daily. Felix Reichling, manager of the store, reports a brisk demand for the new rose, Champ Weiland. He thinks from what he has seen of it that it will prove a keeper not even second to Russell. At the greenhouses all repairs are out of the way and the crew is busy overhauling the boilers.

That the Rainbow freesia will be a regular item of stock in all bulb houses next year, A. Henderson & Co. say, is to be deduced from the number of orders for stock apparently for growing by freesia bulb specialists.

Business for the month of August more than doubled that of the same month in former years, report A. T. Pyfer & Co.

The Maywood Beauty specialists, the Weiss & Meyer Co., are making an excellent start this season, the first crops from young stock and from replanted stock both being of excellent quality.

After a brief vacation, Manager Robert Northam, of the George Reinberg salesroom, is again found in his accustomed place.

A motor trip to Laporte, Ind., was enjoyed over the holiday by Allie Zech, of Zech & Mann.

Now that W. J. McKey, bookkeeper for the John Kruchten Co., has gone on a vacation, John Kruchten has his hands full.

Believing that the fall rush which is on its way will be so heavy that florists will see little of their homes, Anna Tonner, of O. A. & L. A. Tonner, will stay there during her vacation, which begins the end of this week.

After a week spent motoring in Wisconsin, E. F. Winterson, Jr., again is on duty at Winterson's Seed Store. The fall bulb catalogue is being mailed.

A 12-pound girl arrived last week at the home of W. J. O'Carroll, head of the botanical garden and greenhouses of the University of Chicago.

Small and frequent doses of pleasure are more profitable in the long run than large and infrequent doses, in the opinion of Paul Klingsporn, manager of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association; so his vacation for this year is taken a day or even a half day at a time.

Visitors.

Ralph Zetlitz, of Lima, O., who is a steady buyer in this market, was here last week looking up stock and prices.

William Freiling, of the Wealthy Avenue Floral Co., Grand Rapids, Mich., paid one of his infrequent visits to this market September 2.

That the office of the American Bulb Co. is the exact center of the Chicago market is the contention of A. Miller, president of that concern, who says the number of florists who step in on buying bent exceeds his expectations.

Members of the trade were visited last week by F. G. Witthuhn, of Cleveland, O.

After enjoying a fishing trip to Cascade lake, near Sheboygan, Wis., E. W. Kalisch, of the Kalisch Bros. Floral Co., St. Louis, stopped in Chicago the first part of this week to visit old friends,

We recommend the following stock, all our own growth:

Don't Forget to Buy Direct of the Grower.

NEW BEAUTIES—Extra choice stock—best in this market

Rhea Reid—the best red rose

Mrs. Russell—the best pink rose

Sunburst—the best yellow rose

Double White Killarney—the best white rose

Ophelia—Shawyer

Then, in addition, we have the regular varieties of Roses in large quantities, receiving them direct from the greenhouses within a few hours of being cut, which enables us to fill all orders with strictly fresh stock. This is the great advantage of buying direct of the grower.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The first week of September has not brought any marked change in cut flower conditions. Those who have few flowers are impressed with their scarcity by the number of chances they miss. Those who have flowers know that alertness is needed to market them properly. All agree that business is good for the season. Mark that, for the season.

There is a vast difference between the price and the demand for fine asters and gladioli and the price and the demand for the so-called junk of the same species. Of course, this is always true of everything, but it is especially so of asters and gladioli today. More of the fine ones would be welcome, and contrariwise. Easter lilies are shortening in numbers. The price has again advanced. Beauties are in improved demand. Golden Glow chrysanthemums made their appearance with this month. Tritomas are here also, only awaiting autumn foliage to become popular. Tuberoses sell fairly, in limited quantities.

The Eighth of April.

Easter, 1917, will fall on the second Sunday in April, the eighth day of the month. This will make the social season, reckoned from Thanksgiving until Lent, eighty-three days long, as against 100 days last season. Thanksgiving will fall on Thursday, November 30; Christmas and New Year's will both fall on Monday, rather an awkward day; St. Valentine's day will come on Wednesday, February 14, and Lent commences one week later, with Ash Wednesday, February 21.

Club Meeting.

Cannas occupied the attention of the Florists' Club at the meeting September 5. E. H. Michel, with Henry A. Dreer, Inc., illustrated an excellent ad-

Doings at Norwood.

The Norwood place of the Robert Craig Co. is rapidly increasing in size. One new greenhouse, 12x300, has been built mostly from material brought over from the south house on the city place. This house has been built with three narrow tables and two walks and is already filled with cyclamens. Another house, 32x150, is just finished and will be filled with large Areca lutescens, which are to be hardened off while the pipes are being put in and connected. The shell of another 32x150 house is up, ready for the sashbars. Two more houses, one 32x150 and the other 28x150, are to follow during September and early October. A good deal of the material comes from the range that was torn down on the slice of property sold at the city place, but some new glass and building material were purchased.

When the extent of these building operations is considered, it is surprising that all the extra space under glass is eagerly awaited. This is the more surprising when the excellence of the business during the last six months is considered—Norwood has turned out a quantity of high-grade stock during that time of which the Robert Craig Co. should be proud. Despite that fact, the army of plants all over the place are eagerly clamoring for larger pots and for more room. The crotons, the cyclamens, the begonias, the dracenas, the poinsettias all want, or soon will want, a chance to grow. It is an inspiring sight.

The crotons are the feature of Norwood. They present a magnificent picture of color in all the houses they occupy. Croton Reedii, that handsome and rather difficult variety, fills an entire bench in ready-to-go-out size. After this popular sort, most of the leading varieties are own seedlings. There is Norwood Beauty and Edna, a superb orange dominated sort named after Mr. Craig's daughter; Mrs. Albright, Mr. Battles and many more in every size from the little chap to the grand, pedestal-grown specimens made up in tubs.

The cyclamens cover something like an acre of bench room. The best of them are believed to be a little ahead of anything produced, which is saying a great deal. The begonias, mostly Lorraine and its Lonsdale type, promise well. They are undergoing selection and shifting now.

There are three points of especial interest in the dracenas—a new unnamed variety of great promise that colors well in large specimens; the rank and file, so to speak, of terminalis, Lord Wolseley, Massangeana and others in fine shape; an extra good batch of canes just breaking nicely.

The poinsettias are coming with such wonderful certainty and vigor that they prove their propagation is a science. The big blocks of poinsettias just rooted in the sand, growing in 2-inch pots and growing in 3-inch pots, show a total absence of weaklings or loss by the wayside.

The rara avis of the place is Dieffenbachia Leonei, with its suggestion of the tropics. Nephrolepis Smithii is Paul Berkowitz, rosy and jolly, the picture of health, returned to this city from the south and west this week. Mr. Berkowitz left Atlantic City August 12, reached Houston, Tex., August 14, and sold his company's entire exhibit at the convention on the opening morning. He then visited, successively and successfully, St. Louis, Louisville, Cincinnati and Petersburg, renewing most pleasantly many old acquaintances.

William L. Grover, formerly well known on Ridge avenue, is in town. Mr. Grover, who has been for three and a half years in Los Angeles, Cal., is manager of the floral department for Howard & Smith, florists, nurserymen and seedsmen of that city.

A. H. Pike, who sold his Bryn Mawr florists' business to enlist in the British army, has returned to this city and now is with Alfred M. Campbell.

Morris Hoffman will commence work September 11 with the Philadelphia Cut Flower Co. At this company's store George Aeugle reports the arrival of those magnificent indoor-grown asters that have made a hit for several seasons in September.

Thomas Mitchell will return to the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. September 11.

W. F. Lacroix entertained some forty choice spirits at his home in Buena, N. J., September 3. Three-fourths of the guests were from the Leo Niessen Co. Two Atlantic City express trains, one down and one up, were stopped for the benefit of the visitors, in a way to make that Lunfield man stare. A happy day was spent and three delightful meals enjoyed.

the end of last week, leaving the market bare for several days. Valley continues scarce and there is not much prospect of any large deliveries. This flower maintains its price, despite the fact that the quality is not of the best. Roses are improving in quality and in some grades are more plentiful. White roses are scarce and at times it is hard to get enough good ones to fill orders. The new crop American Beauty roses are beginning to make their appearance and these sell well. Orchids are scarce and the price soars, but their absence is not of any consequence, as there is only an occasional call. A few of the new crop carnations are coming in. Dahlias in the different colors are improving in quality and increasing in quantity.

The Market.

Business has picked up during the last week and had its effect on stock coming in. Beauties continue to be on the short side and the retailers have to depend on Chicago for them. Some medium roses have been coming in, but are cleaned right up as the boxes are opened, such varieties as Russell, Maryland, Ophelia, Killarney and the few Reid and Hoosier Beauty. Short roses are plentiful and inclined to drag. Valley continues to be scarce and usually when one needs it there is none to be had.

No orchids are in the market, but a few shipments to retailers are coming from Brampton, Ont.

Few carnations are to be had and these are not of much account. Asters are plentiful, but the prices are somewhat stiff, $4 per hundred for best. Gladioli still are plentiful and a good buy, being effective for display, lasting well.

Greens of all kinds have been plentiful except cut ferns, which, although the retailers have not felt the shortage, are not arriving in large shipments.

Various Notes.

Hugo Schroeter has a neat window display at his Woodward avenue store, consisting of a pool of goldfish, etc., banked prettily with sea rocks, plants and greens.

Mr. Pautke, formerly in charge of John Breitmeyer's Sons' Mack avenue greenhouses, now in the retail business for himself, reports that everything is going along nicely with him.

Mrs. Gray, at John Breitmeyer's Sons' Park store, continues to spend her week ends at their summer home bled a flower. The last few days conditions have improved. Asters have become more plentiful and the quality is good. Gladioli also are more plentiful and of fine quality. Roses are small and mainly have short stems, but the color and the foliage are good. Business has kept up well and several important weddings are already booked for September.

This appears to be moving month in Detroit. September 1 the Sullivans moved from the store they had occupied at 214 Woodward avenue for fifteen years to a store one block north on the same side of the street, the new number being 268. E. A. Feters will be next in line. He will move from the corner of Woodward and Clifford streets to 17 Adams avenue, east, the new location being about two blocks from the old one. Mr. Feters' new store will be more in the nature of a shop, as it is quite narrow and in a new retail shopping district, together with tea rooms, novelty shops, etc.

sudden splurge helped out considerably Saturday, September 2, and nearly every store force was busy. A large number of small wedding decorations helped out and stock was fairly well cleaned up. Funeral work was a bit quiet during the week. The middle of the week was conspicuous for its heavy rains and hail storms, which did much damage to stock of some of the growers. The hail bruised and cut the outdoor stock badly and gladioli suffered considerably. Some fine ones now are in the market and are used extensively for funeral work as well as for decorative purposes. Carnations are poor and scarce. Asters for the greater part are poor and only a few good ones arrive. Some fine roses arrive, however, and among them are Stanley, Russell, Ophelia, Ward, Sunburst, White Killarney, Killarney, Francis Scott Key and My Maryland. These have been in good demand and have cleared well.

Valley now is scarce. Easter lilies are not overplentiful, but they are of good quality. Sweet peas are inferior and scarce. Gaillardias, coreopsis, hardy hydrangeas, larkspurs and statice are used largely for baskets. Ferns and palms, as well as crocks of mixed plants, sold well during the week. Greens are unusually plentiful, with the exception of smilax. Galax and magnolia leaves are in fairly good demand.

Various Notes.

Visitors last week included the representative of the Knickerbocker Ribbon Co., New York; J. Enwright, of Wertheimer Bros., New York; Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Walker, of Belmont, N. Y., who were returning from a camping trip at Lake George; George Blake, of Bonnet & Blake, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Joseph Murphy recently purchased a new car and is enjoying a good many trips in it.

Mrs. Clarke Vick has returned home from a long vacation in the Adirondack mountains.

Walter Salmon now is in the employ of George B. Hart.

Bertram Elliott, of the George Crook Co., is spending his vacation at Conesus lake, N. Y. He says fishing there is good.

Max Pawliczek has returned from Florida, N. Y., where he spent a few days with his parents.

I wish I could shake hands with you and tell you personally about my good book.

It being impossible to meet every live florist personally, I take this means of telling you of the catalogue you should have in order to sell Funeral Designs, Wedding Flowers and Baskets of Flowers.

Our catalogue is built on more than a score of years' experience selling flowers. That experience condensed into a book that will meet with the approval of the Best Florists.

The seed farm of James Vick's Sons now has the appearance of a gay summer garden. Many acres are one mass of blooms and present a wonderful picture of color. Ten acres of phloxes, as well as acres of salpiglossis, are planted in separate colors on the trial grounds. The large American flag formed by asters is an inspiring sight and is attracting large crowds. The company is making a good exhibit of annuals at the exposition and flower show, including a splendid collection of gladioli. All the men recently spent a day at Manitou beach.

mense quantity of asters, which sell rapidly. His gladioli are in good shape and move easily. He also has a good crop of peaches.

William Hooper spent the week end at Watkins Glen.

The Rochester Floral Co. had a unique window display for a study in black and white. Jet-black vases of many shapes were filled with white asters. The effect was most pleasing.

Owing to the threatened railway strike and the uncertainty of delivery, out-of-town orders last week were badly handicapped. H. J. H.

PITTSBURGH, PA.

The Market.

We are having most delightfully cool weather, but what we need is rain. There has not been any marked change in business conditions. Flowers, so far as asters are concerned, are scarce, and there are just about enough gladioli coming in to take care of the demand at a fair price. Lilies have been on the short side and valley is not seen at all. Roses are arriving more plentifully every day, including some fine Mock, Maryland, Killarney and White Killarney. There are large quantities of short-stemmed stock of all kinds. Beauties have shortened until there now are not enough of them arriving to be considered at all.

The wholesalers clean up nicely every day. They report the volume of business done larger than in other years, even though there is a shortage of stock. Retailers are busy; they have had good funeral work. They have considerable trouble in procuring valley, as it is extremely short and the growers in this section are entirely out of it.

Various Notes.

The Florists' Club held its meeting September 5, at the Fort Pitt hotel.

E. McGrath and Edward Blind have returned from an eastern trip, in which they combined business with pleasure.

Most of the boys are back on their jobs and the stores are now beginning to look natural again. Clarke.

TERRE HAUTE, IND.

William F. Gude, Adolph Gude, Ernst Gude and Mr. and Mrs. C. Schellhorn, of Washington, D. C., en route home from the Houston convention, stopped off for a short visit with Heini's and to see the new Davis Gardens, which the visitors said were among the finest they had ever seen. They reported a fine time at Houston and a satisfactory meeting.

Wunker & Sons have finished planting carnations and Fred now is in Michigan, resting and getting in form for the fall trade.

The J. W. Davis Co. has finished planting two of the new 75x666 feet houses to cukes. Material is on the ground for another house of the same size, which will be completed by December 1, making six houses, all by the Lord & Burnham Co. About seven acres are already covered with glass and the range is only half completed. The company is adding 300 horsepower to the boiler capacity and has finished a concrete manure bin that holds twenty carloads.

Henry Graham, of South Seventeenth street, has one of the best kept fronts in the city. His lawn and flower beds are first-class advertisements.

John G. Heini has been elected president of the Morris Bank, a new $100,000 institution organized here.

The prospects of a railroad strike did not worry Thomas Stephenson any, as there are coal mines across the road from his greenhouses; in fact, he gets his coal almost for the hauling.

Fred G. Heini is building an attractive residence at Davis Gardens.

William Dinkle, a plant and vegetable grower, is adding 100-foot additions to each of his five houses. He reports a most satisfactory season.

Cowan Bros. have a steady run of funeral work that uses all their stock.

Heini & Weber are busy as bees shipping Boston ferns and pelargoniums, both of which are specialties with them.

N. B. Stover has returned from an auto trip through northern Indiana.

W. G. Matthews and party, of Dayton, O., stopped here last week long enough to put air in their tires while en route to Evansville, Ind. Mr. Matthews said that when it was 100 in the shade it was too hot to visit greenhouses.

C. J. Houk, for the last two years manager of the Rosery, has resigned and will locate in the west for himself. Mr. Drayton will succeed him. This concern has just been incorporated.

Greenhouses For Sale or Rent

Four steel constructed King houses, three 18x150 feet, one 22x150 feet; built four years, in A-1 condition; two American Radiator Company sectional boilers; large potting house; side-track alongside plant; one or two acres of land, black loam or muck. Write for terms to

THE GREENING NURSERY CO., Monroe, Mich.

FOR SALE Greenhouse Bargain

11 acres rich land, on railroad, edge of city, 225,000 people; handy to trolley. 3 first-class new houses (about 17,000 sq. ft.), steam heat. Stocked with carnations, mums and sweet peas, all fully equipped, prime running order and making money. Ready wholesale market for everything grown. Cosy modern bungalow, 5 rooms, bath, furnace, electric light; other business requires owner's attention. Will sell at sacrifice of thousands under recent cost to produce. Very reasonable terms.

MARTIN & COOKE, Columbus, Ohio

FOR SALE

Greenhouses; 25,000 sq. ft. of glass. Although an old establishment, it has recently been remodeled and brought up to the minute in equipment. Three of the houses are brand new, with a spacious display room attached.

Plant and cut flowers are grown, for which the location offers an outlet in both the wholesale and retail market.

The owners have outside interests which make a sale of this desirable property necessary at a bargain. Price unusually low with attractive terms. For full particulars, inquire

FOR SALE

A chance that comes only once in a lifetime. A 15-acre wholesale Dahlia, Gladiolus and Peony business, right at the door of the great city of Milwaukee. One commission man handles the entire output in cut flowers. My soil produces the best cut flowers that come to the market. It is a 25-minute run to the salesroom. You must inspect it to appreciate the opportunity. This is a double-paying business—flowers in summer and fall; bulbs in winter and spring. Reason for selling is that I wish to retire.

H. W. KOERNER, Sta. B, Milwaukee, Wis.

FOR SALE

$700 buys three hot water heated greenhouses of about 3000 ft. of glass, in manufacturing town; no other greenhouse nearer than 18 miles. An opening you cannot afford to let pass. Particulars on request.

HARVEY B. SNOW, Camden, N. Y.

For Sale

A profitable retail greenhouse business, consisting of 5 greenhouses, 8000 ft. double-thick glass, in good repair; large modern salesroom and office, in a live New England city; established and run by the same party for 16 years; sales and net income this year largest in its history; mums, carnations, etc., planted all ready for a profitable winter's business; price very reasonable; personal reasons for selling; no triflers need write. Address No. 376, care Florists' Review, Chicago.

FOR SALE—CHEAP

11,000 square feet of glass, consisting of four greenhouses, two acres of land well stocked, situated in fastest growing town in eastern Pennsylvania. Worth investigating.

The Market.

Last week was slightly better. There was not a great deal of business, it is true, but September 2 there developed a clean-up. Good asters brought about $2 to $2.50 per hundred. Of these there were only limited receipts, and the blooms sold quickly. The same may be said of the best gladioli. Some claimed they were able to obtain $3 per hundred for these, but $2 seemed to be the final quotation of the week and from this to 50 cents for the poorest of the shipments. Dahlias do not yet show much improvement. So far there are few carnations and they are small. The price seldom goes above $1 per hundred. Their improvement will be gradual and the shipments rapidly augmented after September 15.

Chrysanthemums are few and the general quality of most of the Golden Glows still is below par. The best are not selling above $2 per dozen. Valley had its ups and downs last week, the prices vacillating between $4 and $8 per hundred, but $5 was the closing quotation; of course we refer to the select stock. The prices of lilies, too, fluctuated considerably, $5 to $10 per hundred covering the extremes, with $6 per hundred the final value by general consent. The quality of the lilies now in the market certainly is indicative of expert growing. Orchids still are scarce and good gigas are worth $1 each and sometimes more. Oncidiums are here and are conspicuous in window displays.

There is an abundance of mediocre cosmos. Tritomas are fine and sell at 50 to 60 cents per dozen. Hydrangea paniculata is at its best and the coloring is most beautiful. Clematis paniculata is in full bloom. Celosia is here; also delphiniums and sunflowers of high and low degree.

Last, but not least, roses. There is as yet no surplus of the selects. There are fine Sunburst, Ophelia, Mock, Ward, Russell and Stanley roses that sell at $6 to $8 per hundred for the best; then on down to the lower grades that go as low as 50 cents per hundred. Beauties are improving in color, size and stem.

Various Notes.

Do not forget the first meeting of the New York Florists' Club, September 11, at the club's rooms in the Grand Opera house.

September 26 and the dahlia show are only three weeks away. President Vincent writes that the weather for dahlia growing has been far from favorable, but that he expects the exhibition will be a great success. The Lawrence Garden Club has requested Mr. Vincent to lecture September 14.

are short of stem and of only fair quality. Only the best bring good prices. Russells and Beauties are in greatest demand at present. Carnations have shown some improvement of late, but the market is short of really good stock. Asters are coming in freely and sell at good prices. Tuberose spikes and hydrangeas are abundant, but low in price. Gladioli, too, are crowding the market, but they, nevertheless, hold up in price. Golden Glow chrysanthemums are coming in, but they are somewhat too early for the demand. Cosmos and dahlias are arriving and are selling well. Valley still is scarce. Easter lilies were in good demand last week. Plumosus, Sprengeri, adiantum, smilax and ferns were in good demand throughout the week.

W. W. Ohlweiler, who is spending his summer vacation with Mrs. Ohlweiler at Bethel, Conn., writes: "Send me a copy of The Review; I am hungry for news from home."

Adolph Jaenicke, gardener for Clarence Howard, resigned his position and September 2 left with his family for Colorado Springs, Colo. He will enter the employ of the Penrose estate, for which he will lay out a 1,200-acre park and a 4,000-acre ranch for pleasure grounds. Mr. Jaenicke has the best wishes of a host of friends here.

A. G. Fehr, of Belleville, Ill., was a recent visitor in the wholesale district. Mr. Fehr expects to complete planting his carnations this week. He and Mrs. Fehr intend to take a short trip south soon.

The sympathy of the trade was extended Edwin Denker, of St. Charles, Mo., in the loss of his father, Capt. H. B. Denker, who died August 30, after a long illness of cancer of the face. Captain Denker was 77 years old and was ex-mayor of St. Charles. The funeral was held August 31. Many beautiful pieces were sent by the local trade.

John J. Burke, formerly in the retail business, has accepted a position with Vandervoort's floral department. Mr. Burke started his new duties September 4.

The Missouri Pottery & Supply Co., which makes standard pots in all sizes, is experiencing a busy season. Paul Reden, president of the company, says that many advance orders have been booked for both local and out-of-town trade. his duties as buyer in the wholesale market last week.

Adolph Steidle, son of John Steidle, who was with Vandervoort's floral department for the last two years, has resigned to accept a position with F. H. Weber. Young Steidle is noted for his artistic work.

The new building of the St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co. is nearing completion and members of the company say that they expect to move in at the end of this week and to start business about September 15.

Fred Strohmeyer, of the Ayres Floral Co., August 31, was married to Miss Ella Weber, a niece of Fred C. Weber. The happy couple are spending a honeymoon up north. They will reside at 3510 Humphrey street.

Frank Gorly and Oscar Ruff, who constitute the membership committee of the Retail Florists' Association, are doing great work. The membership now numbers fifty and they expect to add twenty-five before the next meeting, September 18.

Roland E. Hammer, son-in-law of Fred C. Weber and until lately in his employ, now is representing the Velie Automobile Co., of this city. Wilfert Beneke, formerly associated with his father, J. J. Beneke, also is with this company.

Raymond Welty, for the last three years in the cut flower department at C. A. Kuehn's wholesale house, resigned his position last week, to join the St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co. He will have charge of the cut flower department.

That fine job of interior painting at Waldbart's is the work of David Banzhoff. Count Von Hoffman says Mr. Banzhoff is a wonderful painter, even if he does use both hands to do the work.

Everybody is busy at the Missouri Botanical Garden preparing for the fall and winter season. Dr. George T. Moore, director of the garden, has returned from a vacation spent at Devils Lake, N. D. The position of assistant botanist has been filled by J. C. Uphof, formerly assistant professor of botany at the University of Arizona. A competitive examination for garden scholarships was held September 2. Ernest J. Palmer, plant collector for the garden, spent a few weeks here arranging the plants collected during the early part of the year. W. W. Ohlweiler, superintendent, will return from his eastern trip the latter part of this month.

Henry C. Ostertag, of Ostertag Bros., September 4 was appointed police commissioner by Governor Major. The appointment was well received by the general public, as well as by the local florists. Mr. Ostertag was busy Labor day receiving congratulations from his many friends. He is 49 years of age and an ardent Democrat. J. J. B.

The Market.

August cut flower business in Boston proved to be remarkably good; in fact, I doubt if prices were ever more satisfactory to growers. September opened with a continuation of satisfactory trade and, while roses are becoming somewhat more abundant and have, as a consequence, shown some shrinkage in values, there is considerable surplus of anything such as usually exists at this season. In some flowers there is a decided shortage. Trade in Beauty roses is not heavy, but the various hybrid teas, which are now coming in rather more freely, are still cleaning up well at $1 to $10 per hundred, with some fancies bringing $12. Some short-stemmed carnations are coming in, but these compare unfavorably with asters, although bringing $1 to $2 per hundred. Gladioli are still in unwieldy supply; America still is the best seller. Good spikes realize $3 per hundred. Asters still are in undersupply and never before brought such prices here. Good flowers make $2 to $3 easily, while fancies have been disposed of at double these prices. Some fine indoor dis-budded flowers actually have sold at $8 to $12 per hundred!

Some fair sweet peas are coming in, grown in Maine and New Hampshire. Lilies this week are selling particularly well. Lily of the valley is scarce and selling from $4 to $8 per hundred. Good cattleyas are worth $1 each, with few available, and some splendid gardenias are seen. With the passing of hardy gypsophila, trade in asparagus has received a stimulus. The pot plant trade, outside of ferns, still is in a semi-comatose state.

Various Notes.

The annual exhibition of children's gardens' products at Horticultural hall September 2 and 3 brought out a grand display of fruits, vegetables, wild flowers and garden flowers, and the large attendance of the public testified to the interest the public takes in these exhibitions.

At Patrick Welch's last week I saw the finest asters of the season. Some of these grown under glass have stems three to four feet long, had been disbudded and carried grand flowers. There also are some grand gardenias, such as Boston rarely sees. Valley continues scarce. Mr. Welch returned from his vacation at Old Orchard Beach this week. Norris F. Comley, of Burlington, has finished hauling 1,800 tons of coal from Boston in auto trucks. It took him fifteen days to get in his full season's supply. He uses soft coal, mixed with hard coal screenings. Mr. Comley has found it more economical to haul the coal from Boston than from a local freight depot with teams, as in former years.

William H. Elliott, from his Brighton and Madbury, N. H., establishments, is getting a fine crop of Miller, Ophelia, Cecile Brunner, Stanley, Old Gold, Kaiserin and Beauty roses. A. R. Hutson, head salesman for Mr. Elliott, suffers severely from hay fever while the goldenrod is in season.

In the windows of Wax Bros. last week I noticed fine displays of butterflies along with such flowers as gentians, gladioli, nymphaeas and salpiglossis. For the Benedict-Gorham wedding at Duxbury, Mass., September 2, they had a large order. The bride's bouquet was of valley, white orchids and roses. The bridesmaids had bouquets of Kaiserin roses and the maid of honor had Miller roses. Samuel Wax, spending his vacation at Grand Lake Stream, Me., has had great sport fishing and three fine boxes of salmon and pickerel have arrived for his relatives and friends.

The Welch Bros. Co. has moved over to its new quarters at 262 Devonshire street, but will occupy the old stand, 226 Devonshire street, until October 1. Business continues good.

H. R. Comley reports a good number of wedding orders for September. He has three in Maine this week. I noted in his windows some fine fruit of Monstera deliciosa, a nice display of fancy caladiums, Bouvardia Humboldtii and Campanula isophylla alba.

John McFarland, of North Easton, has 2,000 6-inch pots of poinsettias looking well and a larger number of smaller size. He is cutting a good lot of long-florum lilies and will have plenty of lily of the valley in a few days.

J. J. Slattery, of Galvin's staff, is spending his vacation at Green Harbor, Mass. All other members of the force now are home from their vacations. Both wedding and funeral orders are arriving in goodly numbers.

Arthur Carr, a popular salesman at the Flower Exchange, has been wearing a broad smile of late. It is a 10-

Henry Penn has returned from an enjoyable vacation, mostly spent camping out in Maine. He visited Lakes Saranac, Placid and Champlain and spent a day or two at the Plattsburg training camp. H. Hartford, the manager at Penn's, is spending a vacation at Hubbardston, Mass. An unusually large number of wedding orders are being booked. Some will be quite elaborate affairs. In the window decorations tritomas, Hydrangea paniculata and gladioli are mostly used at present.

Paul C. Regan, of Patrick Welch's staff, will be married September 10 to Miss May Connors. The exact time and place, as well as the future home and honeymoon, are not being spread abroad.

The Boston Florists' Bowling Association will hold a meeting at the Flower Exchange and make arrangements for the contests to be held during the coming fall and winter.

In the window display of the Houghton-Gorney Co. this week I noted one large vase of Tamarix Gallica and Amaryllis Belladonna, which was quite effective. Another of Lilium speciosum album and Liatris pycnostachya also was quite striking.

A. Leuthy, of Roslindale, says fall orders for plants are coming in well.
He is uncertain as to receipts of palms, azaleas, etc., from Belgium. Freight are now so high, he says, that they amount to much more than the cost of the plants. W. N. Craig.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich.;
Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

THERE are rumors of important changes as impending in Chicago seed and bulb houses.

IT is not a question of whether or not seed crops will be short this season, but of how short.

THE autumn call for seeds in the south is said to be unusually good, especially for beet and turnip.

S. F. LEONARD, Chicago, was 64 years of age September 4. He has recently returned from a tour of the Pacific coast seed growing sections.

NEW ENGLAND seed growers have had too wet a season, middle western growers too dry and hot. On the whole the eastern crops are the better.

BULB prices in Holland are making sharp advances, especially tulips, for hyacinths are much less strong. For instance, cable quotations on La Reine are almost uniformly $5, where sales as low as $2.50 last season are on record.

WM. H. MIHM, general business manager of J. Bolgiano & Son, and a party of friends motored from Baltimore through the Alleghany mountains, where they have been the guests for a few days of Charles J. Bolgiano at his summer home near Mountain Lake Park, Md.

THE Henry Field Seed Co., of Shenandoah, Ia., had a large exhibit at the state fair at Des Moines last month. Rather than risk sending the exhibit by freight, and as express was so expensive, the company decided to send the whole outfit, men, exhibit and all, overland by auto truck. The distance to Des Moines was 160 miles, but the trip was made in less than ten hours and the stock delivered in better shape than if it had been sent by express.

ALTHOUGH the late Henry A. Salzer, of La Crosse, Wis., held property in almost every state in the Union and in Canada, diligent search thus far has failed to reveal a will. John P. Salzer, brother of the deceased, is to be appointed special administrator as soon as bond is filed, when further search will be made in a private vault at the bank. The deceased, who was president of the John A. Salzer Seed Co., was killed in an automobile accident August 22.

BRITISH LOSE FRENCH BULBS.

The bulb market at Ollioules, France, has been further tightened by the loss at sea about August 15 of the greater part of the season's exports to England, the bulbs going down in the Mediterranean when the S. S. Savonian was torpedoed by a German submarine. It is impossible that the stock be replaced this season, as practically all the crop already had been sold and was afloat by the time the news of the loss was received. It still is possible, however, to pick up small quantities of undersized bulbs and the price of these has been materially strengthened.

FRENCH BULBS ARE IN.

MORE DUTCH BULBS.

The S. S. Ryndam, which docked at New York last week, brought a larger shipment of bulbs than any heretofore received; indeed, more than twice as large as the two previous shipments, and still the delay caused by bad weather and scarcity of labor in Holland is shown by the fact that the arrivals to date do not represent one-fifth of last year's imports through the port of New York. SEED PACKET CUTS AS "ART."

In the vaunted works of Art,
The master-stroke is Nature's part.
—Emerson.

A decision of the United States District court for the Western District of New York gives the same legal status to a distinctive chromolithograph of a pumpkin as a similarly printed picture of Henry VIII. This conclusion does not rest in any degree on the fact that both subjects are "some punkins," but rather upon the copyright laws of the United States.

Plaintiff sued to compel defendant to account for infringement of certain copyrighted lithographs of carrots, beets, cabbages, radishes, etc. Defendant resisted the suit on the ground that the illustrations were not registered in the Patent Office, that some of them were published without the copyright mark, that they were not the subject of monopoly by plaintiff, and that no damages were shown. Decree was entered in plaintiff's favor. (Stecher Lithographic Co. vs. Dunston Lithograph Co., 233 Federal Reporter, 601, published August 31, 1916.)

After reviewing pertinent federal statutes, the court determined that such illustrations fall within the provisions of the law which authorizes copyrights for chromos, and works of fine art, and were not required to be registered in the Patent Office as a mere label. "It makes no difference," said the court, "that the pictures in suit are intended for advertising articles of commerce."

* * * It is enough that the evidence shows that the pictures in their details, design and combination of lines and colors originated with the complainant and are, in fact, pictorial illustrations or works connected with the fine arts. There is believed to be no force in the contention that the productions in question were merely printing or labels.

* * * The Supreme court makes a clear distinction between labels placed upon articles manufactured or sold merely to describe or designate such articles and labels serving some other purpose than simply to advertise the subject to which they are attached."

Finding that the only illustrations which had been issued by plaintiff without notice of copyright were contained on a few sample sheets sent out to the trade and that these did not come to defendant's attention until after the infringement, the court further holds that there was no loss of the copyright for failure to give proper notice of it.

On the aspect of the case most important to seedsmen who use distinctive illustrations, the court concludes:

"The defendant, of course, had an equal right with complainant to make

SPENCER SWEET PEAS

NEW EARLY-FLOWERING LONG-SEASON SPENCERS

Early Spring Maid—Color light pink on a cream ground, and the blossoms have the same splendid characteristics of Mrs. Hugh Dickson for a florist's flower. It is a most effective flower and carries a great wealth of blossoms borne in fours on long stems.
25 seeds 25c, tr. pkt. (¼ oz.) $1.00.

Early Melody—Rose pink on white ground, closely resembling Countess Spencer and Hercules. The flowers are borne on long stems and mostly four large well-waved blossoms to each stem.
25 seeds 25c, tr. pkt. (¼ oz.) $1.00.

Early Heather Bell—Flowers are very large, borne in fours and threes on long, stout stems; beautiful, bold Spencer form. The color is a rich but pleasing mauve; after standing in water the color becomes a beautiful mauve lavender.
25 seeds 25c, tr. pkt. (¼ oz.) $1.25.

Early Snow Flake—Best early-flowering white-seeded Spencer. Very large and of the best waved Spencer form. The flowers are borne in wonderful profusion on long stems.
15 seeds 25c, tr. pkt. (¼ oz.) $1.25.

Early Song Bird—The flower is light pink on white ground, and borne on long stems.
Nearly every one carries four large blossoms.
25 seeds 25c, tr. pkt. (¼ oz.) $1.00.

New Early-flowering or Winter-blooming GIANT PANSIES

An entirely new and distinct strain of Pansies. The main advantage of these new Pansies over all hitherto existing pansies is the extreme earliness of flowering and its unusual hardiness, which enables them to withstand quite severe winters and to bloom right on into the summer. Sown at the same time as other Pansies, they begin flowering the early part of March or as soon as the snow is off the ground, many times having four or five large flowers to a plant, when all other Pansies are only showing buds. The flowers are large, well formed and fragrant. They are highly recommended for Autumn planting on graves and for very early bedding, as well as for early cut flowers.

14. WINTER SUN. Golden yellow, eye. 16. CELESTIAL QUEEN. Light or sky blue.
15. ICE KING. Silvery white, with eye. 17. CHARM OF MARCH. Dark velvety blue.
18. MIXED. The above four colors with other shades and variations. Each color separate or mixed.

500 seeds 50c., 1000 seeds $1.00, ¼ oz. $2.00, ½ oz. $3.75, 1 oz. $15.00.

20. PRINCESS. The New Upright Pansy. This strain is entirely distinct from all others. It is absolutely compact, upright growing, and extremely weatherproof, enduring many storms without damage to its flower. The flowers are mostly blotched and frilled like the Masterpiece, of good form and heavy, velvety texture, on heavy stems carried well above the foliage. Attractive by the brilliancy of its colors.

500 seeds 20c., 1000 seeds 35c., ¼ oz. $1.00, ½ oz. $2.00, 1 oz. $7.50

22. KENILWORTH MIXTURE. A collection of beautiful colors and markings.
24. KENILWORTH SHOW. An extra fine strain of immense flowers.
26. KENILWORTH CUT FLOWER MIX-TURE. Has long stems and large flowers.
28. MASTERPIECE. A large flower with curled, wavy petals.
30. THREE AND FIVE BLOTCHED FLOWERS. Of rich velvety colors and great substance.

32. PARISIAN. Enormous blotched flowers, very showy.
34. BRONZE. A mixture of bronze, brown and copper shades.
42. ADONIS. Light blue, white center.
82. ORCHID FLOWERED. A mixture of rose, pink, bluish mauve, fawn, light brown, orange and chamolais.
118. PSYCHE. Curled white, blotched.
138. WHITE. Large, satiny white.
140. WHITE, with violet blotch.
142. YELLOW. Large golden yellow.

PRICES OF KENILWORTH PANSY SEED:

VEGETABLES AND FRUITS DEPARTMENT

HEAD LETTUCE UNDER GLASS.

Pests in the Lettuce House.

In The Review of August 31 the writer gave an account of his method of growing head lettuce under glass, but had no space for a discussion of the fighting of pests and diseases or the selection of suitable varieties of the vegetable. A few words on these phases of the subject may now be of interest.

There are some insects that attack lettuce, but a little vigilance in prevention will do more than any elaborate cures. One of the most persistent pests is a green worm about an inch long. It is so exactly the color of the lettuce leaves as to be unobserved except by the closest scrutiny and it also remains on the under side of the leaves. Frequently, therefore, the first evidence of its presence is a hole which it has eaten through the leaf, spoiling it absolutely. It is astonishing what damage worms of this sort can do in a single night if not checked, often going from one plant to another in the row and eating just the tenderest leaves of each.

An Ounce of Prevention.

After experimenting with various kinds of insect powders and fumigations, I discovered a simple and effective way of discouraging these pests by putting one pint of powdered tobacco, such as is ordinarily used for fumigating, into a gallon of cold water, mixing well and applying by means of an ordinary sprinkling can to the plants in the evening. Being anxious about the effect of this treatment on the plants, I went at it rather cautiously, but at the end of a week, when my stock showed no ill effects and the worms had entirely disappeared, I considered the plan a success. Now, as soon as the lettuce has been transplanted for the first time, I use this tobacco liquid once a week and find it an excellent ounce of prevention. I omit it after the second transplanting has taken place. It is not necessary to soak the ground with the tobacco water, although an even application is desirable.

Rainbow Freesias

MANY BRIGHT COLORS

RAINBOW FREESIAS are great money-makers for all florists, whether they grow for their own retail trade or for the wholesale market. Moreover, the habit of plant is branching, each bulb giving two to three flower spikes with stems long enough for all floral purposes. The mixture offered includes several shades of yellow, orange, lavender and pink, all harmonizing with each other when bunched together.

Aphides and Cutworms.

Another enemy that sometimes makes its appearance after the lettuce is heading is the tiny insect, the aphid, which has an appetite out of all proportion to its size. One day you may not notice any sign of these pests and the next day you will see an army of them actively engaged in doing their best to dispose of your lettuce crop. The best way to combat these is with a light fumigation of cyanide of potassium, but as this is a dangerous piece of work, owing to the fumes of the gas being extremely poisonous to human beings as well as to the aphid, it should be done for the first time under the supervision of someone who thoroughly understands the process.

Cutworms often attack the young plant roots, and when I see a plant wilted in the morning I immediately dig it up and thus often catch the worm, or worms, at work and kill them. The easiest way to get rid of them, however, is to mix some Paris green, bran and sugar with enough water to make a pasty mixture, and sprinkle it along the edges of the beds. The cutworms are attracted to any sweet substance and in this case the Paris green will do the rest.

Decay of the Leaves.

There is a sort of so-called disease that has the effect of making the lettuce leaves decay until the whole plant is spoiled, but my experience indicates that this is caused by water being applied to the leaves and allowed to stand with the hot sun on it and without any air. By taking special precautions along this line I have been rewarded by the disappearance of this trouble among my stock.

As lettuce thrives in a cool atmosphere, it can be grown in greenhouses that are too old to provide sufficient protection, on account of the worn rafters, for most plants in the winter. In fact, it is preferable to use old houses when practicable, for this reason. Hotbeds are used for growing fall and

Pasadena, Cal.—Nothing more elaborate in the line of floral decorating has been done in Pasadena than was done for Candidate and Mrs. Hughes on the occasion of their recent visit. Henry A. Siebrecht, Jr., the Fifth avenue florist of New York, who is stopping at Hotel Maryland, suggested the floral scheme and the hotel management had him take charge of the work. The table of honor was decorated in semblance of the state of California. The large round table had a wreath five feet in diameter of September Morn rose, which originated in this state. A larger wreath was festooned with Cecile Brunner roses and maidenhair ferns. In the center of the wreaths was placed a large gold vase, which was filled with Ophelia roses and festooned with maidenhair ferns. The long table had centerpieces of oblong design, while large vases about the sides of the apartment were filled with tall, graceful plumes of red, white and blue.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

August chrysanthemums are never a great attraction here and the present year is no exception. Golden Glow, October Frost and a few other precocious varieties are in the market. Those from the home growers are fairly good, but the stock shipped from San Francisco looks as though it came through the Golden Gate in a heavy fog. Asters are beginning to lose out, but carnations still are plentiful and good. Gladioli are fine and dahlias are fair for this season. They will probably improve again when the later plants come in. Indoor roses are improving a little, some of the cut from the young stock being of fine texture but short of stem. Outdoor Sunburst has appeared in good shape; also Radiance and Lady Ursula, a pretty light pink that does well outdoors in hot weather. Centaureas are useful for filling in funeral work, but they are not so good as those of a week or two ago. Valley is scarce, as are orchids, but the demand is not great. Small plants of Begonia Chatelaine and cyclamens are attractive, and the price is not large. There is plenty of greens of all kinds and ferns and palms are abundant.

We are much pleased with the results of our plant advertisements in The Review; orders have come in freely and from a wide range of territory.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

The month of August was a fairly good one, taking the San Francisco market as a whole. There was plenty of good stock and the demand caused few complaints. Some kinds of cut flowers did not show the excellent quality they do when at their prime, but there were many other really fine flowers to substitute with in most cases. The only real shortage occurred in orchids, valley and gardenias. Roses continue to improve, but there still is considerable poor stock on the market, which finds a slow demand. The cut of baby roses is better, both in quantity and quality, and good Killarney roses are being received. Chrysanthemums are more plentiful each day, mostly white and yellow, although some nice pink varieties are beginning to arrive. The demand is fairly good, but prices are not up to expectations.

Good carnations are scarce, with prices about normal; the lower grades are extremely cheap. There is a splendid cut of Lilium tigrinum, which moves without much difficulty. Quantities of Dahlia Growers' Association acted as judges. They were Arthur Twitchett, of this city; C. S. Quick, of Berkeley, and Leslie E. Doolittle, of Pacific Grove. Besides the prize exhibits, which were open to amateurs only, Frank Pelicano, made a fine display of his 1915 seedling, which took first prize at the P. P. I. E. last year, and a number of his other fine seedlings. He was granted honorary mention.

D. Raymond, of the Garden City Pottery Co., San Jose, Cal., is preparing to entertain a big crowd September 10, the date for the next field day of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society, which is to be held at his place. He says the Southern Pacific railroad makes excursion rates for such trips and that a good many will no doubt go in automobiles. He promises to provide plenty to eat and a good time for everybody, families included.

A committee has been appointed to study the methods employed at the fruit, vegetable and fish markets of this city, with a view to placing the flower market on a more satisfactory basis for both wholesalers and retailers. The trade expects a report within a week or ten days.

Joseph Proietti has a large cut of late amaryllis, which shows good quality and sells well. He still is bringing in some good gladioli.

Arthur Zirkman, representing the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, has been booking orders here for florists' supplies.

L. Uziek has returned to duty at Joseph's after a pleasant vacation trip to Lake Tahoe.

Alfred Cuneo, one of Joseph's popular salesmen, is receiving the congratulations of his friends upon his marriage August 26 to Miss Lena Nesland. It is understood that in his excitement he forgot to get the license, which delayed the ceremony about two hours.

P. Ferrari has been making extensive improvements at his place south of town. He has built several new houses, giving him one of the largest rose outfits in this vicinity, and he is getting a fine crop. He now is starting a new range of twelve houses, which he will devote to orchids, gardenias, cyclamens and other stock.

C. Kooyman is bringing in some nice Beauty roses. He reports business picking up nicely.

The difficulty in raising this grand plant from untreated seed is well known. For many years George Southard, of Redlands, has treated his seed and can absolutely guarantee at least 90 per cent germination. The Southard process consists of removing the glutinous seal with which this seed is coated in the natural condition so that instead of waiting two or three years, as in the past, growers of this noble plant can obtain seedlings in two months. The Market.

From all reports available business for August was better than that of last year's August. The increase principally is due to a heavier demand for funeral work, but it is evident that general conditions have improved. Last year the California fairs brought a flood of tourists to the coast and there were a number of conventions held here, all of which resulted in additional business. These factors were missed this year, so the gain in other lines has been considerable. Last week the weather was not so warm as that of the previous week, though there were some days when shade was necessary for comfort.

Various Notes.

The store force of the Martin & Forbes Co. is wondering where Bachie Normart, the driver of the delivery car, spent his vacation, as he gained such strength and activity that he broke one of the large plates of glass in the refrigerator the first day after his return. Bachie is reticent as to where he went or what happened to him.

spent at Seaside. Carl Gardner is receiving congratulations over the birth of a fine baby boy August 30.

B. O. Sawyer, for several years an employee of the Portland Seed Co., has for the last three years been with Howard & Smith, of Los Angeles. He spent his summer vacation at his home here.

Miss Minnie Goodale, of the store of the Hoyt Bros. Co., Spokane, spent a few days here in August and last week W. S. Hoyt visited Portland.

A. J. Wilson went to Long Beach with his family; R. C. Gehr to Seaside, and A. Alenius took a camping trip up the Columbia river highway. The Wilson, Crout & Gehr Co. has completed three of the six houses planned for erection this fall. The houses are constructed of materials taken from the old Pfunder range. The cedar sash-bars were remilled and shortened and have proved serviceable for use with pipe frames.

Mrs. M. Fichheimer, of the Floral Studio, takes pride in arranging flowers in original designs. Last week she showed a piece for a table center which represented a dame of the days of hoop skirts. The flowers were arranged in the style of those days. S. W. W.

SPOKANE, WASH.

Various Notes.

The outlook for the coming winter is unusually good and all tradesmen seem optimistic. This feeling undoubtedly has its origin and support in the unusual prosperity of this particular section, surrounded as we are by one of the greatest and richest wheat countries in the world, by wonderfully productive fruit farms and by an inexhaustible wealth of minerals in the mountains that lie about us. Spokane is the geographical and, therefore, logical, center of a great wealth-producing territory, and the florists feel that of the millions of dollars coming into our city a few dollars will find their way into the flower store cash registers. Preparatory to handling the increase of business, many of the retailers either have provided new quarters or are enlarging their old stores.

The Hoyt Bros. Co. is having changes made at its Post street store that will add materially to the floor space. Additional balcony space also will be provided, to be largely used for display of basket ware. The large cooler, in which ice now is used, will be operated by artificial refrigeration.

Jack Burt seems to be doing well in his store on Lincoln street. Last June he bought the retail business, including store, stock and furnishings, of Burnette Bros., and has since been conducting the business under the name of Jack Burt's Flower Shop.

Miss Winifred Doyle, formerly bookkeeper for A. J. Burt, was married August 23 to Wilfred C. Dumas. The ceremony took place in Saint Aloysius' church. The decorations were made under the direction of Emil Stapleton, decorator for A. J. Burt. The couple will make their future home at Marble, Wash.

The Spokane Greenhouse Co., of Marshall, Wash., is enlarging its range by the addition of one house 35x150 feet, which will be devoted to palms and ferns. This company has been bringing into the market some unusually fine Ophelia roses and reports that all stock is doing well, especially the 6 and 7-inch cyclamens. One of the men, Robert Welch, had the misfortune to fall through a greenhouse roof, while glazing, and cut a long gash on his forearm. He has been in the hospital for nearly a week.

The coast cities seem to have an at-Lavender Nora, Lavender Queen (same as Anita Wehrman), at 50c oz. VENUS, $1.50 oz. Bohemian Girl, $2.00 oz. Less in pound lots.

All other varieties will be harvested soon. Ask for complete list. You can get almost all those varieties in my original packets from A. L. Randall Co., Chicago; R. J. Irwin, New York; S. S. We were certainly pleased with the results secured from your Seed last year and florists who visited the University greenhouses said they were the finest sweet peas they had ever seen. They made an unusually strong growth and produced great quantities of blooms.

WARNING:—There are or will be advertised many so-called new Winter Spencers. I have seen many new names on the Exhibition tables, but by careful examination all were identical with my older Winter Orchid, years in commerce, excepting the Yarrava. NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSEYMEN.

President, John Watson, Newark, N. Y.; Vice-president, Lloyd O. Stark, Louisiana, Mo.; Secretary and General Manager, Curtis Nye Smith, Boston, Mass.; Treasurer, Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.

At the closing session of the thirtieth annual convention of the Association of American Cemetery Superintendents, held August 22 to 24 at Norfolk, Va., W. B. Jones, of Pittsburgh, Pa., defeated George W. Creasy, of Salem, Mass., for the office of secretary-treasurer. As reported in last week's account of the convention, R. A. Kesterson, of Knoxville, Tenn., and W. N. Rudd, of Chicago, were acclaimed president and vice-president, respectively, neither of them having any opposition.

SOUTHERN ASSOCIATION MEETS.

At its annual convention, at Atlanta, Ga., August 30 and 31, the Southern Nurserymen's Association elected the following officers for the coming year:

President—Harry Nicholson, of Winchester, Tenn.

Vice-president—O. Y. Fraser, of Huntsville, Ala.

Secretary-treasurer—O. Joe Howard, of Pomona, N. C.

To conduct an educational campaign to better acquaint farmers in the south with the science of cultivating flowers and fruits, was the topic of much discussion at the convention. It was decided to publish a pamphlet monthly, which is intended to be a textbook on the subject for farmers. The question of the responsibility of nurseries in their dealings through agents brought forth a lively discussion in which various plans of handling stock through agents were explained.

One of the features of the night session of the first day was the presentation of a publicity plan by St. Elmo Massengale. The selling end of the business was the subject of an interesting paper by O. P. Bleckley, of Harrisburg, Pa. William H. Kessler, of Birmingham, Ala., gave a talk on "The Relation of the Nurseryman to the Landscape Architect." "Freight Rates" was the topic assigned to C. T. Smith, of Concord, Ga., and W. T. Hood, of Richmond, Va., delivered a stirring address entitled "Better Prices or Quit!" Three Tennesseans made addresses at the convention. They were W. A. Easterly, of Cleveland, Tenn., on "The Betterment and Uplift of Our Profession;" A. D. Knox, of Nashville, on "Coöperation Between Nurserymen and Farmers of the South;" Harry Nicholson, of Winchester, on "Grafting Apple on Japan Pear Stocks." Other speakers were Lloyd O. Stark, of Louisiana, Mo., and Curtis Nye Smith, of Boston. The seventy-five members in attendance were given an automobile ride over the city on the afternoon of the last day of the convention. Previously they had visited the Southeastern fair grounds, at Lakewood, as guests of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce. The hospitality of the city to the visitors was so royal that it was unanimously voted to hold next year's convention at Atlanta. Many pledged themselves to attend the 1917 convention of the national body and do all in their power to bring that organization's 1918 meeting to Atlanta.

BASKET SIZES FIXED BY LAW.

Standards for Climax baskets for grapes, other fruits and vegetables, and other types of baskets and containers used for small fruits, berries and vegetables in interstate commerce are fixed by an act approved by the President August 31, 1916. The law will become effective November 1, 1917.

The effect of the act will be to require the use of the standards in manufacturing, sale or shipment for all interstate commerce, whether the containers are filled or unfilled. A large part of the traffic in fruits and vegetables in this country enters interstate commerce.

Standards of three capacities are fixed for Climax baskets, two, four and twelve quarts, dry measure. These containers, often known as grape baskets, have relatively narrow, flat bottoms, rounded at each end, and thin sides flaring slightly from the perpendicular. The handle is hooped over at the middle from side to side. In addition to fixing the capacities of these standard baskets of this type, the law also prescribes their dimensions.

The other standards are for "baskets or other containers for small fruits, berries and vegetables." They are to have capacities only of one-half pint, one pint, one quart or multiples of one quart, dry measure. Such containers may be of any shape so long as their capacities accurately accord with the standard requirements.

The examination and test of containers to determine whether they comply with the provisions of the act are made duties of the Department of Agriculture and the Secretary of Agriculture is empowered to establish and promulgate rules and regulations allowing such

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

A steadier demand and a fairer supply of asters, gladioli and roses were the features of last week. The vacationists, both in and out of the trade, are returning and there is a slightly improved business. Asters are not so plentiful as in previous years and, consequently, the prices are a trifle higher. The greenhouse men have been busy and report an excellent outlook for the coming season.

Various Notes.

Macnair, the Florist, had a fire in his store the other morning, caused by a defective wire. No serious damage was done.

The Budlong Rose Co., of Auburn, is sending a large supply of roses to the Boston market every day.

George Hunt was chairman of the board of judges at the annual muster of the New England States Veteran Firemen's League last week.

George Engle, manager of the flower department of the Shepard Co., accompanied by Mrs. Engle, has returned from an automobile trip through Maine, New Hampshire and Canada.

The Empire Floral Co. has reopened its store after the summer vacation. New white latticing in the windows make a decided improvement to the appearance of the front.

Charles Hunt, of Burnside street, has purchased a new delivery car.

Eugene L. Lemery, landscape gardener and nurseryman of Woonsocket, and his brother, Henry P. Lemery, of New York, left August 29 for Mapleville, Fla., where they will operate a fruit farm.

Charles Smith was a business visitor to New York last week.

TERMS

Our terms are 3 per cent discount for cash with order, 2 per cent for cash in ten days, or thirty days net. Cash or satisfactory references must accompany orders from parties not known to us. If plants or seeds are wanted in a hurry, send cash if you are not known to us or there will be delay while we look up the references.

Express is the most satisfactory way of shipping plants. Carriage charges to be paid by the buyer.

Three plants at dozen rate, 25 at rate per 100, and 250 at rate per 1,000.

PACKING

All our plants are carefully packed in light weight boxes or packages. Usually we remove most of the dirt but use plenty of damp moss about the roots. We make no extra charge for boxes or labor of packing.

MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

The weather has remained cool and bright and there has been some rain. Business in general is showing a healthy improvement and is gradually returning to normal. There were many funeral orders last week.

Roses are coming in quite heavily and the stock is fine. The demand is large and there is a good clean-up every day. There are but few carnations on the market as yet, but the supply is slowly increasing and the blooms soon will arrive in sufficient quantity to have an influence on the market. Asters remain in large supply and are moving fairly well. Gladioli are still coming in strongly and are in good shape. Valley remains unusually scarce and it is impossible to fill orders with any degree of satisfaction.

Various Notes.

August 30 our city was visited by W. W. Coles, of Kokomo, Ind.; J. C. Vaughan, of Chicago, and George H. Blackman, of Evansville, Ind. William Graham, of Chicago, was in town August 31, accompanied by Mrs. Graham.

Walter Holton left September 3 for a vacation of two weeks, which he and his family will spend at Pewaukee lake.

BLACK HALL, CONN.

James F. Barclay, our sweet pea specialist, is anticipating good returns from a house of mums 50x300 feet.

Griswold Perkins, who specializes in snapdragons, this summer has made a hit with a 3-acre vegetable garden. Crops were good and the prices the highest on record.

T. L. Brown is building a house 10x150 feet, all sashes, for hardening plants.

The resort trade of Black Hall and vicinity has doubled during the last three years.

Elkhart, Ind.—Mrs. E. M. Bullock recently was commissioned to fill an order for a 5½-foot floral anchor, which was placed on the grave of a member of the aero detail of North Carolina, a branch of the navy department.

Why we believe NEBRASKA to be the best scarlet in sight today:

Habit: Strong, easy grower, making large plants in the field and lifting easily; it also makes a strong root growth, has no surplus grass, every shoot throwing a bloom in a very short time.

Blooms: Large, 3½ inches and over, with a delightful, spicy fragrance.

Color: The brightest scarlet.

Style: Full, well built, slightly fringed.

Calyx: Long and strong, absolutely never splits at any season or in any temperature.

Stem: Long, 24 to 36 inches, heavy and strong, holding the flowers perfectly erect.

There are no culls, all blooms being first grade.

The Market.

Trade still is quiet, there being little doing outside of funeral work. At times, though, business is quite brisk, and then it is hard to procure enough stock, as there is little to be had outside of roses, gladioli and lilies. At present roses are of good quality and are in fair supply. Gladioli are more plentiful than previously and we do not know what we would do without them; they are used for funerals, for the sick, for baskets and, in fact, for all occasions. Lilies are more plentiful and help to fill in. Asters are extremely scarce and the few offered bring a good price. Snapdragons are difficult to obtain at present.

Most of the tradesmen are back from their vacations and are settling down to the old routine.

The State Fair.

The state fair last week, from all reports, broke all previous records for attendance. August 31 the attendance was a trifle over 76,000 and there were 10,000 automobiles parked at the grounds.

The flower displays, while in some lines not so good as those of previous years, as a whole were good. The awards in the professional classes were:

Palms—Indianola Florists, Columbus, first; Clay & Son, Salem, O., second.

Ferns—Indianola Florists, first; Livingston Seed Co., Columbus, second; Clay & Son, third.

Dracaenas—Clay & Son, first; Indianola Florists, second; Livingston Seed Co., third.

Cut flowers, not less than twenty-five kinds—Indianola Florists, first; Livingston Seed Co., second; Clay & Son, third.

Decorated dining table—Livingston Seed Co., first; Frank W. Hardesty, second; Clay & Son, third.

The Wing Seed Co., of Mechanicsburg, O., made a nice display of a general line of cut flowers. The Storrs & Harrison Co., of Painesville, O., had its usually good display of goods to make the home beautiful. The display of fruit was fine, especially the apple display from Lawrence county. J. M.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS.

A. J. Hilton, of Amsterdam, N. Y., commenting on the unfavorable season for asters outdoors, predicts a more extensive cultivation of this essential flower under glass. Its loss has been severely felt this season, when funeral work has been unusually plentiful.

J. O. Graham, of Little Falls, N. Y., thinks that there will be an unusually large attendance at the flower show in New York next spring, chiefly for the reason that it occurs at the most active season of the year, when the spirit is in the air, so to speak.

Joseph Traudt, of Canajoharie, N. Y., will be greatly benefited by the new barge canal. Judging from present appearances, he will cut his usual fine crop of chrysanthemums and carnations.

A most auspicious event happened in the home of J. H. Frederick, of Johnstown, N. Y., when Miss Grace E. Frederick was united in marriage to Charles H. Riggs, August 31. The happy couple left almost immediately after the ceremony for China, where they will take up missionary work.

Benjamin Hammond, of Beacon, N. Y., returned from the Houston convention enthused with the possibilities of the south. He commented on the great progress made since a visit of several years ago. W. M.

Clarkston, Mich.—After some years of success as a grower of garden flowers for several Detroit retailers, Mrs. F. H. McClaughry has decided to try her luck in growing stock under glass, and, accordingly, a large greenhouse is being erected at her place.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

USE LARGER RETURNS.

Will you kindly give me a little advice on the piping of my new greenhouse for hot water? The enclosed sketch shows the greenhouse and also my residence, in the basement of which the boiler is located. The basement is four feet below the level of the greenhouse floor. I intend to run a 3½-inch or 4-inch pipe from the boiler to the center of the greenhouse, over the benches. From this main I would run five 2-inch flow pipes to the other end of the house, drop them down under the benches and connect five 1¼-inch pipes with each flow, thus having five return pipes under each bench, or twenty-five 1¼-inch pipes in all. Do you think this is the right way to pipe the house? I expect to grow carnations, pot plants and some vegetables. H. O.—N. D.

The sketch shows the greenhouse to be 25x100, with 3-foot walls of cement blocks and apparently about the same amount of glass wall above the concrete. There are five raised benches, from three to five feet in width. The boiler house is located at the northeast corner of the greenhouse.

In an open hot water system we prefer to use 2½-inch flow pipes and 2-inch returns, in a house of this size. Unless the boiler is ten feet below the returns, we would not care to use 1¼-inch returns in a house 100 feet in length, except when it is run under pressure.

The amount of radiation suggested in the inquiry is fully fifty per cent more than is needed for a temperature of 50 degrees, which will answer as a minimum temperature for lettuce, and three pipes in each coil will be sufficient with a closed system. For an open system, with the top of the boiler a foot or so below the returns, we would use three 2½-inch flow pipes, running one on each purlin or at a point about halfway from the plate to the ridge, and the other two or three feet below the ridge. At the farther end of the house drop down each of the flow pipes to a point a foot

Kirkwood, Mo., May 22, 1915.

Gentlemen:—

Now that the firing season is over, and after a long cold winter, the coldest night being 6° below zero, I want to say I am well pleased with the No. 46 Water Tube Steam Boiler and the No. 14 Hot Water Boiler. They are doing all you claim for them and more. The No. 14 Hot Water Boiler is heating that large house to 60° with the greatest ease in zero weather without the help of the steam boiler.

This steam boiler I think is a wonder, a quick steamer, and holds the steam, the easiest boiler in the world to clean and to keep clean. The double steam trap system is working fine, keeping all the steam lines well drained.

The boiler tube hot water system is the winner, the rapid circulation and even temperature obtained from this system is wonderful.

After being told repeatedly by other growers that roses could not be grown with hot water heat, we are getting the best kind of results, not only from the heating systems and boilers, but also from the roses.

Yours very truly,

(Signed) W. J. PILCHER.

Dubuque, Iowa, Nov. 28, 1915.

Gentlemen:—

I wish to report that I have used my No. 45 Kroeschell Water Tube Steam Boiler for the past two seasons, and will say I could not compare it with my former boiler, as it is so far superior in every way that there is no comparison whatever.

It does the work of two tubular steam boilers—saves fuel, needs less attention, as the fire lasts much longer—is easily cleaned, there being no flues to clean every night, as was the case with the old boilers.

If I should need another boiler, I would not think of buying any other kind.

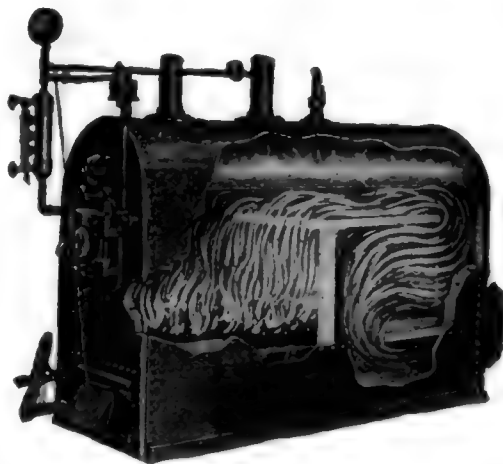

Yours very truly,

(Signed) S. E. MUNTZ.

The Kroeschell

is making the most wonderful greenhouse heating record in the world. Florists who have used other makes are constantly giving the Kroeschell the highest praise.

13,468,320 sq. ft. of glass was equipped with the Kroeschell Boiler during the past five years.

The Kroeschell

is used by hundreds of Florists' Review readers and mighty is their praise. The year of 1915 brought an enormous number of new customers who saw our boilers in operation at other places. We attribute the large sales of this season to the good work the Kroeschell Boiler is doing everywhere.

below the bottom of the benches, and with each of the three flow pipes feed a coil of four 2-inch returns, placing one coil under each of the side benches and the other under the middle bench. In case the west end of the house is much exposed, the wall coils should begin under the ends of their respective flow pipes, and run on the end wall to the corner of the house and then on the side walls to the boiler.

A GREENHOUSE AND LEAN-TO.

Will you please state the amount of pipe necessary to heat the greenhouse and lean-to shown in the sketch, using hot water? What would be the right size of mains, if 2-inch pipe is used for the coils? How should the coils be arranged? The sketch shows my idea of doing it. If you think best, a coil could be hung on the posts instead of putting them all on the walls. The greenhouse is 21x50 and the walls contain thirty inches of glass above three feet of siding. The lean-to is 14x15 and has no glass in gables or walls.

Will a boiler rated at 1,000 feet be large enough? It will be placed in the cellar of the workroom, at the west end of the houses. I wish to grow lettuce in the greenhouse, and if space is crowded in the spring I shall put part of the bedding stock in it. The lean-to will be used as a propagating house and also for bedding stock. Later I at the north side, we would run the flow pipes on the purlin posts, placing one flow upon each of the two lines of posts. At the farther end of the house connect each of the two flows with five 2-inch returns, to be carried on the walls, beginning on the end of the house just below where the flow pipe would touch the east end of the house. In the lean-to house use two 2½-inch flow pipes and six 2-inch returns.

There will be less than 700 square feet of radiation in the two houses and a boiler rated for 1,000 square feet will be amply large.

THE BOILER IS ABOVE GROUND.

Will you please tell me what is the best method of piping my greenhouse for steam? Will you describe, also, the best plan for heating it with hot water? The house, as indicated in the enclosed sketch, is 50x80 and runs east and west, with the boiler at the north-west corner. I have had rather poor luck with the heating. The boiler is on the ground level and has a capacity of twenty-five horsepower.

J. M. G.—Okla.

To heat a house 50x80 to 60 degrees with steam, we would run a 2-inch flow pipe on each wall plate and a third about four feet below the ridge. If, as appears from the sketch, there are really two houses, respectively thirty-four and sixteen feet wide, another flow pipe should be run under the middle gutter. Each of these four flow pipes should be used to feed four 1¼-inch returns. One coil should be upon each wall of the wide house and another under the middle bench. The fourth flow pipe, on the outer wall plate in the narrow house, should also supply a coil of four 1¼-inch returns, placed either on the wall or under the side bench. In case there is a partition between the houses, one-half of the return pipes at that point should be in each room.

For piping with hot water, we would arrange the flow pipes in much the same manner, but they should be 2½-inch. For the return coils use twenty 2-inch returns, arranged in four coils. In case a temperature of 50 degrees would answer in these houses, only twelve re-same is true with hot water heating. We infer that the trouble referred to has come from having the boiler on a level with the floor.

PIPING A 2-ROOM GREENHOUSE.

We are building a small greenhouse, as shown in the enclosed sketch. The house runs east and west. It is 16x50 and is divided into two compartments, each twenty-five feet long. There is a potting shed, 8x16, at the east end, and the boiler will be under this shed, in a cellar seven feet deep. The house has an uneven-span roof, with the long rafters on the south side. The north wall is entirely of brick and is six feet three inches high. The south wall is four feet nine inches high and consists of two feet three inches of brick and two feet six inches of glass. The west end has a door in the center, with a brick wall two feet three inches high at the south side of the door and three feet three inches high at the north side of it. The rest of the west gable is glass.

The compartment next to the potting shed is to be heated to 60 degrees and the west room will need a temperature of 50 degrees. Will you kindly state the best method of heating this house with hot water? We have about 300 feet of 1½-inch pipe and should like to use it if possible. Please mention, also, the size of boiler required.

B. G. C.—Pa.

To give a temperature of 50 degrees in the west half of the house, we would run two 2-inch flow pipes through both rooms, from the boiler to the west end of the house. These flow pipes can be carried on the wall plates and each of them can be used to feed a coil of four 1½-inch pipes, placed either on the side walls or under the side benches, and running through both rooms to the boiler.

In order to secure a temperature of 60 degrees in the east half of the house, a third flow pipe should be run about two feet below the ridge, to the partition, and connected there with a coil of two 1½-inch returns placed under the middle bench. We would use a boiler rated for about 500 square feet of radiation.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

Business was dull last week in Newark and flowers were scarce and high-priced. There was a considerable quantity of inferior stock, but the shipments of good quality flowers were small. A retailer going to the market in the afternoon for flowers had hard work to find enough good flowers for his orders. At times it was difficult to procure lilies and those obtainable were high-priced. Roses are not plentiful and therefore bring a good price. Cosmos continue to come into the market, but they are not plentiful. Gladioli are plentiful and reasonable in price.

Asters are scarce and the price for them is good. The weather conditions have been bad for asters this year. It was extremely wet during the early part of the season and many plants rotted off. Those which did grow did not, as a rule, develop properly, with the result that many of the flowers now coming into the market are small and imperfect.

Indications are that potted stock will cost more this fall. Growers are paying more for coal, for pots and for practically everything else they use, and they feel justified in charging more to cover the larger bills. In like manner the retailer, who has to pay more for boxes, wrapping paper, twine and other accessories, perhaps will charge higher prices for his goods.

Various Notes.

Charles Trauth has been repainting and otherwise preparing his store for the fall trade. As soon as this work is completed he will stock up for the season. He reports that business has been quiet during the last two weeks.

Charles E. Maillard is attending to store repairs and making improvements here and there. The store will be in perfect form for a busy fall season.

September 16 will see the formal opening of the Rose Shop, 383 Springfield avenue, Summit. The shop is owned by Harry O. May, rose grower of Pine Grove avenue, Summit, and will be managed by Harry F. Silcock. This new store succeeds the Colonial Flower Shop, which discontinued business in July. Mr. May is rebuilding the greenhouse at the rear of the store.

Metropolitan Greenhouses

Thorough In Every Particular

The three things of utmost importance after signing the contract to build a greenhouse, are Quality, Speed and Economy. This is a basic truth and absolutely essential to the success of any greenhouse building operation.

Our organization is letter-perfect down to the minutest detail.

Along with many other prominent Metropolitan Greenhouse owners, Mr. Martin Metzner, for whom we built the above greenhouse on his estate at Lake Ronkonkoma, Long Island, will verify our claim that we are capably equipped to build satisfactorily, rapidly and economically.

BRAMPTON, ONT.

Canadian National Exhibition.

The horticultural section of the national exhibition at Toronto attracts more sightseers each year, and this fact should not be overlooked by the florists if they are to keep pace with other trades, which take advantage of this splendid opportunity to demonstrate the development in their respective fields. August 30 110,000 people viewed the flower exhibits of the exhibition, which were rather better than those of former years, the Dale Estate's orchid group, a winner of first prize, and Thomas Manton's cunning arrangement of orchid plants, coming in for more than ordinary attention.

In table decorations the first prize was awarded to G. Sheridan, of Toronto, his most delicate and artistic work with Cattleya Harrisoniae, odonoglossums and a little valley evoking keen admiration. S. A. Frost's table decoration also was an ambitious piece of work, with orchids and valley attractively displayed around a fountain centerpiece. This gained second prize, while T. Manton secured third. Most of the judging was done by W. McIntyre, of Georgetown, S. A. Anderson unfortunately being delayed through a mishap to his car on the way from Buffalo.

Various Notes.

The stock at the Dale Estate is far short of the demand, the late planting in every instance being mainly responsible. It will be another month before carnations appear, as the bulk of the plants are still in the field and labor conditions are not improving by any means.

Limited quantities of Ophelia and Shawyer roses are coming in and White Killarney and Killarney roses are showing good color in spite of the hard summer. Early mums suffered considerably throughout the hot spell and it is too early to prophesy how the other stock is going to turn out. Sweet peas, asters and gladioli have been a great failure.

Reciprocity in traveling arrangements appears to be responsible for a large number of visitors from the States this summer. In last week's list were to be found the names of T. A. Torrance, Cleveland, O.; A. R. Clifford, Rochester, N. Y.; A. M. Fisher, Wilmington, Del.; W. H. Jordan, Geneva, N. Y.; U. P. Hedrich, Geneva Experimental Station, N. Y., and L. A. Thompson, Chicago. The Market.

Last week business was unusually brisk. Funeral work was the chief cause of the heavy demand, although counter trade also was active.

There was a great scarcity of flowers, especially outdoor stock, and quality flowers were hard to obtain. Gladioli are exceedingly scarce on account of the dry weather and, in fact, all outdoor flowers have suffered from the continued dry spell. Roses are more plentiful, but carnations are scarce and small. Cattleyas and valley also are scarce. Lilies are in good supply and green goods in fair demand.

Various Notes.

Miss Helen Patten and Miss C. B. Flick, of the Patten Flower Shop, Toledo, O., motored to this city September 3 and spent Labor day with relatives here.

F. R. Muhleman, of Wheeling, W. Va., was a recent visitor to this city. He had a fine showing of novelties in glassware.

The Market.

Business has been quite lively, the cool weather having been a favorable factor. Good stock now is arriving and finds a ready sale. The poorer stock also sells and there is not much left in the market.

Roses are somewhat short in supply and their prices are high. The cool weather has made it possible to ship them in good condition. Ophelia and Sunburst are fine at present and the Killarneys have made a great improvement over those of the week previous. Gladioli are plentiful and still fill the vacancy left by the other flowers. Asters are poor, but Easter lilies are of good quality and in sufficient supply. Greens of all kinds are a trifle on the scarce side.

Various Notes.

A. F. Barbe is cutting some good young roses from his new house. He reports business as having been good throughout the summer.

Samuel Murray had a busy week of funeral work.

Arthur Newell reports business progressing at a good rate. Novelties and baskets are selling better here each year.

Business at L. C. Field's has been good during the summer. Mr. Field now has his houses filled with pot plants. He has a number of chrysanthemum plants benched.

The George M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. reports last month's business especially good in all lines. This concern reports a large quantity of out-of-town funeral work during the entire summer.

T. J. Noll & Co. now are handling a good lot of roses. Sunburst and Ophelia have been the leaders. Mr. Noll is contemplating the purchase of a new delivery car. Ray Blessing, formerly with H. Kusik & Co., has joined the company.

W. J. Barnes had a large funeral order September 2, including, among other pieces, a large casket blanket.

Walter Heite has his greenhouses in good shape. He has one house of sweet peas and has about 15,000 chrysanthemums planted. He expects to have two blooms from each plant.

Visitors last week were Horace Cheeseman, of Ralph M. Ward & Co., New York; J. D. Christiansen, of Hummel & Downey, Milwaukee, Wis.; A. H. Harrison, of the Kentucky Tobacco Product Co., Louisville, Ky.

Adolph Mohr has his three new houses filled with pot plants. The range is in fine shape and everything appears to be at its best. W. J. B.

If we should build a greenhouse for ourselves we would put the best material we could into it, but it would not be any better than we put into the houses that we build for our customers.

Yes, it would be an easy matter to skimp here and substitute there, and gloss over in another place to save a little and meet the lowest bidder. We do not do business that way. Why should we cheat ourselves in order to cheat a customer?

Figure it out for yourself and then write us your needs.

The Market.

There is little to add to recent reports of local market conditions. Most of the florists report a week of good business, a large portion of which was wedding and funeral work. The supply of gladioli shows no sign of diminishing. Some fine blooms are offered, but prices are only moderate. There are a few good asters on the market, but they are hard to obtain. Roses are arriving in more satisfactory quantities now and lilies of splendid quality are obtainable. There is a big demand for both rubrum and Easter lilies. A few growers still are cutting outdoor sweet peas. Zinnias are much in demand and they now are of splendid grade. Fall work is being rushed. Chrysanthemums, ferns, cyclamens and begonias soon will be in demand, and they will be ready when the time comes.

Various Notes.

The Minneapolis Floral Co. reports a good run of funeral orders. Miss Pludell, the bookkeeper, recently returned from a most delightful vacation.

The H. B. Whitted Floral Co. reports business as being good. The entire staff has been busy with funeral work and wedding decorations. An ammonia freezer has been installed in the Tenth street store. George Oyes has returned from a vacation spent in northern Minnesota and Miss Jensen has returned from a delightful motor trip to the northern lakes of Minnesota. This concern had a charming window display at the main store last week, depicting on a small scale a log mill scene, true to the smallest details.

Some splendid work will be shown at the fair by the Minneapolis florists.

William F. Holmes reports business good, with plenty of funeral work. He had a charming display of gladioli, ferns and artistically arranged bowls and baskets of flowers.

The Sunshine Florist is as eager as ever to present fine stock in an attractive way. Careful work and good taste are well repaid here.

The Chicago Avenue Greenhouses have a fine stock of Boston ferns.

The Lakewood Cemetery Greenhouses have a splendid lot of begonias and Boston ferns for the fall trade. A large cut of carnations is expected soon.

The fine sweet peas displayed by Oscar Amundson win much admiration. A pretty window display of roses, lilies, gladioli and sweet peas was made last week.

OMAHA, NEB.The Market.

Business continues unchanged. The retailers report little trade outside of funeral work. Stock has not been any too plentiful and the quality is poor, especially in roses. The direct cause of this inferiority of stock is the eight weeks of oppressive heat, during which there was only one light rain. Last week, however, it began to cool off a bit and after a couple of hard rains a noticeable improvement is to be seen in all stock. Gladioli are about done for. Carnations are beginning to come in, but they are exceedingly short-stemmed. A few good asters are to be had and these find a ready sale. Hardly any dahlias will be found on the market this month, as most of them were burned by the heat.

Various Notes.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

PICTURING HOW WE SEND "FLOWERS BY WIRE"

For every person who understands "Flowers by Wire" there are hundreds who never have heard of the service; so that the growth of the telegraph delivery business depends, not on how much the F. T. D. is advertised in the trade, but on how much the service is advertised to the public.

WHETHER or not one is a member of the F. T. D., every man who runs a flower store should boost the telegraph delivery; indeed, growers and wholesalers, everyone who makes his living in the trade, should boost it, for every flower delivered by wire is just one more flower sold. It is estimated that the telegraph delivery business now represents a total of a million dollars a year. It is a million dollars that otherwise would not have been spent for flowers. But it might as easily be two millions, three or five. All that is needed is to let the public know.

Advertise It.

Of course the best and quickest way to make the public understand is by advertising in the daily papers, but that costs money that usually would not otherwise be spent and there is another excellent method that represents scarcely any outlay except the mental and manual labor of the window decorator. A window decoration does not reach in a day anywhere near so many people as read the city's best newspaper, nor does it usually tell the "telegraph delivery" story so plainly as type can do it, as will be seen by a study of the accompanying illustrations, but it has the advantage that it fills a place that scarcely can be allowed to be empty, fills it interestingly and which, once installed, can be permitted to run for a week or even two.

It has been a popular method to employ the telegraph delivery window instead of the water window of summers gone before, and it is an excellent substitution, since aquatic windows seldom serve any direct advertising purpose, but the telegraph delivery window fits in with many another plan. It can well be used in early autumn, before the mums demand display, or between seasons at any time of year. The whist players' rule, "In case of doubt, lead trumps," might be paraphrased by the window decorator, "Whenever nothing else seems suitable, put in a telegraph delivery display." It always will do good work.

We in the trade understand the telegraph delivery idea so well that we are apt to make the mistake of supposing others understand it also. "Flowers by telegraph" appears too often without explanation in florists' ads. People know nothing but words can be sent by wire; how then are flowers sent? It must be made plain that it is by a system of reliable correspondents that covers America.

Study the Illustrations.

In this issue of The Review there are four illustrations of telegraph delivery windows reproduced from photographs of recent decorations that are said to have done good work, but it will be plain to anyone who studies them that the idea, so well understood by the florist, was not made any too plain to the man in the street. The cards of correspondents, a favorite feature of many such windows, are not illuminative unless explained by such an inscription as that employed by H. E. Wilson, who labeled them "A few of the florists who handle our orders in other cities."

Another popular plan is to connect the cards of florists with their town on the map, or with the telegraph ticker, but the idea is not sufficiently plain to the passers-by unless there is a sign that says in so many words that these are some of the florists to whom the orders are sent by telegraph.

One of the illustrations, that of the Superior Floral Co., shows how the telegraph delivery window was utilized to win a prize in an autumn competition open to all the merchants of the city.

The trade telegraph delivery service is understood and used by so small a proportion of the people that it should be featured at every opportunity. It is apparent that this business will increase in direct proportion as more people know that the system exists. The window that features the F. T. D. not only makes for immediate business in this line, but also advertises the service against the time when it is most used, such as at Christmas, New Year's, Mothers' day or Valentine's day.

Materials for Windows.

As the subject of a window the idea is unusually good; it permits a display that is at once attention-compelling and inexpensive. The telegraphers' instruments, the miniature telegraph poles and wires, and all the other things that help to tell the story to the spectator, are sufficiently unusual in themselves to attract attention to a florist's window and when assembled in a window as a composite picture they seldom fail to win the attention of even the least curious. In many cases the local telegraph offices have loaned to the retailer most of the articles required in the display, inasmuch as the window also advertises the telegraph business.

A common mistake, apparent in some of the illustrations in this issue, is to neglect the flowers. Even a little thought will show how much more compelling is the impulse provided when the display also includes flowers in such arrangements as are to be delivered. "Here are the flowers and here are the means by which we deliver them," it seems to say.

OMAHA, NEB.The Market.

Business continues unchanged. The retailers report little trade outside of funeral work. Stock has not been any too plentiful and the quality is poor, especially in roses. The direct cause of this inferiority of stock is the eight weeks of oppressive heat, during which there was only one light rain. Last week, however, it began to cool off a bit and after a couple of hard rains a noticeable improvement is to be seen in all stock. Gladioli are about done for. Carnations are beginning to come in, but they are exceedingly short-stemmed. A few good asters are to be had and these find a ready sale. Hardly any dahlias will be found on the market this month, as most of them were burned by the heat.

AZALEAS IN QUESTION.

Members of the trade are considerably disturbed by a report that there will be no azaleas coming out of Belgium this year. This has brought forth a number of inquiries directed to the Secretary of State and several importers are reported to have made visits to Washington in person.

Among those most active in enlisting the aid of the State Department in getting shipments of these plants released is C. B. Knickman, who recently had a lengthy conference with Marion Letcher, foreign trade adviser of the State Department, and was promised every assistance possible.

When interviewed September 11 by the Washington correspondent of The Review, Mr. Letcher stated that he had no previous knowledge of any new difficulties arising in the transportation of Belgian horticultural products. There have been a number of requirements imposed by the British government and, as far as the State Department is informed, these are still maintained. Among these has been the requirement that payment for horticultural goods be made through a Belgian bank in London and an agreement on the part of consignor and consignee that the former will not seek the withdrawal of such funds during the holding of Belgian territory by enemies of Great Britain.

In commenting upon the matter, Mr. Letcher stated that the matter was a new one with him and so he was not in a position to give forth much information at this time. However, he is taking it up with the British authorities through the American ambassador at London, on behalf of McHutchison & Co., of New York, represented by Mr. Knickman, and other importers of Belgian plants, with the hope that the report is more serious in tone than in fact.

THE ROSE MIDGE.

The following communication is from D. K. McMillan, the state entomologist's assistant for northern Illinois, whose address is 5057 Balmoral avenue, Chicago:

"I am much interested in learning the name and address of every florist in Illinois who is troubled with the rose midge or 'maggot' which destroys the buds and young shoots of certain varieties of roses. This pest has been known for a number of years to some of the growers around Chicago, but it has probably become more generally distributed over the state.

"Some growers seem unable to do more than check its ravages in a limited way, while others, who had experienced severe damage for years, have succeeded in practically banishing the pest. In certain cases this has been with the advice and assistance of the writer under the direction of the state entomologist.

"Recent letters from some growers and personal talks with others show that few are familiar with the habits of the insect. Some think that the large flies so often seen in the houses are the cause of the 'maggots' in the shoots. This is absolutely incorrect. The larvæ, after destroying a bud or shoot, enter the soil around the plants and change in a few days to very small flies, so minute that they usually are not noticed. Fuller details concerning habits and methods of control will not be given now, but may appear later if desired.

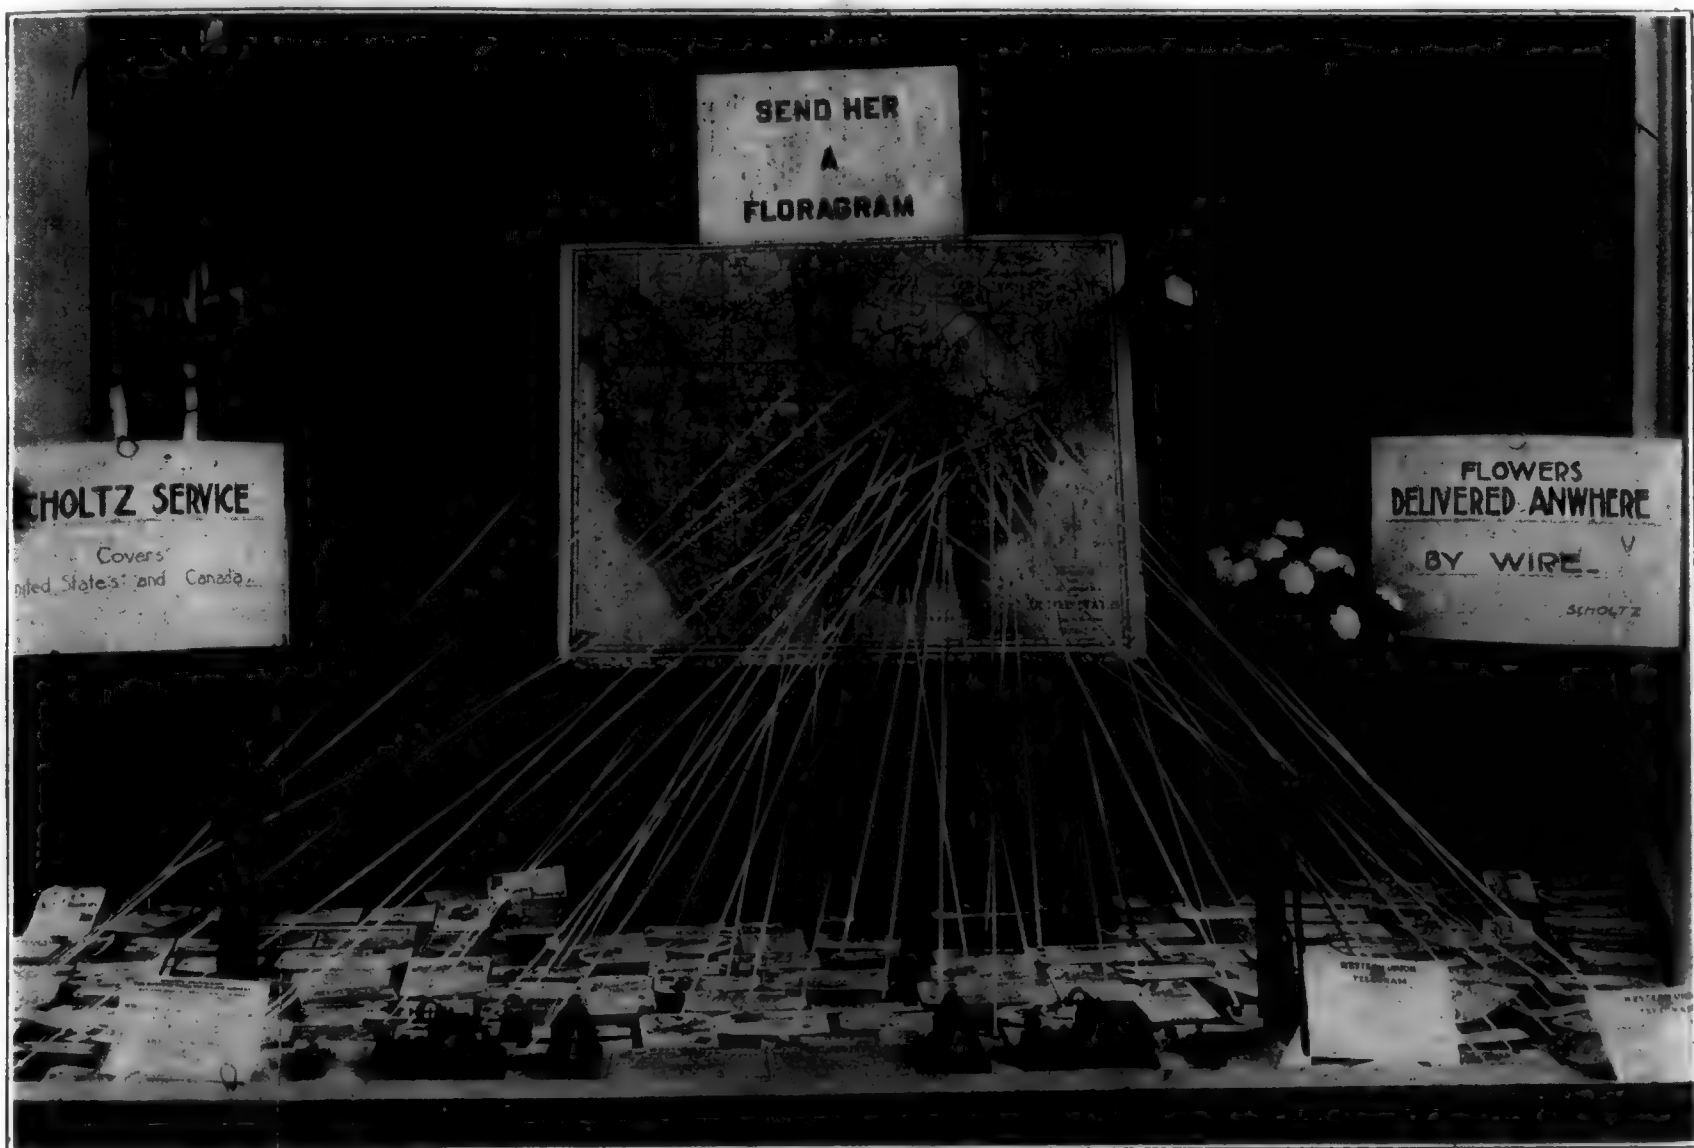

"The object in writing is to request that all Illinois florists who are having trouble communicate with the writer without delay or send information on infested houses, with name and address. All such communications will be held in strict confidence.

"I shall appreciate your assistance in this matter and shall be very glad to coöperate with those who have been troubled with the rose midge. I know that the damage can be prevented if proper methods are employed."

The difficulties of rose growers, so far as the rose midge is concerned, were pretty well settled by an article on the subject by Emil Reichling, superintendent for Peter Reinberg, Chicago, which was the leading feature of The Review for January 6, 1916. Those who followed the treatment Mr. Reichling

THE PEONY SITUATION.

The trade never was so well supplied with peonies as now and the conditions surrounding the growing and marketing of peony roots are wholly different from what they were in the earlier years of the industry, the years sometimes referred to as those of the peony boom. Then the trade was hunting for stock; scores of florists and nurserymen were planting great blocks, some for cut flowers and some for roots, but in either case they stood ready to buy quantities of the standard and better new varieties whenever offered. Today this demand has ceased, or nearly so. The men who were the largest buyers ten years ago are the largest sellers today. The trade still is buying peonies, probably in a greater aggregate annual quantity than ever before, but not for the same purpose; the stock is wanted for filling the orders of the public rather than for planting. The number of peony specialists has multiplied by scores. They nearly all have large stocks and no longer can look to each other for their market, as was the case when each was planting more than he sold. But the public is just beginning to appreciate the peony; the number planted on private grounds this season will be something prodigious. Florists are in the best position to supply this rapidly increasing demand, for they are in closest touch with the planters. Those who have no room to grow the stock for retailing are nevertheless able to share in the business by taking orders during the season, in the autumn buying the plants with which to fill them from a specialist and it is in this way, doubtless, that the greatest quantity of stock will be moved in years to come.

DIFFICULTIES IN DISBUDDING.

I am writing for information on the treatment of chrysanthemums. I have pinched out the tops of the plants, leaving only three branches to a plant. I have pinched off the little side shoots that come out at the leaves. Now that it is time for the flower buds, I find that there are three or four buds where I expected only one. The bud that seems to be the center one is the smallest. I do not know which to pinch off. Can you tell me? In order to make my meaning clearer, I am enclosing a rough sketch or drawing of one of the plants.

M. K. B.—Tex.

The drawing submitted shows a plant producing terminal buds. If it is desired to remove these buds to get the largest and best blooms, the side shoots must be taken clean away and the best looking bud retained for the center shoot; be sure to remove all the others. The best looking bud does not naturally have to be the center bud; it may happen that the center bud is deformed or destroyed by insects. The best looking bud, even if on the side, will assume the central position when the other buds are removed. Generally speaking, when a plant has been allowed to progress to the stage shown in the drawing, there is nothing to do but take a terminal bud. This bud will not produce nearly so fine a flower as the earlier bud would have done. An earlier bud would have been a crown bud and would have devoted its time to making petals instead of shoots, as the plant in this case has done.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Planting Peonies.

It is pretty well understood that early planting of peonies pays well. September is the best month of the year for this work. Of course, they can be planted as late as November or even next spring, but there will be no comparison in the growths of the several plantings. Now, while the ground is warm, the peonies have a good chance to establish themselves before the cold weather comes along. Take note of how they start away in the spring, compared with the late planted stock. Be sure to manure liberally and plow deeply if you want your peonies to make a strong growth. Do not cover them more than three inches over the eyes.

German Irises.

The German iris is another hardy perennial that succeeds best when planted in the late summer. Be sure to give the plants well drained ground and be careful not to cover the roots too much at planting time, or you will find the shoots rotting off by the wholesale during spells of warm, moist weather. Not only the German, but also the Japanese, Siberian and other non-bulbous varieties, can be profitably planted at this season.

Transplanting Perennial Seedlings.

Take advantage of damp, cloudy weather to prick out seedlings of hardy perennials. The more robust varieties, such as larkspurs, Shasta daisies, lupines, etc., can go outdoors, while those of more moderate growth, such as aquilegias, heucheras, polemoniums, etc., do better if left in coldframes over winter and planted out in early spring. Keep the cultivator plied between rows of such crops as Canterbury bells, sweet williams, digitalis and rockets, in order to get all possible growth on them. These plants make their maximum growth at this season. It is too late now to sow or even to prick out seedlings of these latter plants and expect them to flower satisfactorily next year.

Canterbury Bells.

This is a suitable time to pot up plants of Canterbury bells to be used for spring flowering. Do not use overgrown plants, as such are liable to damp. If you take up a nice ball with each one and use 7-inch to 9-inch pots, according to the strength of the plants, they will be of sufficient size to flower nicely. Place the pots in an open, sunny position outdoors and leave them there until frost becomes fairly sharp. Then give them the protection of a coldframe.

Gardenias.

While we continue to get warm days, the nights are becoming increasingly cool, and this is a dangerous period where fire heat is not yet used. The gardenia plants will retain their rich, dark green color and even the buds will appear satisfactorily, but a little later bud-dropping will start and Christmas flowers will be nil. Much more careful watering is now needed and the foliage should not remain damp over night. Keep sufficient fire heat so that the minimum temperature will be 62 to 65 degrees. If the night is warm, leave on a little ventilation, but do not shut off the heat for economical reasons.

Transplanting Seedlings.

Seedlings of pansies, violas, myosotis, daisies and other spring-flowering plants should be pricked off before they become crowded. In the colder latitudes these will need coldframe protection. Leave the sashes off until the ground freezes hard. Then cover the plants with dry pine needles or leaves and place the sashes over them. To prevent danger of glass breakage from snow, it is well to use board shutters over them. Seedlings of the plants named do well outdoors in most latitudes, always provided they are given a winter mulch and it can be held in position. Such plants will bloom later than those carried over in frames, but will be much more stocky. Pansies do not mind a temperature of 30 degrees below zero if they are mulched. It will be noted that in winters with a heavy and continuous snow covering, such plants winter perfectly.

Soil for Dutch Bulbs.

Dutch bulbs are beginning to arrive. Do not leave them tied up tightly in paper bags, but lay them out in flats. Open the cases, so that they can get all possible air. Prepare soil, if it is not yet ready. A compost of two-thirds well rotted loam and one-third old and well decayed cow or horse manure, with some sharp sand added, makes an ideal rooting medium. Old mushroom manure and that from spent hotbeds can also be used if available. Mix the soil two or three times. Do not use any bone or chemical fertilizers; they are more likely to be harmful than beneficial. For hyacinths a little leaf-mold, not too much rotted, can advantageously be added. In a future issue will appear some notes on the more desirable bulbs for florists' use.

Terre Haute, Ind.—John G. Heintz, of J. G. Heintz & Son, has been elected president of the Morris plan bank, to be established here.

Montclair, N. J.—The epidemic of infantile paralysis which prevails here is having its effect on the flower business in that it is keeping the families with children at the resorts until cold weather sets in. This has postponed the opening of the new season. Robert G. Freytag has redecorated and rearranged both of his stores and is prepared for a larger business than last year's, although that was most satisfactory.

News from Abroad

Wiesbaden, Germany.—Ferd. Fischer, who has a large American trade on his specialty, cyclamen seeds, states that he has not been receiving his overseas mail since early in the spring.

Cheshunt, England.—A fine addition to the list of hardy flowering shrubs is Deutzia crenata magnifica, a new form of an old favorite, the branches being a mass of pure white double flowers. It originated here in the nursery of Paul & Son.

Trier, Germany.—The original tree of Frau Karl Druschki rose stands in the nursery of Peter Lambert. The owner has stated that the plant stood so long without flowering that he was considering its destruction, when a wealth of its snowy blooms burst forth.

London, England.—The British government will again this season permit the autumn shipment of plants, especially azaleas, from Belgium via Rotterdam to the United States under a special arrangement with the Syndicat des Horticultures Belges, which involves the payment of the purchase money to the Banque Belge in London. The Holland-America line will not load shipments not accompanied by a British permit.

Haarlem, Holland.—The Dutch Bulb Exporters' Association makes the following statement: "Owing to the unfavorable weather during the month of June, the bulb crop has not reached the average and consequently the stock of salable bulbs is not so large as during normal years. Also their size is now smaller and 'jumbos' are hardly to be had. It is true that the above is not only to be attributed to the bad weather, but also to other causes, especially to the not paying prices of culture for the recent years. Moreover, life has become much dearer and consequently wages have risen, so that the growers were obliged to diminish bulb culture and to take up culture of vegetables in its place. In consequence thereof and owing to important purchases of bulbs everywhere, there is not such a surplus here as otherwise would be the case, now that importation has been prohibited in England, so that to the contrary this surplus is much smaller than during other years. It may even be that there will be a shortage in the good market varieties, so that it may be possible that not all orders are executable in full. It is therefore most improbable that there will be surplus shipments on a large scale at low prices during this season and fair trade can not but rejoice at such a fact."

HOW CHEAP SALES HURT.

[The following is the paper of Aloysius Zech, read before the Chicago Florists' Club, September 7, 1916.]

At the last meeting I promised to read a paper on whether it is harmful or beneficial to the flower business for the department stores to sell flowers at ridiculously low prices.

There has been much said for and against it. Some will say it makes new flower buyers, because people buying from department stores would not go to a flower store to buy, but that when they get in the habit of having flowers at home, they will buy from the legitimate florist. Others say it hurts the florist in a way, because the public gets to believe that flowers have little or no value and that the florists are hold-up people.

Why Department Stores Do It.

The department stores advertise fresh cut flowers at a price that is less than the cost of producing the stock, such as carnations at 8 cents per bunch of twenty-five, or roses at 6 cents per dozen. The general public does not know a good flower from a poor one. A flower is a flower to the average person, regardless of quality. Therefore I say that the public should be educated in regard to the quality of flowers. Just imagine a department store advertising roses at 12 cents per dozen the day before Mothers' day, when the price in the market is $2 and $3 per hundred for the shortest roses. Can the retailer sell his stock at these figures?

One department store last year came out with a big ad offering Easter lilies at 19 cents a pot, saying that it was going to protect the public and not overcharge on flowers. Don't you think a thing like this hurts the flower business? In the wholesale houses it can be noticed at once. As soon as the department stores have a sale on flowers the retailers do not buy anything. When you ask them why they are not buying they answer, "If we buy we cannot sell, as people tell us they will go to the department stores, and then we have to throw away our stock." The department stores do not give a rip about the florists. They do not make money out of the flowers they sell, but have found out that flowers have a better way of getting customers into the store than any other item they can advertise. They are only selling flowers for an advertisement, and not, as we are, for a livelihood.

Fixing the Responsibility.

Now, I will say that all three branches of the cut flower business are to blame for these conditions. Take the wholesaler first. He is overloaded with stock, the buyer for the department store comes in, and the wholesaler unloads on him for a song. Now, would it not be better if most of this stock was thrown in the barrel and the balance sold for a better price? In the end the wholesaler would sell, say, one-third of his supply and get as much, if not more, money than by unloading to the department store.

In the second place, take the grower. When the market is glutted he should sort his cut and send only the best to the market, in place of sending in every flower, whether good or bad. By sending only the best stock to the market during the glut he would cut down the supply and in that way retain the mar-

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE—AND WHY

ALOYSIUS ZECH.

THERE are few florists in the vicinity of Chicago who do not know "Allie" Zech, for he has spent his entire business life in the trade. The son of John Zech, he began work in the wholesale house of Zech & Mann while he was younger than anyone else in the place, advancing with the years until he became his father's chief reliance in the business. Then, suddenly, the unexpected death of the senior called the son to the helm. Mr. Zech has not yet exhausted the energy of youth; one never sees him idle and he is an active participant in all trade affairs, especially the recreation features of the Chicago Florists' Club.

ket. But most growers figure on how much stock they can cut. Then they will say, "I cut so many flowers during the season," not saying how good they were. If the grower would help in this way during a glut, it would help to cut out the department stores.

Now, in the third place, take the retailer; he could help to cut out the department stores by buying more stock during a glut.

Retailers Can Help.

The retailer of today does not carry a stock of flowers in his store. He buys a few and then waits for an order, and goes to the market and buys just enough to fill his orders. When a glut comes in the market, why does not every retailer buy a good supply and run a sale of his own and not let the department stores do it? He could sell many more flowers in this way.

When stock is plentiful, the retailer could go to his wholesale house and order a large quantity of flowers for a certain day, then go to the printer and get out some handbills to be delivered by mail or by boys to every house in his neighborhood, letting the people know that he had made arrangements with the growers to supply him with a large stock for a certain day at a lower price than usual, and that he wanted to give everybody in the neighborhood the benefit of this low price, and then sell this lot of flowers at a figure lower than usual. Don't you think in this way every retailer could dispose of more flowers and create more flower buyers?

Another way for the retailer would be to buy a lot of flowers and put them up in small boxes, say six flowers to a box, and enclose a card carrying his compliments and have them delivered to all his customers, or to all the people in his neighborhood. This would advertise the retailer and also make new flower buyers, and the best thing it would do would be to eliminate the department stores from the flower business.

Now, if all three branches would work along these lines, I am sure it would help all concerned. I would like the view of some grower, retailer and other wholesaler on this subject.

DAHLIAS ON THE PACIFIC COAST

SAN FRANCISCO DAHLIA SHOW.

A Splendid First Attempt.

The first annual show held under the auspices of the California Dahlia Growers' Association was pronounced by participants and spectators one of the most spectacular flower shows ever staged in San Francisco. It opened in the handsome old-rose and ivory ballroom of the Palace hotel on the forenoon of September 7 and continued for three days, each day bringing a larger attendance. More than 100,000 dahlias, representing many hundreds of varieties and forming a color scheme that would rival a rainbow, were on exhibition. The entries were so large that additional floor space was found necessary and the overflow filled the corridors leading to the ballroom. Nearly 60,000 square feet of tables and benches were necessary to accommodate the display.

The show was unique in that no other kinds of flowers were exhibited except dahlias. An admission charge of 25 cents more than paid the expenses of the exhibit, which was gratifying to the managers in more ways than from a financial standpoint only. So many people willing to pay to see a dahlia exhibition showed that great interest is taken in that flower in the vicinity. Before the end of the first day of the show its success was sufficiently assured for the officials of the association to begin making plans for the 1917 exhibition. Before the show was over arrangements were practically completed for larger space for the next show, and a good many of the exhibitors were signed up for space a year in advance. A portion of the proceeds from this show will probably be used to buy bottles, so the association in future will have its own bottles. Green ones are favored.

The Management.

When it is taken into consideration that the California Dahlia Growers' Association was not organized until July 4 of this year, its officials must be given more than the ordinary amount of credit for the success of its first large undertaking. The officers are: President, T. A. Burns; first vice-president, A. W. Porter; second vice-president, Mrs. Jessie Seal; third vice-president, Arthur Twitchett; secretary, C. S. Quick; manager of exhibitions, Leslie E. Doolittle. Both amateurs and professionals are eligible to membership in the association, which was formed for the purpose of stimulating interest in and promoting the culture and development of the dahlia; to establish a standard nomenclature; to test out new varieties and to give them such recognition as they deserve; to study the diseases of the dahlia and find remedies for same; to disseminate information relating to this flower; to secure uniformity in awarding prizes at flower shows, and to give exhibitions when deemed advisable.

The exhibition committee was composed as follows: Leslie E. Doolittle, chairman; T. A. Burns, Frank Pelicano, A. W. Porter, C. S. Quick, A. D. Lockwood, Mrs. Jessie Seal, Geo. H. Young, A. Twitchett, R. McWhirter, Chas. Elliot, Maj. N. Vanderbilt, A. L. Shep-son, F. C. Burns, C. Goecker and Z. H. Sherart.

The Awards.

The judges were: Thos. A. Munro, of San Francisco; Wm. Welch, of San Mateo, and Geo. Walters, of San Rafael. Prizes in the classes open to all were awarded as follows:

General collection covering not more than 150 square feet—Mrs. Jessie Seal, first; Bessie Boston Dahlia Farm, second; Lovers' Point Dahlia Farm, third.

Collection peony dahlias, one bloom each, twelve varieties—Bessie Boston Dahlia Farm, first; Lovers' Point Dahlia Farm, second; Mrs. Jessie Seal, third.

Collection decorative dahlias, one bloom each, twelve varieties—A. E. Carter, first; Bessie Boston Dahlia Farm, second; Lovers' Point Dahlia Farm, third.

Collection cactus dahlias, one bloom each, twelve varieties—Mrs. Jessie Seal, first; A. E. Carter, second; Bessie Boston Dahlia Farm, third.

Collection show dahlias, one bloom each, twelve varieties—Bessie Boston Dahlia Farm, first; Mrs. Jessie Seal, second.

Collection collarette dahlias, one bloom each, twelve varieties—Mrs. E. Spencer, first; Mrs. Jessie Seal, second; Mrs. C. S. Quick, third.

Collection pompon dahlias, one bloom each, twelve varieties—Mrs. Jessie Seal, first; A. Twitchett, second; Bessie Boston Dahlia Farm, third.

Fifty blooms, one variety—Frank Pelicano, first; A. E. Carter, second; Burns & Co., third.

Twenty-five one variety—Frank Pelicano, first; A. E. Carter, second; Burns & Co., third.

Established 3-year-old seedling—Burns & Co., first; A. E. Carter, second.

Best 1916 seedling—Frank Pelicano, first.

Collection of seedlings—A. E. Carter, first.

Basket of dahlias—Pelicano, Rossi & Co., first; Burns & Co., second; Mrs. Jessie Seal, third.

Table decoration, covers for eight—Frank Pelicano, first.

There also were competitive classes open only to amateurs. Meritorious exhibits not provided for in the schedule were given special awards. Among the recipients were Hallowell Seed Co.,

California Seed Co., Star Dahlia Farm and Pacific Grove Dahlia Farm. C. C. Morse & Co. were specially commended for their splendid trade exhibit. Their display occupied a large table in the center of the room and contained over 400 varieties of dahlias artistically arranged.

Many new seedlings made their appearance. Several promising specimens were shown by Frank Pelicano, with his Exposition seedling as the central attraction. The blooms of this seedling were from nine to ten inches in diameter, of a fine bronze and flame color, with good, strong stems. A. E. Carter's new cactus dahlia, Mrs. T. A. Munro, shading from yellow to old gold, which was shown for the first time, attracted much attention. T. A. Burns' 3-year-old seedling, Alaska, which took the prize, is a large white decorative dahlia, with strong stem and good keeping qualities. T. A. Fenton's new seedlings made a good showing also.

Among the notable features of the exhibition were the large basket bouquets, shown by Frank Pelicano, F. C. Burns, the MacRorie-McLaren Co. and A. E. Carter.

After witnessing the gorgeous display at the Palace hotel, some of the growers expressed the belief that instead of importing stock from Europe, roots will be exported from this section within a short time. H. S. G.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The week ending September 9 was disappointing. Summer prices still prevailed and there was much sacrificing of surpluses. Shipments of asters and gladioli were far in excess of the demand and great quantities of these were of little value or, in other words, not good enough for the New York market. Of course, the selected stock of each brought good prices, and another lesson to growers to produce only the best was made emphatic. The week opened with no diminution in shipments and lower prices are inevitable. Roses were exceedingly abundant and the values lower. The top quotations, therefore, are only for the long-stemmed and selected flowers. There are large quantities of the short-stemmed flowers with small heads, which go at a sacrifice. These in thousand lots averaged between 35 and 50 cents per hundred. American Beauties are improving rapidly and those with stems eighteen to twenty-four inches are most in favor. October will see good quantities of the new varieties, and all the favorites of last year and the novelties promise to retain their popularity.

Some fine Golden Glow chrysanthemums are to be seen in almost every wholesaler's window. The best were selling September 11 at $3 per dozen. Valley still fluctuates between $3 and $6 per hundred, with most of it selling at $5. Lilies are no longer in over-supply and prices are steady at $6 to $10 in hundred lots, with $8 a fair average. Carnations begin to show improvement in size of bloom and length of stem and the best of them were selling September 9 at $2 per hundred. Some handsome dahlias now are seen in ever-increasing abundance. Orchids broke September 11 to 60 cents for each cattleya and the supply is larger. Not many last week sold above $1. Hydrangea grandiflora is at its best and there seems no limit to the supply. Titomas are perfect and there is a sufficiency of delphiniums, phloxes, daisies and other seasonable and outdoor-grown flowers.

Club Meeting.

There was a splendid attendance at the meeting of the Florists' Club September 11, fully up to the average in spite of the difficulties imposed by the street car strike. The only exhibit was made by John Canning, of Ardsley, plants of Salvia farinacea and its white variety.

J. R. Lewis, of Ralph M. Ward & Co., gave an interesting report for the S. A. F. convention transportation committee, including a description of the splendid welcome given the New York representatives by the New Orleans florists.

C. B. Weathered reported for the flower show committee and the schedule, which follows largely the lines of the schedule of 1916, was presented.

Nominations for membership were: Winifred Rolker, Clifford Lowther and Henry Schmidt.

John Young gave an interesting talk on the Houston convention and the warm southern welcome accorded all who attended. He predicted a record-breaker next year in New York. Vice-president-elect A. L. Miller expressed his appreciation of the honor given him and promised his best efforts in behalf of the convention. A unanimous vote of thanks was accorded the Houston club and the New Orleans society for courtesies to New York club members.

Jos. Manda gave a long and detailed account of the trip of the New Yorkers to New Orleans and Houston, covering about every waking hour of the trip and every detail of the work of the convention. H. A. Bunyard followed with an interesting account of the meeting of the American Sweet Pea Society at Bar Harbor. Messrs. Traendly, Totty, O'Mara, Holt, Manda, Bunyard and Young took part in the discussions that followed.

President Weston appointed Patrick O'Mara, Frank H. Traendly and Walter F. Sheridan a committee to prepare resolutions on the death of W. F. Kasting, and Chas. H. Totty, Peter Duff and Charles Knight a committee to prepare resolutions on the death of Wm. Tricker.

Various Notes.

The country fairs are in season. That of Mineola, L. I., will be the most interesting from the horticultural standpoint, as larger flower exhibits and more valuable prizes are announced for this affair, which opens September 26.

A convention of mayors from every part of the country was held last week at Newark, N. J. W. G. Badgley, mayor of Chatham, N. J., and president of Badgley & Bishop, Inc., had the honor of being the youngest mayor in the assemblage, having only rounded out his thirty-seventh year.

Woodrow & Marketos have completed the improvements in their store and display windows. Miss Cadeux has returned from Narragansett Pier, where she managed the firm's branch store during the summer season.

Reth & Duggan opened their new seed store, at 97 Barclay street, September 1 and are ready for their share of the fall trade.

Frank Traendly, of Traendly & Schenck, was in the city September 11 from his Rowayton farm, fighting his perennial enemy, hay fever. He says the firm's new range of 50,000 square feet is devoted entirely to carnations.

The big strike here interfered badly with business as the week opened. There is no telling how serious the affair will be.

Herman Warendorff says business is satisfactory, especially at his store in the Wall street district, "where all the brokers are fast becoming millionaires."

The majority of the retailers seem optimistic as to the coming fall and winter business.

Charles Millang is cutting daily at his farm at Bayside a fine lot of marigolds and the new varieties of gladioli.

The New York Florists' Supply Co. has enjoyed a most satisfactory season, with total sales of baskets and supplies of every kind far in excess of the 1915 business. The cold storage facilities have proved a wonderful convenience.

R. Vincent, Jr., was in the city this week, on his way to lecture at Lawrence, L. I., and visit James Duthie at Oyster Bay, L. I.

Charles Totty's new roses, Tipperary, Cleveland and Herriot, are attracting much attention at the store of Joseph S. Fenrich.

H. R. Scommadou, vice-president of A. L. Young & Co., is suffering from blood poisoning from an infected rose stem and had a narrow escape from losing his hand. He is convalescing.

William Kessler's large store now is complete, with new icebox and all, and is devoted entirely to his cut flower business.

Carl Elliott is back from a vacation at Deal Beach with some fish stories of great magnitude. He added some twenty pounds to his weight and now tips the scales at 300.

J. Austin Shaw.

The Horticultural Society of New York, in coöperation with the New York Botanical Garden, will hold a dahlia exhibition September 23 and 24, in the museum building, New York Botanical Garden. The prizes for this exhibition are offered by the New York Botanical Garden from the income of the William R. Sands fund. The exhibition will be open from 2 to 5 p. m. September 23 and from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. September 24. It is hoped that all interested in the dahlia will make entries and help to make the exhibition large and attractive. Schedules now are ready for distribution and will be sent upon application to the secretary, George V. Nash, the Mansion, New York Botanical Garden, Bronx park, New York.

Preparations are complete for the show to be held by the American Dahlia Society in conjunction with the American Institute at 25 West Thirty-ninth street, September 26 to 28. The schedule is a lengthy one and keen competition is expected. Silverware and medals are offered by the Dahlia Society, while cash premiums are offered by the American Institute, the total running to over $460. Every section of the dahlia is covered and there are divisions in the schedule for commercial growers, professional gardeners and amateurs, each being protected in their own division. Entries should be directed to William A. Eagleson, secretary of the American Institute, whose office is at 322 West Twenty-third street, N. Y., but all information relative to the American Dahlia Society, its work, membership and publications, should be addressed to J. Harrison Dick, 1426 Seventy-third street, Brooklyn, N. Y. Admission to the show will be free.

Labor day was observed by members of the Greenwood Florists' Employees' Association with an outing at Green island. The affair was the first to be conducted by the association, a south Brooklyn organization. In the athletic events the winners were: Fat men's race, James Daly; one-mile walk, John Watson; sack race, Daniel L. Donovan; one and one-half mile swim, Frank Keating; potato race, James Kennedy; low hurdle race, James Daly; 880-yard race, John Lyons. The officers of the association are: President, James J. Daly; vice-president, J. J. Kennedy; treasurer, George Gru; secretary, John Watson.

Perhaps it will interest many to hear what became of the property of Charles E. Grunewald, wealthy retailer and bachelor, who committed suicide August 26 in a room at the rear of his store at 924 Madison avenue, near Seventy-third street. For twenty years Mr. Grunewald had sent Andrew Eckrich out of his store just before luncheon each day to buy three cigars for a quarter. Mr. Grunewald always gave his employee one, lighted one himself, put the third in his pocket, and then said: "Well, Andrew, you'd better go get your meal." It was a daily ceremony, but one day when Mr. Eckrich came back he found Mr. Grunewald prostrate among the plants and flowers in the back room, a bullet wound through his left breast. Mr. Grunewald had shot himself. On the writing desk, conspicuously held in place by a paper weight, was a will bequeathing his prosperous business, his four bank accounts and all he possessed to Mr. Eckrich, who had worked faithfully for the retailer from the time he set up in business for himself. Mr. Grunewald was 57 years old. He came from Hamburg, Germany, before he was 21. He worked in several Fifth avenue stores a few years and then launched his own venture. He had no financial worries and seemed cheerful. But Mr. Eckrich, who knew him as no one else did, was aware that his employer and friend suffered from an incurable disease.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

The general supply of stock is much larger than it was and now can take care of all demands with ease. There is a good demand for stock for late summer and early fall weddings. Roses are in fair supply and when good meet with an active call. Asters for the first time this year are really plentiful. Easter lilies, too, are in heavy supply. Gladioli continue plentiful, but only the blooms of best quality are selling readily. Cosmos sells fairly well. Some good dahlias may be had.

Various Notes.

On the first of this month Joseph J. Ermeling took over the Max Rudolph store. Mr. Ermeling has had some years of experience in this place, knows the trade thoroughly and surely should "make good."

C. E. Critchell has been getting some excellent dahlias from J. C. Ruten-schroer.

Henry Schwarz again is on the sick list.

Mrs. Edward Schwarz has been ill since she returned from the lakes.

Recent visitors were Miss Emma Constable, of Blanchester, O.; J. P. Molek, Jeffersonville, Ind.; A. Miller, Chicago; Joseph Hill, Richmond, Ind.

C. H. H.

DETROIT, MICH.

The Market.

Last week stock was about as plentiful as that of the week previous. There were plenty of short Reid, Ward, Ophelia and other roses, the first two being inclined to drag somewhat. Medium and long roses clear as soon as the boxes are opened. American Beauties are good as regards bud and color. Valley continues to sell at $6 per hundred and is plentiful enough for requirements at present. Orchids are scarce; a few shipments arrive from the east. There are few carnations to be had, those available being too short-stemmed to be of much account. Asters are plentiful and rather druggy. The sale of gladioli is none too robust; many of the blooms rate rather poorly.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Breitmeyer and

Mr. and Mrs. M. McLaughlin motored to Chicago last week.

S. Taylor, formerly of Mount Clemens, Mich., was a visitor to Detroit last week. H. T.

DENVER, COLO.

The Market.

Business acquired a little speed during the last half of last week, a goodly quantity of funeral and wedding work enabling most of the retailers to clear all purchases. Carnations are improving in quality and the receipts have increased. Valley is a mighty scarce article, but all other items seem to fill requirements. American Beauties of good grade arrive, but they are quickly discovered and appropriated by the buyers. Most of the other roses have been badly hit by mildew, a misfortune attributed to the cold nights that have prevailed here. Gladioli are not so good as they were. Asters, however, continue abundant and their quality remains satisfactory.

Various Notes.

A. H. Bush, manager of the Daniels & Fisher flower department, has departed on a business trip to several mountain towns.

The Mauff Floral Co. is erecting a large greenhouse at its Logan street range. The Harmon range has been put through a process of repairing and repainting.

Fred Meyer, who is associated with the George Wittbold Co., of Chicago, has been a guest of several weeks' standing with Conrad Lengenfelder. The vacationist enjoyed Colorado Springs for a week.

Clyde Beugley has forsaken the florists' business for the automobile business.

Fred Schumann had the distinction of bringing in the first mums of the season September 9. He also is responsible for some excellent cosmos. R. S.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS.

"First impressions are most impressive," remarked Frank Baker, of C. F. Baker & Son, Utica, N. Y., as he was touching off a box of flowers with a few sprays of fine adiantum. "At least that is my belief," continued Mr. Baker, "and we work on that theory. Wedding and funeral business has been exceptionally good. Our new McCray refrigerator pleases us greatly." The refrigerator runs the entire length of the store and is finished in antique oak, to harmonize with the store decoration. William Mathews recently sent Son Harry as his proxy, to serve in company with Frank Baker as judge at the New Hartford show.

W. A. Rowlands, of Utica, says he cannot produce enough carnations to fill local orders. He has some low houses and has been advised, after the chrysanthemum crop is out, to fill up with one-day-old chicks, which may be grown to broilers in six weeks, a party guaranteeing 40 cents per pound. Though busily engaged in waiting on his dental patrons, the doctor is weighing the subject in his mind, for, as he says, broilers at that time are as scarce as the proverbial hens' teeth, and he might get a crop of them out before the space is needed for geraniums.

Brant Bros., of Utica, report business as opening up satisfactorily W. M.

The 1916 Addition to the Violet and Sweet Pea Establishment of Henry H. Geils, Itasca, Ill.

GEILS GROWS.

Henry H. Geils, of Itasca, Ill., has recently added four houses of American Greenhouse Mfg. Co. construction to his range. Two are 20x100 and two are 28x100. Mr. Geils has heretofore specialized in violets, but to the growing of these he has this year added sweet peas.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH.

The Market.

The usual summer dullness is practically over with, and the demand, as well as the supply, is turning back and starting to climb the ladder. The unusually cool nights that prevailed during the latter part of August, which still are prevalent, were, of course, of great value to the trade, of incalculable benefit to both the grower and the retailer.

Roses now are coming in fast, and the length of stems, the foliage and the buds are fine. The quality is extra good and the prospects for plenty of first-class roses this season are encouraging. Ophelia leads in popularity, followed by Shawyer, Hoosier Beauty and Helen Taft. The demand for American Beauty roses is heavy, while the supply is exceedingly short. The tea roses are only assorted into two grades, namely, select shorts and select mediums, selling at $4 and $6 per hundred, in all varieties. Long-distance shipments are being resumed and the stock is arriving in excellent condition.

Most of the carnation plants have been brought in from the fields and benched, and a few of the shorter-stemmed blooms are appearing in the market. In the spring the plants were brought to the ground with a heavy frost and the growers feared the market would suffer, but the plants revived, and the result is strong, stocky plants.

Gladioli have moved well and the price has been good, but there are few in the market now. Outdoor sweet peas are about done for, only a few short-stemmed ones being available. Asters are plentiful and some are of good quality and meet a good demand. A few early chrysanthemums are in the market, but they are not easily disposed of on account of the competition of fine asters, which may be had much more cheaply.

Potted Whitmani, Roosevelt and Boston ferns, together with Sprengeri, plumosus and Chatelaine begonias, move well. Cut Easter lilies and rubrum lilies are in fair demand.

Various Notes.

George K. Uno, who formerly was with Domoto Bros., of San Francisco, now is with the Willis-Horne Floral Co., as head florist and decorator.

Walter T. Gray has taken J. J. Johnson into partnership. They are growing a general line of potted plants.

Three steel houses, Moninger style, 50,000 feet of glass, have been added to the range of the Miller Floral Co., at Farmington. Robert Miller, manager of the company, reports that they are the finest houses constructed in the country, barring none. In two of the houses he has added 14,000 rose plants to his stock of 36,000—mostly Shawyer, Ophelia and Hoosier Beauty. In the third house 10,000 carnation plants have been added to the stock of 30,000. The supply of potted plants will be double that of last year and Mr. Miller says that everything looks better than it ever did before.

The Keith O'Brien Co. is handling its own flower department this season.

George Wray is placing some fine, large asters in the market. Some of them have 2-foot stems and are unusually large of bloom.

Bert Gray, of the B. C. Morris Floral Co., has been confined to his bed for some time with typhoid fever, but he is getting along nicely now.

The Huddart Floral Co. reports business as being brisk.

Charles Soter has returned home from a wild chicken hunt in the Uinta basin.

Ogden florists report a season of good business. The annual fashion show, held September 7 to 9, made business more lively there. Store window decorations and auto trimmings were many for the occasion. O. Farr.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

Flowers continue scarce and high-priced. There are some good asters in the market, but most of those coming in are second-grade, and even these are not plentiful. There is a fair supply of gladioli, these flowers being more plentiful than any others at the present time. Small supplies of cosmos and dahlias are coming in, but hardly in quantities sufficient to give variety to the market. Florists still have to resort largely to potted ferns for their window displays, with a few asters or gladioli to furnish a little color. Dry weather is retarding the growth of outdoor crops of all kinds in this section. There are occasional rains, but they are only heavy enough to moisten the surface of the soil, which has been dried to some depth. Growers report that the chrysanthemums are coming along well and that they expect a good season. With the advent of the first chrysanthemums in the local market the fall business will open up in earnest. Most of the retailers now are putting in their stock goods for the season. Funeral business is feeble at present and there are only occasional orders for weddings. The counter trade is small.

Various Notes.

The S. A. Rogers Nursery Co. reports that the cut flower business now is quiet, but that there are many orders for plants.

Chris Penek reports flowers scarce and high and business slow.

Rogers & Pierson, of South Orange, say that business is fair for this time of the year.

The Essex County Florists' Club soon will resume its fall activities and the officers are determined to make the coming year the most successful since the club was organized. R. B. M.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

The cut flower market was rather quiet last week; in fact, the week was about the slowest of the summer, and the wholesale houses were too well stocked. Gladioli, which had not been plentiful, are coming from all directions. Asters also are more abundant. Roses constitute a glut and the shorts are more than a glut, many of them going to the dump. Beauties are still short of the demand and lilies cling to the short side of the market. There are plenty of greens of all kinds.

The retail stores were complaining last week—funeral work diminished and the counter trade did not amount to much. The weddings were small affairs and did not require many flowers.

Various Notes.

The Ludwig Floral Co. has a good exhibit and is operating a flower stand at the exposition. This is the first flower stand that has been seen at the exposition for several years.

T. P. Langhans has returned from his fishing trip and had such good luck that he left with his family for Atlantic City to try to hook a shark.

OBITUARY

Mrs. John H. Johnson.

Mrs. J. H. Johnson, better known in the trade as Mrs. Rachel M. Rebstock, died at the Woman's hospital, in Buffalo, N. Y., September 11, at the age of 60 years, after a long period of illness. The largest part of her life was spent in the florists' business. She successfully conducted the flower store at 614 Main street, Buffalo, until she retired from active business about three years ago. Her ability and attractive personality had earned for her a good patronage. In 1912 she married John H. Johnson. She and her husband resided in the winter at Williamsville and spent the other months of the year at their summer home at Crystal Beach. She is survived by her husband and four brothers, John E., Albert C., Stephen J. and J. H. Rebstock. The funeral was held September 13, from the Johnson residence on Oxford avenue. A. E.

Mrs. James T. Aldous.

Mrs. James T. Aldous, mother of Arthur Herrington, by her first marriage, died September 3 at her home in Iowa City, Ia. She had been an invalid for months and had been confined to her home much of the time, although she took a trip east with her daughters during the present year.

Mrs. Aldous was born at Tangmere, Sussex county, England, December 23, 1840. She married William Herrington in 1861. Five of their children survive, these being, in addition to Arthur Herrington, Charles, of Kent, England; William, principal of schools in Sussex county, England; Drs. Ellen and Louise Herrington, of Iowa City. A third daughter died at the age of 22.

Mrs. Aldous came to America in 1907, accompanied by her two daughters, on a visit to her son, Arthur, at Madison, N. J. She had planned a year's visit, but she never returned to England. She met James T. Aldous at the home of her son, in 1909, and at the end of the year became his wife. Mr. and Mrs. Aldous went west and made their home in Iowa City. Mrs. Aldous was an intensely religious woman and was unusually active in church circles in both the United States and Canada.

James Broadfoot.

James Broadfoot, a lifelong florist and gardener, 69 years of age, died at his home at Geneva, N. Y., September 3. He was born in Dumfries, Scotland, and came to this country when a young man. He was superintendent of the estate of the late Senator Stephen H. Hammond for forty-five years. He is survived by three daughters, Kathryn E., Agnes F. and Mary E. Broadfoot, and one son, Robert M. Broadfoot, superintendent of Glenwood cemetery, Geneva.

Gustave C. Lange.

The death of Gustave C. Lange, of Indianapolis, is announced. Mr. Lange was born in Prussia March 19, 1839. Six of his fifty years in business were spent in Dallas, Tex., whence he removed to Indianapolis, where he spent the remainder of his life. He was head florist and gardener for the Indiana Central Hospital for the Insane several years ago, but in recent years had been in business on South Meridian street. Mr. Lange's special hobby was rare and unusual plants, with which he had great success. He is survived by a wife and five children. E. E. T.

William Langstaff.

William Langstaff, first president of the State Florists' Association of Indiana and for several years president of the Indianapolis Florists' Club, out of which the state organization developed, died recently at his home in Indianapolis and was buried with Masonic ceremony at his former home, Carrollton, Ky.

William Langstaff was born in England April 10, 1835, the eldest of a large family. He was apprenticed to a rose grower at an early age and before he was 16 sailed for America, where he at length became overseer on the estate of an English actor and playwright who was his uncle, later becoming superintendent for Washington Irving, who even at that early time employed four undergardeners. After various engagements in different parts of the country he removed to Indiana, where he was elected to the legislature and was the father of the eight-hour labor law for that state. Locating at Indianapolis, Mr. Langstaff was connected with the Institution for the Deaf for many years, as superintendent of grounds and greenhouses. He retired five years ago, on account of failing health. E. E. T.

HOLYOKE, MASS.

The annual picnic of the Holyoke and Northampton Florists' and Gardeners' Club was held on the last day of August, at the Gallivan Bros. range, near Smiths Ferry. More than 100 were present, including club members, their families and several guests. An excellent luncheon was served and this was prepared by a committee composed of D. J. Gallivan, G. H. Sinclair and George Ratcliffe. The principal event of the afternoon was the baseball game between the married and single men. R. S. Carey was captain of the married men's team, which won the game, and N. Hennessey, of Northampton, captained the "go-it-alone" team of players.

Inspection visits were paid to the Gallivan and Sinclair ranges and the visitors were particularly interested in the chrysanthemums, which both growers are raising to compete for the Skinner cup at the fall flower show of the club. Mr. Sinclair won the prize last year.

Delegations from the state college at Amherst and the Smith College greenhouses at Northampton were present and photographs were taken of the groups.

Texarkana, Ark.—H. D. Enoe, proprietor of the State Line Floral Co., is looking for a good season, although business in August was small and collections reported as almost impossible.

Tulsa, Okla.—O. O. Boston will open a modern retail cut flower store here about September 20, to be known as Boston's Flower Store. Mr. Boston was formerly employed by Furrow & Co., of Oklahoma City, Okla.

Vinita, Okla.—R. E. Moss was surprised at the strength of the demand for field-grown carnation plants in the west this season. He had a considerable surplus and put a classified ad in The Review. Almost by the time the paper with the ad in it arrived there were orders that took the whole lot, and in a few days they were ordered twice over.

Greenwood, Miss.—Fire recently damaged the residence here of Mrs. Edith Biddle and, although the flames did not spread to the greenhouse, numerous roses, lilies, ferns and shrubs in a field adjoining the house were completely ruined, including a batch of late asters and snapdragons. Mrs. Biddle started business eight months ago, on borrowed capital, so the loss was unusually severe.

Houston, Tex.—The Kuhlmann Floral Co. has been incorporated at $40,000, the officers being H. H. Kuhlmann, H. H. Kuhlmann, Jr., J. M. Powers, Jr., and Douglas B. Lacy.

Ada, Okla.—Ada is no longer a dry town; on the first day of September Providence sent a splendid rain that broke an unusually long and hot drought. The cotton plants now give promise of a good crop and W. E. Pitt, proprietor of the Ada Greenhouses, is as busy as a bee preparing for a banner fall and winter business.

Crichton, Ala.—Fred Welch, a leading nurseryman here, is visiting his brother, E. S. Welch, at the old home at Shenandoah, Ia., this month. Mr. Welch has been engaged in the growing of roses, hardy shrubs and other nursery stock in southern Alabama for sixteen years or more and usually ships one or two carloads each winter to his brother at Shenandoah. Fifteen years ago there were but three or four nurseries in southern Alabama, but now there are about thirty, several of them growing stock that counts up into tens of thousands of dollars in value. The coming into prominence of the Satsuma orange and the paper-shell pecan has been the leading incentive to the growth in the nursery industry.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Every florist knows through his own purchases what has happened in the paper market the last few months—prices have doubled all along the line.

And it takes more than four tons of paper each week to print The Review.

Many readers have been so kind as to write that The Review is worth considerably more to them than its subscription price. Well, the tremendous rise in the price of paper makes it no longer expedient to sell The Review at $1.00 a year.

The subscription price, therefore, will be advanced January 1, 1917, to $1.50 a year.

Until December 31, 1916, any member of the Trade may subscribe for one or more years at the old rate of $1.00 a year.

Readers whose present subscriptions do not expire until after January 1, 1917, may renew for as many years as they like at $1.00 per year, providing that such renewals are sent during 1916.

Send $1.00 and your subscription will be extended one year from the present date of expiration, whenever that may be.

Send $2.00 and the subscription will be extended two years from the present date of expiration.

Send $3.00 for three years, $5.00 for five years.

No renewals for a full year will be accepted at less than $1.50 unless they are mailed by December 31, 1916.

The Canadian subscription price will be $2.50 a year beginning January 1, 1917. Canadian renewals mailed on or before December 31, 1916, will be accepted at $2.00 a year.

Thirty-third annual convention, New York, N. Y., August 21 to 24, 1917.

Results bring advertising.
The Review brings results.

THERE will not be even one trade flower show of the first magnitude anywhere in the United States this autumn.

ASK the man who tells you how scarce chiffons are becoming and he will say the looms in France are otherwise employed, weaving gauze for bandages.

THERE is an occasional man in the trade who looks only on the dark side and who believes the sale of plants and cut flowers this winter will be curtailed by the high cost of more necessary commodities, but ninety-nine out of every hundred florists look forward to a banner season.

SCARCELY a day passes without an inquiry that does not reveal the identity of the sender, and many are of the simplest character. For instance, R. B. wants to know the price of a book. Why did he not sign his name and address, so that a prompt reply could be sent by mail? No attention ever is paid to anonymous inquiries.

THE prospect for violets is not reassuring, except for those who can use California shipments. In the Hudson river district, where Marie Louise is grown, the plants are not up to standard quality this year, nor is the supply so large as usual and many growers are dropping out, while in the middle west, where Princess of Wales is the favorite variety, the plants have had a severe season of heat and drought, so that the prospects are poor.

"WHICH REACHES THE TRADE."

Good as have been the returns to advertisers in other years, The Review seems to be doing still better this season for users of its space. Perhaps it is because of the shortage of stock all through the country, creating a better demand than usual, but this is the way Review ads work:

We are all sold out of the stock advertised and could have sold much more, all through The Review, which certainly reaches the trade.—J. B. Goetz Sons, Saginaw, Mich., September 2, 1916.

We have had great success with our ads in The Review; we are completely sold out of Chatelaine Begonias and Asparagus Sprengeri.—Temperley's, Indianapolis, Ind., August 30, 1916.

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty sure he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

WHERE THE ORDERS WENT.

In view of the number of letters that have come to The Review in the last few weeks with regard to the non-arrival of cyclamen seeds from Germany, it is apparent that a great many readers will be interested in the following from Ferd. Fischer, Wiesbaden, which reached The Review on a post card:

Please do not publish again my advertisement of cyclamen seeds because orders, checks and The Review also do not arrive more since months now.

The card was dated at Wiesbaden June 30 and did not reach Chicago until September 12. The fact that it bears the O. K. of the British censor shows where it has been in the meantime and where the "orders, checks and The Review" have gone—the censor is holding them up.

The indications are a large number of growers have been ordering their cyclamen seed of Mr. Fischer and they will gather from this that they will not receive the seeds this year.

THE COUNTRY'S CROPS.

The estimates of the U. S. Department of Agriculture indicate the total production of important crops this year, compared with last year, as follows: Corn, 88.7 per cent; wheat, 60.4; oats, 79.9; barley, 77.8; rye, 85.1; buckwheat, 100.1; white potatoes, 88.7; sweet potatoes, 93.3; tobacco, 115.4; flaxseed, 107.6; rice, 113.4; hay, 101.1; clover hay, 108.8; sugar beets, 117.7; cotton, 105.4; apples, 88.3; peaches, 58.2. The estimated number of stock hogs in the country September 1 is 3.8 per cent less than a year ago. The acreage intended for clover seed is estimated to be 9.1 per cent more than cut last year; the condition is 6.1 per cent better than average, forecasting a production about 15 to 18 per cent more than last year.

OF NO USE TO US.

The revenue bill as it became law last week does not cover the points made by W. F. Gude, Washington representative of the S. A. F., in his communications to the Senate committee. Mr. Gude, speaking for the S. A. F., sought an anti-dumping law to prevent the forced sale in America of horticultural products not salable in the European country of their production—in short, a law to prevent the shipment here of plants and bulbs for sale at auction or otherwise to the injury of the established houses here. The law contains an "unfair competition" clause, but it will have no bearing on our trade, for, while it may be done "commonly and systematically," none can prove that "such acts be done with the intent of destroying an industry in the United States."

This is the section in full:

Sec. 801. That it shall be unlawful for any person importing or assisting in importing any articles from any foreign country into the United States, commonly and systematically to import, sell or cause to be imported or sold such articles within the United States at a price substantially less than the actual market value or wholesale price of such articles, at the time of exportation to the United States, in the principal markets of the country of their production, or of other foreign countries to which they are commonly exported, after adding to such market value or wholesale price, freight, duty and other charges and expenses necessarily incident to the importation and sale thereof in the United States: Provided, That such act or acts be done with the intent of destroying or injuring an industry in the United States, or of preventing the establishment of an industry in the United States, or of restraining or monopolizing any part of trade and commerce in such articles in the United States.

Any person who violates or combines or conspires with any other person to violate this section is guilty of a misdemeanor, and, on conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $5,000, or imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both, in the discretion of the court.

Any person injured in his business or property by reason of any violation of, or combination or conspiracy to violate, this section, may sue therefor in the district court of the United States for the district in which the defendant resides or is found or has an agent, without respect to the amount in controversy, and shall recover threefold the damages sustained, and the cost of the suit, including a reasonable attorney's fee.

STAMP TAXES ENDED.

With the signing of the new revenue bill which thereby became law last week the emergency stamp taxes which have been in force since December 1, 1914, came to an end. These were not important as regards the sums of money florists were required to pay, but they were an annoyance for the reason that they called for constant attention. The trade now is relieved from the necessity of affixing a penny stamp to every express receipt the pickup man is asked to sign, from telegrams, etc.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

The passing week has perhaps been less marked by activity in the market than any other in the course of several months. Demand began to ease off the latter part of last week and, though it rallied to a certain extent the early part of this week, it has not yet regained the strength of ten days ago. Because of a decidedly shorter supply, this has been less noticeable than it otherwise would have been. In fact, really good stock is unusually scarce, while stock of inferior quality is more than plentiful. Shipping trade is good; but stock of a grade to satisfy it is not so easily obtained.

Beauties are in fair supply and the demand, while not great, is encouragingly strong. In the matter of quality, there is little room for complaint. The supply of other roses of a salable grade has been short of the demand. Of short roses of indifferent quality there has been no end. So scarce was good long Russell during the opening of the week that it was with difficulty that fifty could be found on the market which were not already set aside for an order. Under the circumstances it perhaps was fortunate that demand was no more urgent.

Valley, though not so scarce as it was last week, still is decidedly on the short side of the market. Easter lilies, too, are far from plentiful and command a good price. Though there is practi-

WE OFFER A FINE CUT OF MEDIUM-LENGTH BEAUTIES

MEDIUM-LENGTH BEAUTIES are in greater demand than any other flower—one might say the supply never is equal to the demand. But at present our cut runs so largely to the medium lengths that we can supply others as well as our regular customers. It is fine stock in every respect. Try some today and we feel sure you will reorder tomorrow.

THE POPULAR ROSES

You will recognize our list as containing the Roses that stand highest with your customers: Russell, Sunburst, Milady, Ward, Killarney Brilliant, Ophelia. Specially strong on Russell. The quality is good.

We are now getting the first cut from many houses of young plants, so that we have an unusually large supply of shorter lengths.

WHITE—MUMS—YELLOW

Smith's Advance now can be supplied in moderate quantity, as well as Golden Glow. It is first-class stock in both colors, grown by specialists.

EASTER LILIES

While we never are without good Giganteum Lilies, our supply this week is larger than usual. The stock is fine, cut tight for shipping.

THE NEWER GLADIOLI

We still have a fine cut of Gladioli—all the old favorites, like America, King and Augusta, and novelties you seldom can find elsewhere, like Glory, Myrtle, Mrs. Pendleton, etc.

ASTERS

You can get good Asters in all colors here.

GREENS

Ferns, Adiantum, Mexican Ivy and Asparagus strings and bunches.

LILY OF THE VALLEY

We can supply all the Valley you need—on telegraph order if need be, but why not arrange for regular shipments, so YOU will always have some on hand?

cally no demand for cattleyas, they are so unusually scarce that the few finding their way to the market sell at a fancy figure. Although there is an appreciable letup in the supply of gladioli, it is yet large and sales must be numerous and of more than fair size to clear the market. With respect to asters, it is the same old story—there are not nearly enough good ones to satisfy the demand, while culls are in abundance. Rubrums are clearing. The supply of chrysanthemums is slowly increasing. Demand for them, too, is becoming less erratic. The few marigolds and the still fewer mignonettes that reach the market are disposed of without difficulty.

Green goods are no exception to the general rule. Smilax has been extremely scarce, and there is not more than enough plumosus to go around.

Amling to Make Auto Delivery.

Up to this time it has not been the custom in this market for wholesale cut flower houses to make deliveries; the city customer has been expected to take his purchases with him, or to send for them if he bought by phone. It has been thought impossible to make deliveries on the small margin afforded by the wholesaler's fifteen per cent. But it gradually has become custom to make special accommodation deliveries by boy and last week the E. C. Amling Co. ordered a Ford with panel body and September 25 will put it into service for delivery purposes. If it proves a trade winner through improved service, others will be ordered as needed.

John Michelsen, of the Amling Co., went to Evansville, Ind., September 9 and is spending the week on his annual eastern trip. He will visit New York, Rhinebeck and several cities en route.

the Morrison hotel, September 7. It was not a large meeting, as not to exceed fifty members were present. But lack of numbers did not stand in the way of its being one of the most interesting meetings in many months. And the cause of this interest had its rise in the feature of the evening, a paper by Allie Zech, of Zech & Mann, entitled "Cut Flowers from a Commission Man's Viewpoint," printed in full in this issue of The Review. The club showed its appreciation by according Mr. Zech a vote of thanks.

Following the paper the subject was open for general discussion, and the question of the department store sale of flowers and the disposal of surplus stock was argued and discussed from all possible angles. Those figuring chiefly in the general discussion were Alex. Henderson, John Michelsen, Peter Pearson and George Asmus. As this occupied the greater part of the evening, there was little time left for other business, though the matter of street car and daily newspaper advertising was touched upon, but without resulting in anything definite.

The guest of the evening was Arthur

Herrington, of Madison, N. J., who addressed the club on the subject of the flower show to be held in Pittsburgh next June, under the auspices of the Garden Club. As Mr. Herrington is to be manager of this show, his talk was fraught with much interest. He took occasion to distribute a preliminary premium list.

A communication from the Vegetable Growers' Association of America was read, in which it asked the support of members of the club in the matter of volunteering automobiles for the entertainment of visiting gardeners September 27. The association expects to entertain a large number, including local and visiting gardeners. The entertainment will comprise an automobile trip about Chicago and vicinity, with a chicken dinner at the Wayside Inn, Morton Grove. A committee to handle the matter of supplying automobiles was appointed, composed of Fred Lautenschlager, chairman; E. F. Kurowski and P. J. Foley.

The question of entering a team in the Mercantile Bowling League was discussed briefly. The chief difficulty seemed to be the scarcity of bowlers.

During the course of the evening Martin Amling and Emil Schnake, both of Maywood, filed application for membership.

An important announcement of the meeting was that of the birth of Paul Klingsporn, Jr., son of Treasurer Klingsporn, not many hours preceding the meeting.

Niles Township.

A pictorial town book by E. Palma Beaudette appeared last week, devoted to Niles Center, Morton Grove, Niles village and Tessville, all in Niles township. As is quite natural considering the extent of the greenhouse industry in the township, florists occupy a conspicuous place in the book. Among those who are written up, August Poehlmann is president of the village of Morton Grove and Adolph Poehlmann is police magistrate. In the write-up of the Poehlmann plant several interesting notes are found. For instance:

"The splendid coöperation, honesty and trust in each other of this remarkable family is exhibited again in their intention to take on the younger generation as soon as they are capable and show their ability. There are five boys now in line as successors. It is sincerely hoped that these young men will prove as capable and energetic as their fathers before them."

"There are eight miles of greenhouses twenty-seven feet wide; 300 to 400 men are constantly employed; the payroll last year was $245,000."

"The yearly consumption of coal amounts to 135,000 tons."

There are write-ups of many other florists, numerous florists' ads and many other interesting things in the book.

Various Notes.

It is announced that September 16 Joseph Marks, well known to florists over a large section of the country as the representative of the Arnold Paper Box Co., will join the forces of A. Henderson & Co. Mr. Marks will start next week on a trip through the eastern and northern territory for Henderson & Co., Guy Reburn, one of the partners in the firm, being in the southwest.

The Garland flower store will be opened at 7409 North Clark street next week by J. A. Weber. The new store will be operated by Mrs. Weber, her husband continuing to manage the drug store next door, which he has owned for several years.

Lily of the valley has sold for 6 cents during the last week. This is not so high a price as has been reported in eastern markets, but it shows the diminishing supply here. H. N. Bruns, who is the principal force, says he will be able to put a moderate quantity on the market for a considerable time, but he does not see how any important further supply of pips is to be obtained under present conditions.

Any florist who is interested in outdoor work will do well to devote an afternoon to a visit to Mt. Greenwood cemetery. There is no more beautiful spot within a day's journey, and none so well maintained. The picture continues to improve from year to year. The greenhouses, too, are as neat as a new pin and will afford special interest for carnation and chrysanthemum growers.

The Civil Service Board of the West Park Commissioners will hold an examination October 3, in the pavilion at Garfield park, for florists for the conservatory and gardens, the positions paying $80 to $90 per month. The examination is open to men over 21, regardless of residence. Application blanks may be obtained by addressing Fred G. Heuchling, superintendent of employment, Union park.

Members of the trade are congratulating Edward Ahles, of the A. L. Randall Co., on his marriage September 6 to Miss Esther Candrian. C. Guza, of the cut flower department, has just returned from a short vacation.

After spending a most enjoyable time at Ocean City, N. J., and other eastern points following her attendance on the S. A. F. convention in Houston, Tex., M. C. Gunterberg returned to the city this week prepared to handle the fall rush.

attachment has been purchased by the Poehlmann Bros. Co., to handle the unloading of soil cars and the loading of wagons. Adolph Poehlmann purchased a new 7-passenger Winton Six last week and now the company, with a fleet of five trucks and three touring cars, has found it necessary to employ an expert mechanic to keep things in running order. Thomas Conlon, superintendent of the plant department, left September 2 for a vacation trip to the east. His family, which preceded him by a week, will return with him in a fortnight. Tony Gabel leaves the third week in September for an extended tour of the state, visiting the trade. He is all through with his carnation planting.

After enjoying a month's vacation in the Yellowstone National park, Miss Mabel Louise Wheelock, formerly designer and water-colorist for the Lord & Burnham Co., is now with the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co.

On the recent Wisconsin automobile tour made by E. F. Winterson, Jr., and a friend the casualties were: One puncture, one blowout, one broken spring, one pig for the demise of which $14 was exacted.

W. N. Rudd has been kept home by illness several days since his return from his trip east, made to attend the convention of cemetery men at Norfolk, Va.

team of Wittbold boys played the Lake View team of Wittbold boys at Edgebrook. Lake View won with a score of nine to six. This squared matters, as the other team won last year. E. R. Armstrong managed the game.

In speaking of gladioli, Charlie Erne, of Erne & Klingel, called attention to the extreme scarcity of really good America this year.

The new rose, Lady Alice Stanley, is being cut in the greenhouses of Peter Reinberg, according to Felix Reichling. This is the first year this variety has been grown in this establishment. He also reports a cleanup on all surplus carnation plant stock.

The last of the fishermen, swimmers and other vacationers are trooping homeward and the woods and fields are beginning to take on the appearance of autumn. And now Philip C. Schupp, manager of the J. A. Budlong wholesale house, is betraying an interest in things out of doors. For when the dead leaves and grass have been burned by the farmers, he will slip away at odd times to indulge his hobby of collecting artifacts.

Neighbors of Julius Keller, a landscape gardener of Hubbard Woods, found his wife and his 12-year-old stepson asphyxiated September 12. A coroner's jury returned a verdict of suicide while temporarily insane in Mrs. Keller's case and accidental death in that of the boy. So far, Mr. Keller, who was last seen September 9, has not been located.

Visitors.

Arthur Herrington, of Madison, N. J., was in the city last week, being called to Iowa City, Ia., by the death of his mother, who was Mrs. J. Aldous, wife of the florist there.

A visitor on members of the trade last week was Henry Breitmeyer, of Detroit, Mich.

Business called P. W. Peterson, of the Thompson Carnation Co., Joliet, to the city September 8.

W. C. Johnson, of Minneapolis, who was a visitor on the market this week, will open a new store in that city at 7 South Sixth street, September 16. The new place will be operated under the business style of Johnson & Co.

A visitor on the trade this week was Mrs. John Karl Richter, of the establishment of John J. Le Borious, of Duluth. Mrs. Richter's husband, now deceased, was at one time a well-known Chicago florist.

MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

Stock has begun to come in quite heavily during the last week and business, taken as a whole, shows improvement. Conditions are much better and from present indications fall business should be satisfactory.

Roses are in exceptionally fine shape and there is a variety that meets all requirements. The demand is heavy and the large supply is moving readily at fair prices. Asters still are with us in quantity and the quality also is there. The trade is buying the supply easily and the market is in fairly good shape. Gladioli are plentiful and the quality remains good. Little trouble is experienced in moving the entire cut. Valley still is unusually scarce and there is not nearly enough on the market to supply the demand.

Some fine chrysanthemums are already to be seen and the stock is picked up at once. If the quality of the stock is an indication of what the late stock will be like, some prize blooms will be sold this fall.

The retailers report a healthy increase in business and are optimistic for the success of the coming season.

Various Notes.

L. B. Thorpe, foreman for the Greenwood Carnation Co., North Milwaukee, who has recovered from a severe illness, celebrated his return to health by taking unto himself a wife. Miss Kramer, of this city, is the bride and the ceremony was performed September 6, at the home of her parents. The newlyweds now are touring the east, taking in Grand Haven, Detroit, Buffalo, Albany and down the Hudson to New York. Mr. Thorp expects to be on the job again in two or three weeks.

Among the visitors last week were J. Karins, with Henry A. Dreer, Philadelphia; F. J. Farney, with the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia; Joseph Clarkson, of Manistee, Mich.

Milwaukee now is being blessed with its annual state fair. The florists have made large preparations and some exceptionally fine exhibits are being staged. A. Leidiger is assistant superintendent of the plant and flower department and the judges in this department are: Nic Zweifel, of Milwaukee; John G. Heitman, of Milwaukee; J. E. Matthewson, of Sheboygan, Wis.; William Longland, of Lake Geneva.

H. J. S.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

Neither retail nor wholesale business showed much improvement last week, but there was a large batch of funeral work that formed an outlet for the increased receipts of stock. The new crop of roses is quite heavy, but the hot weather, which returned last week, causes the blooms to open too quickly and thereby renders them practically useless before the morning sales are over. Russell roses seem to monopolize the demand and they really are the only roses that make a decent price.

Few carnation are seen, those to be had being field-grown, but a fine crop of greenhouse blooms is expected shortly. A spell of steady, cool weather would bring the plants around in great style. Chrysanthemums have come to the fore, but as yet the quantity is limited. Gladioli still are arriving heavily and they seem to sell satisfactorily. Asters, which at present lead as the best sellers, now come in reduced consignments. Splendid single red dahlias from a nearby dahlia farm catch the eye of many a buyer. Lilies are in fair supply and demand. Valley is somewhat scarce; the same may be said of orchids. All greens are in plenteous supply, save smilax, which is far over on the short side of the market.

Various Notes.

The St. Louis County Growers' Association held its regular meeting September 6, at the Eleven Mile House. Secretary Deutschmann reports that the meeting was well attended and that a good-sized batch of business was transacted. The forthcoming spring flower show and the recent S. A. F. convention came in for discussion. An invitation to the members to attend in a body the grand opening October 14 of the new wholesale house was accepted.

Martin Lechner, of Lechner Bros., bulb importers, returned last week after a long stay on the Mexican border with the troops. He received a 30-day leave to attend to the shipment of the firm's many advance orders of bulbs.

week calling on the trade. Mr. Hasselman reports good business throughout the summer.

August Hummert, vice-president of the St. Louis Seed Co., says that the demand for bulbs has been large, both local and out-of-town. Mail orders for winter-flowering sweet pea seeds seem to be increasing each week.

W. J. Pilcher, of Kirkwood, has started to cut heavily of roses. The Russell roses are particularly fine and Mr. Pilcher says he expects a heavy crop in all other varieties in a short time.

Miss Madelaine Carroll opened a first-class flower store Thursday, September 14, at 239 North Euclid avenue. Miss Carroll's many friends assure her their support. The location is a good one and should make the venture a success.

Miss Emma Sander, lately with Vandervoort's flower department, has accepted a position with the St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co. as book-keeper and stenographer.

The St. Louis Retail Florists' Association will hold its monthly meeting Monday night, September 18, at the Mission Inn Garden. All retailers in the city are invited to attend this meeting, as it will be of great importance to them.

The funeral of Charles A. Stix created a big demand in the flower market last week. Telegraph orders came from all parts of the country and The Review advertisers reaped a harvest.

Miss Armstrong, of Newman's, returned from her summer vacation last week. Miss M. S. Newman will follow her home this week. Both enjoyed the summer months in Colorado.

Angermueller's place is undergoing a 'clean-up' under the supervision of Fred Alves and Harry Schlechter. By the end of the week everything will be ready for the fall and winter season.

W. D. Fraser, representing the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, Eureka, Cal., and A. M. Anderson, of the Randall Co., Chicago, called on the trade last week. E. W. Guy and H. Emunds, of Belleville, Ill.; Edward Denker, of St.

Charles, Mo., and a number of suburban florists were in the city last week buying supplies in the wholesale district.

The W. A. Rowe Floral Co., of Kirkwood, was incorporated last week at $20,000, all of which is paid up. The stockholders are W. A. Rowe, 175 shares; Mrs. Kerben, Mr. Rowe's mother, twenty-four shares, and Mrs. Rowe, one share. The company has two houses, each 36x300, and two houses are in course of erection, making a total of 50,000 square feet of glass. The old range nearby contains 25,000 feet of glass. The output of the two ranges is handled in the local market.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

Just when everybody expected the cut flower market to be strong, it weakened. With an excellent August, with a good first week in September, a break came September 8 that upset calculations. There are not so many asters and gladioli. Dahlias have not yet come in heavily. The cause was the heavy increase in the receipts of roses, more Easter lilies and no more business.
Flowers have ceased to sell on arrival.
There were accumulations in the wholesale houses, unknown for weeks past.
With these accumulations have come sales at extremely low figures, and waste.

Many growers of roses who have not been cutting during the summer have commenced to cut and ship this week, adding, all told, heavily to the receipts.
Some growers of Easter lilies have cut a lot of flowers, more than they intended, the hot weather rushing their crops into flower, while the first shipments of new crop carnations have come from a number of different sources. These carnations are, generally speaking, nice flowers, with rather short stems. Prices are lower and the average price is much lower. These are the special features of a dull market.

Dahlias are late, owing to the lack of rain. They are increasing in number. Given sufficient water, they will jump into a leading position at any moment.

The Club Contests.

The announcement that George Burton, who has so ably presided over the Florists' Club's meetings for the last two years, would not serve again, has brought out two candidates for president at the meeting October 3. Both have rendered excellent service to the club in making the National Flower Show last March so pronounced a success. Both are able, aggressive men of broad ideas. Here are the points of similarity, and there is a single point of such great difference that it overshadows all others—while one candidate, Adolph Farenwald, is a florist who has been in the club's councils for many years, the other, W. F. Therkindson, is the advertising chief of a great seed house, whose genius filled Convention hall as no one ever expected it could be filled by a flower show. The contest, then, is between the man who brought the flower show to this city and the man who brought the people to the show.

There is another contest also of great interest. It is for the office of secretary. The present incumbent, David Rust, has served the club long and faithfully. He never misses a meeting and takes a pride in his work that is unmistakable. The aspirant for the position, Fred Cowperthwaite, is one of our rising young men. His work as chairman of the bureau of information at the National Flower Show brought that bureau into a leading position that will increase its value to all future shows as a means of getting in touch with all flower lovers. The issue is clearly defined—does the club wish to continue its present methods or does it wish to change them?

Such contests are a benefit to the

B. Eschner tells a funny story on the redoubtable William F. Gude, of Washington, D. C. It seems that Mr. and Mrs. Gude were visiting friends at Elkins Park, where Mr. Eschner lives. Mr. Eschner took the visiting couple for a ride in his car and then to the station, where they were to start for home. Mr. Eschner has lots of the boy in him, so as the Gudes boarded the train he pelted them with rice. Mr. Gude was so excited that he rushed Mrs. Gude into the smoking car. It seemed for a minute that the gifted orator, the able man of business, the man of many sons, had quite lost his head at being treated like a honey-mooner.

J. Stephenson's Son is planning a cold storage at Oak Lane.

It looks as though 1725 Chestnut street had passed into history as a flower store. Phil.

Out in Torresdale, according to Edward T. Murray, the season now closing has been one of good business. Flowers were scarce most of the time, but that is just the point—inadequate supplies made prices good. Asters have been "punk;" it was too wet for the early varieties and much too dry for the late ones. Gladioli have given a fairly good account of themselves, but the drought seems to have hit the dahlias below the belt.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

Business last week improved somewhat. The stores are beginning to book fall wedding orders, as well as answering inquiries regarding dinner and dance decorations. A heavy season is looked for. The weather has turned cool and more flowers are being sold for personal adornment than for some time. In addition, funeral work has been more plentiful.

Stock is coming in better and the demand in all lines is reasonably good. American Beauty roses are fine and are bringing $2 and $3 per dozen. Other roses also have shown a marked improvement since the weather changed and from a bottom price of $2 they go all the way up to $8 per hundred for the best, although the sales are largely confined to medium grades. Particularly good at this time are Radiance, Red Radiance, Mock and Ophelia, all of which are in good demand.

Orchids are more plentiful, but the price remains high. Sales last week were at $9 and there is little prospect of a reduction soon. Valley is scarce and there are times when it is impossible to get an order filled. This is a popular item in Washington, and the florists feel its loss acutely. There are a few gardenias still to be had. The new crop carnations show marked improvement and these are selling fairly well at $1 and $1.50 per hundred. There is something of a shortage of asters and it was difficult at times last week to fill quantity orders for white ones. Dahlias show a marked improvement and are more plentiful than they have been.

Club Meeting.

Edward S. Schmid tendered to the members of the Washington Florists' Club and a limited number of friends the annual crab feast which has become a sort of institution with the club.

The affair was held, in connection with the regular meeting, in the "grotto" at 1214 F street, northwest.

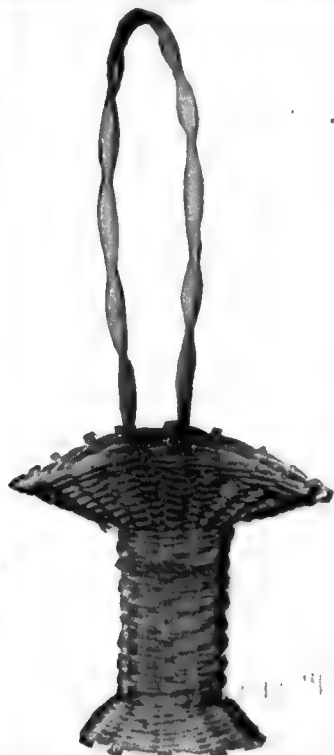

Another feature of the evening was the motion picture show, the films for which were furnished through the secretary by Sidney B. Lust, proprietor of the United Film Service, while additional films featured some of the florists and their friends. Fred H. Kramer, as "captain" of the "Deutschland," was the hero whose landing from his submarine was depicted in several hundred feet of film.

Mr. Schmid was called upon to acknowledge a standing vote of thanks extended to him by those present. Richard Vincent, Jr., of White Marsh, Md., had a few words to say on dahlias and association, and Peter Pullman, William F. Gude, I. Goldsmith and others did their part to make the evening a pleasant one.

During the business meeting, which preceded the festivities, the names of Herbert M. Sauber, of Z. D. Blackstone's store, and Otto Schoeps, who is connected with the store of J. H. Small & Sons, were presented for membership.

President Jenkins reported upon a conference with officials of the Aquarium Society of Washington relative to the holding jointly of a flora and fauna show in this city late in the fall. Mr. Jenkins recommended that no further action be taken at this time, suggesting that it would be inadvisable, under existing conditions, to consider the holding of such an event.

Edward Niedomanski brought before the club the desirability of its being represented during the coming bowling season by a good team and that one be entered in the Commercial Duck Pin League, to be known as the club team. The proposal met with the hearty ap-

"Bob" Heintz, now of Washington, but better known in Terre Haute, Ind., as the son of John G. Heintz, appeared quite conspicuously in the limelight recently by the arrival of "Bob" Heintz, Jr., and also by having returned home after a somewhat protracted sojourn in the Emergency hospital, where he underwent an operation. He now is receiving double congratulations.

George C. Shaffer last week observed paint-up and clean-up week at his store at Fourteenth and I streets, northwest, repainting the entire interior and generally getting the establishment in good shape in preparation for the fall.

The Washington Floral Co., of Fourteenth street, northwest, had occasion last week to again report to the police department a robbery at its garage. A considerable quantity of automobile equipment was stolen by someone who seems to have picked out this garage for a series of robberies.

weeks in receiving good shipments of gladioli. The gladioli have been good, on the whole, and have sold splendidly. There is a larger cut of asters now and the quality of these is improving greatly. Some fine white and lavender are in the market. Sweet peas are extremely scarce and can hardly be had at any price. A few carnations arrive, but they are so short-stemmed and small that they are almost unsalable. Some good Easter lilies are arriving, but in limited quantities. Valley is quite scarce, and with the advanced prices the demand is not at all large. We are receiving a fair quantity of roses, which are improving in quality. Among the best varieties are Francis Scott Key, Hadley, Ward, Sunburst, Ophelia, Maryland, Russell and the Killarneys. Cecile Brunner roses sell nicely and are becoming more popular. Buddleia is being used in decorations and vases. Gaillardias, cosmos and coreopsis arrive in small quantities and sell fairly well. Orchids are not overplentiful and the demand is small. Sweet alyssum and candytuft are found useful for funeral designs. There is an ever-growing demand for flower baskets, which are being used for all occasions. Green goods of all kinds are plentiful.

Various Notes.

Among recent visitors were Robert Bard, of Syracuse, N. Y.; Jack Erbe, of Buffalo, N. Y.; H. Kurth, of Reed & Keller, New York; Mr. and Mrs. James Bates, of Oakfield, N. A certain florist in Alabama, as an experiment, put out last year about 2500 of our catalogues. Of course, these were his catalogues—to all appearances. They bore his name; they illustrated his goods. He distributed them judiciously, according to our advice.

ester florists, as they sell well. By arranging flowers in the dishes the retailer not only increases the sale of the dishes but also sells the flowers thus displayed.

An added attraction at the exposition flower show, which was received during the week, was a generous supply of aquatic plants and numerous cut water lilies from Henry A. Dreer, Inc., of Philadelphia. George Cramer, who had charge of the lily pond in the peristyle and also in the hall, is to be highly congratulated on his work.

E. P. Wilson and A. H. Salter were judges at the recent flower show held at Webster, N. Y.

McCray Florists' Refrigerators

The McCRAY construction keeps flowers cool and fresh longer than by any other system of refrigeration. It provides an even temperature of the correct degree for cut flowers and stops the great waste and profit loss that is caused by imperfect refrigeration.

The various compartments in a McCRAY are of different sizes to accommodate the different lengths of cut flower stems and your flowers are given an inviting display.

For interior linings you have your choice of either handsome bevel plate mirror or beautiful white enamel, which are very easy to clean. The exterior may be of any finish desired to match the interior of your store woodwork or other fixtures.

Invest in a McCRAY. Make it a partner in your business. You will value it more highly than its mere intrinsic dollar-and-cents value. Investigate anyway!

As previously stated, there are occasional shipments which include some superb asters, mostly grown indoors, but these seem to lack lasting qualities. The prices of asters are vacillating anywhere between $1 and $4 per hundred. Gladioli are slowly diminishing in quantity and deteriorating in quality. Valley and orchids continue scarce. Easter lilies are not overabundant.

There have been some extra fine snapdragons on the market. Other outdoor flowers are few. Cosmos and marigolds are about the only ones that are in evidence; apparently the others are on the wane. Tritomas are to be had now and then, but these, too, are going along with the rest. Delphiniums clear without any difficulty, being seldom sufficient for the public demand at this time of the year. Greens are moving along satisfactorily, as the supply seldom gets larger than the demand.

Various Notes.

Edward Stratmeyer has returned to his duties, after a pleasant vacation at Boston.

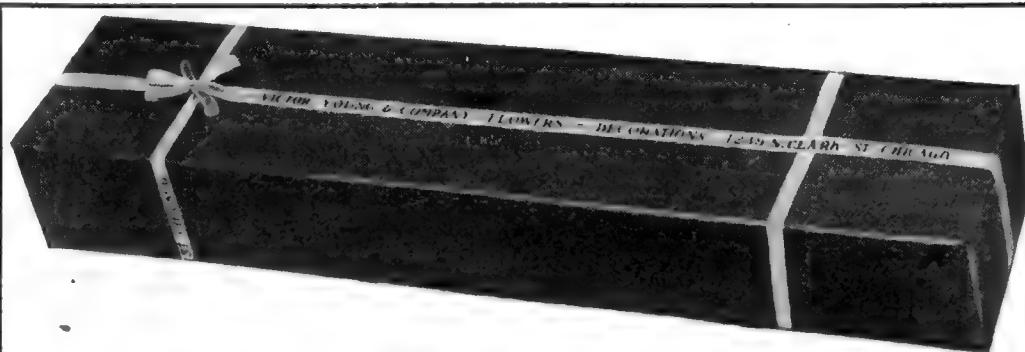

At Charles Sandiford's greenhouses there is a large batch of clean chrysanthemum plants, from which he expects to cut some superb blooms. He has had a heavy run of funeral work in the last week. The ordering of a new truck for landscape work is contemplated. Mr. Sandiford will soon take an extended eastern trip, including calls at the nurseries of New Jersey. On his homeward journey he will stop off at Detroit, Mich.

S. A. Anderson has returned from his summer home at Farnham. Exceptional credit must be given to the window decoration at the Anderson store, as some unusually effective windows are seen there this season. Mr. Adams, of the Anderson staff, also has returned from his vacation.

Wm. C. Ehmann, of Corfu, was in town last week. He has been sending in some Golden Glow mums, which find a good market.

The Lenox Flower Shop reports September business a little dull, but during the month of August business was much better than in the corresponding period of previous years.

The Market.

Business has been exceptionally good for this time of year, owing to the deaths resulting from an epidemic of typhoid. The supply of stock hardly equals the demand, but roses are becoming more plentiful; short stock in all colors is to be had from 2 cents to 4 cents, a few firsts and selects bringing 5 cents and 6 cents. Beauties are to be had from 75 cents to $3 per dozen, but they are not in great demand. Asters are scarce; mediums are from 2½ cents to 3 cents, selects bringing as high as 5 cents. Lilies also are scarce and bring from 10 cents to 12 cents. Carnations are not available in large quantity. Mums are beginning to arrive at $1.50 to $2 per dozen and are finding a good market. Gladioli are scarce and dahlias out of the question, the hot, dry season causing the failure of these two crops.

The plant business is rapidly picking up, owing to the fact that seventy grade schools and three high schools opened this week, which means that there are 1,300 schoolrooms to be decorated. The plant business is encouraging and business prospects for the next few months are good.

State Florists' Meeting.

The monthly meeting of the State Florists' Association of Indiana was held at the commission and supply house of the Smith & Young Co., September 7. The meeting started with more vim, vigor and snap than ever before. A great deal of business was on hand, which was followed by several interesting discussions. Foundation plans were laid for the coming of the American Carnation Society, January 31 and February 1, at the Claypool hotel. Arrangements also were made for a float for the Indiana centennial pageant in October.

The next meeting will be an unusual one, a two days' session, to be held the first day at New Albany, Ind., the second at Louisville, Ky., with the Kentucky State Florists' Association. The date for this will be set later.

The city attendance for the meeting was large. Out-of-town members present were: President William J. Vesey, Fort Wayne; Wm. Gardener, Richmond; Jake Itle, Greencastle; Arthur Pett, Crawfordsville; F. Windler, Rushville; E. C. Sharp, Noblesville.

State Fair Flower Show.

The Indiana state fair, September 4 to 8, was up to the standard, not being greater than in previous years because of the fear of the impending railroad strike. The floral display was good in most lines, but the aster, gladiolus and dahlia exhibits of pre-

Co., Chicago, called on a few of the retailers September 11. H. L. W.

BOSTON.

The Market.

There now is a more ample supply of cut flowers, and prices have shown a considerable recession since my last report. A change toward lower levels started September 7 and continues. Roses are becoming more abundant and do not clean up so easily. American Beauties are just about equal to the demand. Some nice Russell, Ophelia, Hoosier Beauty, My Maryland, Hadley and Miller roses are coming in. The majority of the hybrid teas make $1 to $6 per hundred; some specials make $8 to $10. Carnations now are coming from several growers, but as yet they are small and short-stemmed. Valley continues scarce and the quality is not good. Gladioli clean up somewhat better than in former years, at $1 to $4 per hundred.

The aster market took a slump last week and $2 per hundred now is top price. Poorer grades go at 50 cents to $1. A few Golden Glow mums have arrived earlier than anyone wanted them. Cosmos still sells poorly. A small supply of nice sweet peas still comes in. Lilies have been selling better than almost any other flowers on the market, especially L. longiflorum. Of annuals, such as gomphrenas, salpiglossis, hunnemannias, etc., there is a fair supply. Orchids are scarce; catleyas particularly so. Asparagus meets with a fair sale.

The Dahlia Exhibition.

The annual dahlia show at Horticultural hall was not so extensive as usual. Plants are blooming late this season with everyone, but the quality is extra good. For twelve blooms of show and fancy varieties, W. D. Hathaway was first; George L. Stillman, second. For twelve cactus W. D. Hathaway led with fine flowers of Mercury, Golden Crown, New York, Mrs. Douglas Fleming, Johannesburg, Richard Box, Fascination, Crystal, M. Gustave Beer, Jupiter, Southern Belle. George L. Stillman was second in this class.

For twelve peony-flowered dahlias W. D. Hathaway was first with splendid flowers of Mme. Therese Steinhert, Pope Leo, Mrs. T. G. Baker, Antonio Delgado, Liberty, Cecilia, Geisha, Lady Lloyd and H. Hornsveld; G. L. Stillman, second.

For twelve vases of pompons F. P. Webber was first and W. D. Hathaway second. For the largest and best collection, all classes, J. K. Alexander was first. For thirty vases of herbaceous plants Faulkner Farm was first.

The Fottler, Fiske, Rawson Co. received a silver medal for an extensive and finely arranged display of dahlias and gladioli, hundreds of varieties being staged. John P. Rooney received a silver medal for the new pink peony-flowered dahlia, Mrs. Frederick Grinnell. The color is of a regular pond lily shade of pink; it is one of the finest novelties seen in a long time. E. W. Bonnett received a certificate of merit for Dahlia Meritorious.

There were fine dahlia displays by Mrs. L. A. Towle, George L. Stillman, who had some superb peony-flowered seedlings, and Wrentham Dahlia Gardens. J. K. Alexander had a large gladiolus display and the Blue Hill Nurseries an excellent lot of phloxes and other herbaceous perennials. There were extensive collections of wild flowers and good displays of fruit.

Various Notes.

The annual auction sale of the Boston Coöperative Market September 9 was a successful one. Over 100 stalls were disposed of at excellent prices, first choice making $91, and the general average was the best ever. Quite a number of new stall-holders came in and the outlook for the coming season is excellent.

J. Koppelman & Son, of Providence, are sending some nice roses to the Flower Exchange. The varieties this has a fine batch of Cattleya labiata, with buds well up in the sheaths. He also has one batch of C. Trianae just coming into bloom at a time when cat-tleyas are at famine prices.

Robert Cameron and W. N. Craig attended an executive committee session of the National Association of Gardeners in New York September 7.
Later they visited private estates at Ardsley and Yonkers. They found severe drought afflicting the vicinity of New York, in marked contrast to Boston, where rains continue abundant and vegetation still is as verdant as in June.

door crops of tomatoes. The season for them has been profitable. He will follow them with sweet peas and next season will plant roses in lieu of tomatoes.
A fine crop of roses now is being cut at Revere.

Robert Montgomery did well with early asters this summer. He bought $3.50 worth of seed and sold over $700 worth of seed. His roses look fine. At present he is cutting good Russell, Hadley, Ophelia and Hoosier Beauty.
He likes the last-named well.

F. Cox, a young man employed in the greenhouses on the Bayard Thayer estate, South Lancaster, Mass., was killed in an automobile accident September 6. The deceased was a bright young man, only 23 years of age.

A. N. Eaton, of South Sudbury, has an unusually good lot of carnations this season and is already shipping in nice flowers of Matchless, Pink Delight, Alice and Fenn, the only varieties he has planted, as they proved to be money-makers.

F. J. Dolansky is cutting some nice Odontoglossum crispum and grande, and Oncidium Rogersii. Cattleyas and gardenias are scarce with him just now.

The Sutermeister estate, of Read-ville, has 20,000 Paper Whites in the soil and is looking for the usual large shipments of Dutch bulbs.

William H. Judd succeeds Jackson
Dawson as propagator at the Arnold Arboretum. Mr. Judd is an old Kewite, a bright young man, who, I am sure, will fill his new post with perfect credit.

The Albert Roper estate, of Tewks-bury, has an extra fine lot of carnations this season. The new variety, Albert Roper, and other promising seedlings, look well, and some good flowers are being shipped this early.

The North Shore Horticultural Society, of Manchester, Mass., has started work on its new Horticultural hall, which will cost over $25,000.

have had an abundant supply of moisture all summer. Local concerns have sold little garden hose and few sprinklers, but lawn mowers have been in heavy demand. W. N. Craig.

MINNEAPOLIS.

The Market.

Business for the week has been brisk. The city has been crowded with visitors for the state fair, and the florists all over the city succeeded in presenting attractive displays in their stores and windows. The stock is about the same as usual. Roses are becoming more plentiful and are of fine quality. Lilies are much in demand and good stock is obtainable. Some splendid varieties of garden flowers still are on the market. There is a profusion of cosmos about the city and there are many attractive displays of this dainty flower. Outdoor sweet peas, delphiniums and gaillardias still are offered. A few Golden Glow chrysanthemums have made their appearance. The early stock is fair and there is a promise of fine blooms a little later. Good cyclamens will be obtainable, as well as ferns and other fall stock.

There has been a great deal of funeral work and there also have been many fine decorations at homes and various places of public entertainment. People are abandoning their country homes and returning to the city, so the fall rush for flowers for social affairs will soon commence.

Various Notes.

The H. B. Whitted Floral Co. reports good business, with plenty of funeral work. Many large orders for decorative work have recently been cared for in excellent style. Charles Johnson, of this firm, has been seriously ill in a hospital for some time, but is now recovering. The windows of the two stores of this company were charmingly decorated for the week of the state fair.

Oscar E. Amundson's window has been unusually attractive of late, with a beautiful mass of pink cosmos, Easter lilies and sweet peas.

The Eldridge Floral Co. has an active business, with a heavy run of funeral work.

T. S. Lynes had an attractive display of ferns, palms and cut flowers during the week. Business, as usual, is splendid here.

Many of the florists of the Twin Cities have had most creditable groups of palms, ferns, crotons, araucarias and hundreds of other fine plants at the state fair. A magnificent display was staged by Holm & Olson, of St. Paul, and beautiful exhibits were arranged by the Chicago Avenue Greenhouses, O. C. Swanson and the Chicago Avenue Floral Co., of this city.

Wm. F. Holmes' recent window displays of gladioli in masses could not fail to attract favorable attention. He has an excellent trade, including many out-of-town orders.

The Lakewood Cemetery Association is cutting some early chrysanthemums and expects soon to have some splendid stock.

The Mazey Floral Co. had a fine-appearing store for the week of the fair, with a large stock of lilies, roses, garden flowers and fine greenery. The stock is the best obtainable and business is always good.

O. C. Swanson has had splendid window displays of artistically arranged baskets, with ferns and a running fountain.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich.;
Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kandel, Cleveland, O.

PEAS will be much better property this winter than was the case last season.

W. H. CROSSLAND, for the last nineteen years associated with Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, now is with the Courteen Seed Co., Milwaukee.

SKILLFUL publicity men some time ago found that "beware" and "boomerang" both begin with the same letter and it was a distinct gain for clean advertising.

CORN crops in Nebraska have been making splendid progress the last few weeks and the prospect for maturing the seed crop of the sugar varieties before frost is much better than it was.

AFTER several unlucky years the California seed growers appear to have again come into their own. On the whole, their crops are the best in America and the demand for surplus stock the best on record.

AN authorized statement of the market condition in the bulb district of Holland, by the Dutch Bulb Exporters' Association, under the "News from Abroad" heading elsewhere in this issue will be of special interest to seedsmen.

THE man whose duty it is to make a catalogue finds his duty this season more difficult than usual. In addition to the ordinary perplexities as to crops, deliveries and prices there is the question of the justifiable cost of the book and the size of the edition.

THE boat from Bermuda that arrived at New York September 5 brought only twenty-six cases of lily bulbs, consigned to a forwarding agent. The imports for the season amount to only 1,124 cases, or only a fraction of the Harrisii imports of bygone years.

THE official records show that in the first nine months of the last government year 742,035 pounds of spinach seed were imported. As most of the catalogues recommend sowing one ounce to each 100 feet of drill, the imports would plant a row 224,858 miles long, or nine rows around the earth. Some spinach!

S. F. LEONARD, of the Leonard Seed Co., Chicago, who has been making a tour of the western and Pacific coast states during the last few weeks, returned to Chicago the first of the week. A. H. Smith, treasurer of the company, who has been vacationing with his wife in Mackinac, Mich., is again in his office.

THE appropriation bill for the U. S. Department of Agriculture passed by the late and lamented session of Congress in its final form carried the usual provision of $252,540 for the free distributing of seeds. It will be recalled that the Senate struck out the paragraph. It was reinserted in the conference committee, as has been the case in other years.

SEEDS IN ALABAMA.

We often see write-ups of the big things being done in California in seed growing, but little is said about the southern states and what is being done in that and other lines here, so perhaps the following items may be of interest.

A shipment of flower seeds valued at $50 was sent by parcel post to Santa Rosa, Cal., from Deer Park, Ala., September 7. It seems like "carrying coals to Newcastle" to be shipping flower seeds to California. This seed was Stokesia cyanea and this was about fifteen per cent of the growers' crop of this beautiful hardy perennial.

By the way, southern Alabama is the home of the stokesia and the many new shades of this flower all originated here. A few years ago only the blue was known to the trade. Then the white variety was brought out. There now are being introduced pink, purple and yellow shades and some light blue shades are promised as soon as stock of them can be worked up.

Another seed crop grown here is vinca, or periwinkle, the crop of it last season being about 170 pounds. Heretofore this seed has been almost wholly imported from Europe. The hurricane of July 5 and the floods which lasted for nearly a month afterward did much damage to this and other seed crops in this section and the crop will be much less this season on that account.

L. H. Read.

SEED CROPS IN HOLLAND.

S. Listoe, U. S. Consul General at Rotterdam, Holland, reports that the Netherlands Department of Agriculture has compiled statistics as to acreage under seed crops, as follows:

Seed Acreage	1914	1915	1916
Canary	8,187	9,212	14,750
Caraway	13,059	9,803	12,434
Mustard, brown	1,594	1,554	2,679
Mustard, yellow	2,234	4,831	12,217
Onion	240	217	277
Poppy, blue	1,226	2,034	5,130
Radish	744	534	259
Rape	4,087	3,793	6,482
Spinach	2,234	1,816	2,478
Sugar-beet	432	447	484

As a result of the cold and rainy weather, crops in general are backward. With some of them a sudden change for the better in the weather might do considerable good. For the most part, however, that probability is gone, and the crops will be below the average.

SEED IMPORT ACT AMENDED.

The seed importation act of August 24, 1912, prohibits the importation into the United States of those seeds subject to the act when they are adulterated or contain three per cent or more of weed seeds, or when clover and alfalfa seed contains more than approximately ninety seeds of dodder per pound.

HOGEWONING & SONS, Bulb Growers
RYNSBURG, HOLLAND 32 Broadway, NEW YORK

This act was amended August 11, 1916, by including the seed of rye grass and vetch, in addition to those seeds enumerated in the original act, and by prohibiting the importation of seeds which contain less than sixty-five per cent of pure live seeds, except that the seed of Kentucky blue grass and the seed of Canada blue grass may be imported when it contains fifty per cent or more of live pure seed. The amendment fixing a minimum quality for imported seed is intended to keep out of the United States seed of low germination, as well as seed containing large proportions of chaff, both of which have been imported in large quantities in recent years.

The regulations for the enforcement of the seed importation act, published as Treasury Decisions No. 35363, May 6, 1915, and as Service and Regulatory Announcements, Bureau of Plant Industry, No. 2, May, 1915, are being revised to conform with these amendments, and it is expected that they will be promulgated to be in effect on and after November 1, 1916.

MOTT-LY GLEANINGS.

The crop of aster seed at Baldwinsville, N. Y., is almost a failure this season.

James Vick's Sons, of Rochester, N. Y., have 135 acres planted to asters for seed. They will harvest little of the early varieties, but the later varieties are doing better and, with favorable weather, may yield a fair crop.

Louis Vonderwood, manager for Milton T. Jones, the Utica, N. Y., seedsman, has a hobby of breeding fine chickens, but he also is proud of his success with Potato Irish Cobbler. From one-half bushel of seed a crop of thirteen bushels was grown. Six tubers weighed five and one-quarter pounds, or an average of fourteen ounces per tuber.

"Business was fully as good as usual, but we would not have objected had it been far better," observed Manager Day, with F. H. Ebeling, Syracuse. W. M.

ALFALFA SEED IN ARGENTINA.

The cultivation of alfalfa has increased rapidly in Argentina. Figures published by the Ministry of Agriculture show the following areas under this crop: 1872, 261,392 acres; 1888, 963,729 acres; 1895, 1,762,079 acres; 1914, 18,219,998 acres. Of the area under alfalfa in 1914, some 14,000,000 acres fell to the provinces of Buenos Aires, Cordoba and Santa Fe, which led in the order named. Other provinces and territories figuring in statistics with more than 100,000 acres under alfalfa in 1914 were Pampa Central, San Luis, Entre Rios, Mendoza and San Juan.

The placing of large tracts under alfalfa led to an active importation of foreign seed, which has, however, fallen off in recent years. This is probably due to two chief causes—the augmented production of Argentine seed and the real estate crisis that resulted in the failure of many large rural proprietors.

Practically all the alfalfa seed imported is entered at Buenos Aires. The total imports of alfalfa seed amounted to 251 metric tons in 1914 and 871 metric tons in 1915.

The price of alfalfa seed is subject

Under exceptional circumstances they claim to have paid as low as 3 pesos (5.8 cents per pound) and as high as 11 pesos (21.2 cents per pound). Alfalfa is sown in September and March, the March sowing being the more important. Wholesalers must receive seed by February 15 and August 15, as the case may be. Seed is generally packed in good-grade jute bags holding from sixty to seventy kilos (132 to 154 pounds). Alfalfa seed is free of duty.

A list of firms which might be interested in American seed may be obtained from the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Washington, D. C., upon referring to file No. 79614. U. S. Consul Wm. Dawson, Jr., says correspondence addressed to those firms should be in Spanish. It should include price quotations c. i. f. Rosario, if possible, and should be accompanied by a small sample of seed.

ASSOCIATION OF GARDENERS.

Executive Meeting at New York.

An executive meeting of the trustees and directors of the National Association of Gardeners was held at the Murray Hill hotel, New York city, September 7, President W. N. Craig presiding.

A number of important matters came before the meeting, besides the usual routine business, which were all favorably disposed of. Letters were received from Vice-president Theodore Wirth, of Minneapolis, Minn., and Director Thomas W. Head, of Lake Forest, Ill., both reporting a constantly increasing interest among the gardeners of the middle west and west in the association and recommending that the organization's annual convention be held in some western city in the not distant future.

The action of the bureau of standards, of the board of estimate, of New York, recommending a higher scale of salaries for the gardeners employed by the New York city park department, was officially brought to the attention of the meeting. A resolution was adopted endorsing the board of estimate's action and calling for the support of the mayor and the park commissioner of New York to secure the adoption of the measure when the 1917 budget comes up for consideration.

The recent discussion in some of the New York daily papers on the poor compensation gardeners receive in some of the public institutions was also brought to the attention of the meeting. While the existing conditions were discussed and severely condemned, the matter was not officially before the meeting, and no recommendations were made.

Annual Convention at Washington.

It was decided to offer the association's silver medal for competition to all horticultural societies or gardeners' clubs that desire to accept the offer. The terms of competition—to be for 1917—are left to the local societies as to whether it should be for one of its shows or for monthly competition, the only restriction being that the competitor must be a member of the National Association of Gardeners.

The plan of the national coöperative committee to provide essays for the monthly meetings of the local horticultural societies, which it has done during the last year, was approved, and it was decided to continue to supply these essays to the some fifty odd societies throughout the country that applied for them.

The appointment of John Canning, of Ardsley, N. Y., as director was announced, to fill the unexpired term of James MacMachan, deceased, whose term would have expired January 1, 1919.

It was voted to hold the next annual convention during the early part of December, at Washington, D. C. For the 1917 convention Chicago was voted as the choice of those at the meeting. Pittsburgh was favorably discussed as the 1918 meeting place.

Following the adjournment of the meeting some of the members coming from a distance visited the estate of Adolph Lewisohn, at Ardsley, N. Y., over which John Canning presides as superintendent; and later proceeded to Greystone, Yonkers, N. Y., the estate of Samuel Untermyer, where over $1,000,000 is being expended in improvements and more than 400 men are reported to be employed in the development work.

M. C. Ebel, Sec'y.

Columbiana, O.—Loy Smith went to Jacksonville, Fla., on account of his health, but Florida's summer did not agree with his son, so father and son made what they termed a "fifty-fifty split" and returned to their business at Columbiana.

THE NUISANCE

This is Labor Day and our office force is having one full play day, and a party of us are getting ready to drive out to the Automobile Speedway and see one of the greatest races of the age; so why spoil our beautiful thoughts with such misfit characters as the misfit Nuisance? We are sure glad he is not in our class and that is some big honor. And Oh—what a joy to know what a world of fine human beings the Florists are to work for and with. And what a great chance they give us to make an honest living. Fair deals, fair play, spell success. And if they were all like, well—

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

AN account of the dahlia show at San Francisco September 7 to 9, for which there was not sufficient room in this department, will be found on page 18 of this issue.

SANTA BARBARA, CAL.

The Market.

Business is on the quiet side at this time of year, of course, but not more so than usual. A good deal of outdoor stock is grown locally, but most of the greenhouse cut flowers are sent in from San Francisco and Los Angeles. Good mums are coming from both places. Asters are about over locally, but there is a good supply of dahlias and gladioli.

Everyone in the trade is looking forward to welcoming the visiting nurserymen at their convention.

Various Notes.

A. Beverley, of the Mission Oak Nursery, is building cloth houses for cut flower growing. He is going to be especially strong on sweet peas this season. Mrs. G. Whipple is making a fine show of dahlias in the window and taking orders for plants.

Arthur Gleave, of Gleave's Flower Shop, says he is particularly well pleased with the way business has held up during his first year and looks forward to a good fall business.

William Donald has recovered from the effects of his accident, the only reminder of it now being a mark on the side of his face.

The Kentia Nurseries are shipping fine Cocos plumosa and kentias from their lath houses, where they have a magnificent stock in all sizes, from the smallest pots to splendid specimens. At the time of my visit George Verheile acted as guide around the place, his brother being at Los Angeles.

H. R. Richards.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

"No news is good news," it is said, and if this is so, Los Angeles is lucky, as there is little to chronicle in the way of market changes. Good stock, however, is decidedly short in supply and all the wholesalers are calling for it. Of course, there is plenty of poor and mediocre stock—that always is with us—but an order for 1,000 really good roses of any special variety would have been hard to fill last week. Hay fever time is ushered in by the appearance of goldenrods, Golden Glows and similar early fall stock, and there is a fine showing of lemon-yellow, double African marigolds.

Vacationists are returning to the old stands, many of them sunburned and tanned and all reporting a good time. The deer hunters have had their innings and game is plentiful.

Various Notes.

Friends of H. W. Turner, of Montebello, will regret to hear of Mr. Turner's somewhat serious illness. Mr. Turner was suffering for several days from throat trouble before he gave in, and when he did finally quit his doctor immediately ordered him to the Clara Barton hospital, where an operation on his throat was performed the same day. At first a diphtheric condition was feared, but this fear was unfounded. At last reports he was doing as well as could be expected. A further operation, it is said, will be necessary when he regains sufficient strength.

Business at the L. A. Floral Co. establishment continues good and Fred Sperry says that Mrs. Sperry and son have gone to Glenwood Springs, Colo., on a visit to Mrs. Sperry's father.

Morris Goldenson has been taking around friends from the east, his cousin, Miss Anna Goldenson, having greatly enjoyed her trip. Miss Goldenson, who resides at Greensburg, Pa., was much interested in being able to pick oranges and orange blossoms direct from the trees. A camping trip in the mountains also was greatly appreciated.

Gebhart Prechtel, foreman at the nurseries of Jacob Dieterich, at Montebello, was run down by an auto while walking with a friend along the Whittier road. He was badly shaken up and was taken to the Montebello hospital, but was soon able to be out again. He surely had a lucky escape from death or serious injury. By a curious coincidence Mr. Prechtel was speaking to his companion about the reckless driving George W. Smith reports heavy funeral business at the Seventh and Figueroa street store.

The monthly meeting of the Los Angeles County Horticultural Society was held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms September 6. The speaker for the evening disappointed the audience by not appearing and the evening was turned over to the good and welfare of the society. It was decided to hold the next meeting in the same rooms, when the speakers will be C. E. Shaw and H. R. Richards, the former on herbaceous plants, the latter on bulb culture.

Landscape work continues to occupy the nursery department of the Germain Seed & Plant Co. The lawn and shrubbery work at the Redondo high school has been finished and now a wild garden will be constructed in the rear of the school. All native shrubs and plants will be used, the idea being to make it an educational feature for the pupils.

The Market.

Outdoor summer stock still is in fair supply, but many of the items are beginning to go off crop and the offerings will decrease from now on. Statice is already gone and gaillardias, stocks, gypsophilas, marigolds, scabiosas, snapdragons, zinnias, etc., are dropping off from day to day. Asters are plentiful, but the average quality is not so good as it was a week ago. Late gladioli make a splendid showing, but they move rather slowly. Amaryllis does well. Dahlias are better than ever, there being a magnificent cut of Burgle. Burgle is about the only variety much in evidence at the wholesale market, although many others are used at the retail stores, including many fine seedlings. Effort is being made by the growers to make the dahlia the San Francisco flower and liberal advertising is having its effect upon the demand; some of the stores are selling more dahlias than ever before.

The damp weather is bringing out the violets in fine shape and eastern shipments will probably start soon, unless warm days intervene shortly. The Japanese market is loaded with chrysanthemums that show excellent quality. The demand is not up to expectations, however, except on pompons, and they move fairly well. The carnation cut is rather short, good stock being really scarce. There is a surplus of rubrum lilies. Although these lilies are quite popular, the offerings are entirely too large to clean up. The quality of the rose offerings is considerably improved and the demand is better. Ward is coming in well now and Ophelia maintains its popularity at fair prices. The supply of Beauties is readily absorbed. Valley is in better supply, and so are orchids, but the latter still are far short of the demand. Some good batches of smilax are arriving.

Horticultural Society Meeting.

There was a large attendance at the regular business session and smoker of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society, held on the evening of September 2. In the absence of President E. James, former president H. Plath presided. Applications for membership were received from J. A. Alexander, of Belvedere, and Walter Reubold, of the California Seed Co., of this city. A letter was received from G. A. Meyer, landscape engineer, formerly of this city, who recently moved to Santa Barbara. For the smoker committee James Egan announced that there were plenty of sandwiches and Edelweiss downstairs, and that brought hearty applause. Mr. Plath, reporting for the exhibition committee, stated that a suitable room had been secured in the Municipal Audi-

The difficulty in raising this grand plant from untreated seed is well known. For many years George Southard, of Redlands, has treated his seed and can absolutely guarantee at least 90 per cent germination. The Southard process consists of removing the glutinous seal with which this seed is coated in the natural condition so that instead of waiting two or three years, as in the past, growers of this noble plant can obtain seedlings in two months. The genuine treated seed can only be obtained from us direct, and the price to the trade is:

The evening's exhibits made a splendid showing. Frank Pelicano had a vase of dahlias, containing two each of General Joffre, a fine pink, and of Beloit, the vase taking eighty-five points. large Tom Lundy and Henry Mairs dahlias, which took eighty points. J. A. Carbone, of Berkeley, made a notable showing of dendrobiums, which was awarded ninety points.

The business session was cut rather short for the sake of the smoker that followed. Good music and plenty to eat and drink were provided by the committee in charge.

Various Notes.

Miss Taylor, florist of Honolulu, Hawaii, arrived in San Francisco a few days ago, expecting to remain a month in this vicinity, combining business with pleasure. She reports business good in the islands and is placing large orders for supplies.

William F. Pitts, formerly manager of the Luther Burbank Co., is preparing to engage in business for himself under the name of W. F. Pitts Seed & Nursery Co. He has secured quarters at 326 Market street, which will be ready for occupancy about September 15.

J. A. Carbone, of Berkeley, is getting a fair cut of dendrobiums, but the supply is not equal to the demand. He says the florists would take a great many more if he had them.

H. Plath is building a greenhouse for primulas. He has a fine lot of primula plants, some of which are in bloom. He reports the fern business good.

of unusually good quality this year and the market has at times been overstocked. At the public market they have sold as cheaply as 5 cents per dozen for common garden-grown stock, but at the stores they seldom brought less than 50 cents per dozen for good blooms. The best sellers have been long-stemmed flowers of the Crego type. Minnie Burgle is the only variety of dahlia that is offered in quantity and it sells well. Early yellow and white mums are shown, but do not find a ready sale. Auratum lilies are plentiful and are used extensively in designs.

SPOKANE, WASH.

The Market.

Last week did not see any marked change in business conditions. The greenhouse men are hurrying to get pipes in their new houses before frosts come. The appearance of cooler weather, following light rains during the last few days, is a reminder that killing frosts are not many days away. Light frosts were noticed as much as two weeks ago.

Local business is rather quiet and would be decidedly dull at times were it not for orders from small-town agents. The local aster is showing a decided improvement in quality, some good displays of this, Spokane's municipal flower, having been made by amateur growers at the Interstate fair. Rubrum lilies, Ophelia roses and gladioli, in addition to asters, rule the market as regards quality stock. Carnations are of indifferent quality, and the same may be said of all roses but Ophelia. This rose promises to become more popular than ever with the flower buyers, as well as with the growers.

Various Notes.

Peters Bros. have completed three new houses, which will be devoted to vegetables. One house is 12x100 and the other two each 35x210. This addition brings their total glass up to about 50,000 feet. They grow a general line of stock for the Spokane and Hillyard markets, with special attention to tomatoes and cucumbers.

The Hoyt Bros. Co. has completed a rose house 25x100 feet and a smaller house for cyclamens.

Messrs. Bernson and Halle, of the Glenrose Greenhouse Co., have enlarged their range this summer by the addition of two houses, one house 18x100, planted to mums, and one 35x250, planted to carnations. At this place two houses planted to early spring tomatoes gave excellent returns with early fruit, and, later, in competition with outdoor-grown stock, brought top prices in a ready market because of superior quality. These are the boys who last year surprised the town with their splendid sweet peas. Their success was so pleasing to all concerned that they are preparing to double their output this season.

A change involving two well known business houses of the northwest took place a few weeks ago, when A. Rahn, of Rahn & Herbert, Portland, Ore., severed his connection with that firm and purchased an interest in the Spokane Greenhouse Co., of Marshall, Wash. Mr. Rahn will reside at Spokane and take an active part in the management of the company's greenhouse range at Marshall, devoting his attention to pot plants in particular. The growing of the cut flower stock will remain under the direction of N. R. Wollan, who has been with the concern for some months. John Austin will continue as business

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSEYMEN.

President, John Watson, Newark, N. Y.; Vice-president, Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo.; Secretary and General Manager, Curtis Nye Smith, Boston, Mass.; Treasurer, Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.

PEONY shipments are being rushed at middle western nurseries, now that there have been a few good showers to swell the eyes.

THE Agricultural Appropriation bill passed by the Congress which adjourned last week provides $75,000 for the enforcement of the plant quarantine law during 1917. The appropriation for 1916 was $50,000.

THE suit filed last June by the Stark Bros. Nurseries & Orchards Co., of Louisiana, Mo., against the W. P. Stark Nurseries, of Neosho, Mo., alleging unfair methods of competition on the part of the defendant, has been dismissed in the local court at Louisiana and transferred to the United States court, western district of Missouri. A registered trademark question is involved in the case. W. P. Stark, the defendant, is part owner of the plaintiff's business.

In its issue of August 17, Printers' Ink, an advertising journal, devotes four pages to the Stark Bros. Nurseries & Orchards Co., under the caption of "Making a Hundred-Year Record Yield Advertising Capital." In the main the article is an exposition of how the nursery company has used its nation-wide reputation of giving every customer a square deal, and turned its advertising prestige to raising the level of salesmanship as represented by over 5,000 agents. On these points the article explains the connection with the work of "Stark Tree Talk," the semimonthly house organ of the nursery.

DIGGING OUT AN OSAGE HEDGE.

I have an osage orange hedge, 900 feet long and about five feet high, that I wish to take out this fall. It is 25 years old. There is another hedge like it about four feet away. Is it best to grub it out in order to get rid of it? Is there anything I can use on the cut roots to keep them from growing up in the lawn? I am told they will do this, appear. This will gradually weaken and kill them. Of course, clean grubbing out is the best method of extermination. You could use certain sprays to kill the young shoots, but this would also kill the grass and would be no more effective than simply cutting them down.

BORERS IN ELM TREE.

An elm tree in my yard is dying on one side. At first I thought it had been struck by lightning, but when I looked closely I found it full of little holes in which were small white worms, from three-fourths to one inch long. The bark is peeling off where these insects are working. What are they? How can I kill them and save the tree?

E. T. O.—Ill.

Probably there is some kind of borer in your elm tree. Take a piece of galvanized wire and push it into the holes, killing all you can in this way. Then get some carbon bisulphide and soak small pieces of cotton wool with it. Place these in the holes and plug the ends with putty. The gas from the carbon will suffocate any of the borers you may have been unable to reach. I would suggest sawing back the limbs on the affected side and feeding the tree well to encourage stronger growth. If the tree is in grass, cultivate the ground about it and give it a liberal dressing of well rotted manure. C. W.

Why we believe NEBRASKA to be the best scarlet in sight today:

Habit: Strong, easy grower, making large plants in the field and lifting easily; it also makes a strong root growth, has no surplus grass, every shoot throwing a bloom in a very short time.

Blooms: Large, 3½ inches and over, with a delightful, spicy fragrance.

Color: The brightest scarlet.

Style: Full, well built, slightly fringed.

Calyx: Long and strong, absolutely never splits at any season or in any temperature.

Stem: Long, 24 to 36 inches, heavy and strong, holding the flowers perfectly erect.

There are no culls, all blooms being first grade.

New Carnation Cottage Maid

A Sport of Mrs. C. W. Ward

¶ A new carnation of a delightful shade of flesh-pink, somewhat darker than Enchantress.

¶ It never fades.

¶ When the hot sun comes along in the spring, COTTAGE MAID takes on a deeper hue until June, when it is almost the shade of Gloriosa.

¶ It has all of its parent's fine qualities as a commercial carnation.

The Market.

Fair weather prevailed last week and business consequently was good. There was a good call for asters during the entire week. Gladioli have sold fairly well. A number of funerals during the week kept all flowers well cleaned up.

Various Notes.

A number of changes have been made among the local florists. William P. Peirce has given up his store at 610 Pleasant street and moved his business to his new store on Elm street. Fred Covill, formerly employed by William P. Peirce, will soon reopen the store that Mr. Peirce has just vacated. Members of the local trade all wish Mr. Covill good luck and prosperity in his new venture.

Harry Kranzler has left the employ of E. H. Chamberlain. It is rumored that he will start a business of his own.

Charles Kane, for several years employed at the Peirce greenhouses, at 49 Cottage street, has left his position to enter the employ of the New Bedford Cordage Co.

Robert H. Woodhouse is cutting some good roses from his new house.

Peter Murray, of Fairhaven, has had a lot of funeral work during the last week.

Edward M. Peirce has housed some fine carnations this week. He has put in some high-grade Cecile Brunner roses.

Among recent visitors to the trade here was H. C. Neubrand, representing A. N. Pierson, Inc., of Cromwell, Conn. W. M. P.

Introducing Thenanthos

A COMMERCIAL RED CARNATION

THENANTHOS is a new carnation evolved by John Then, of Chicago, as a result of many years' study and work. All cuttings will be cold grown and packed under his immediate supervision. The following are some of its attributes:

Color—

Brilliant scarlet of uniform shade.

Size—

Flowers average over 8½ inches in diameter.

Fragrance—

Strong and pleasing.

Stem—

Strong but graceful, average length 2½ to 3 feet.

Keeping Qualities—

Unusually good, as it has never shown any tendency to sleep in plant or when cut. An excellent keeper and shipper.

Sales—

Demand always in excess of supply on Chicago market, and prices secured for Thenanthos have been the highest.

THENANTHOS cuttings will prove an unusually good investment for the up-to-date grower. So nearly perfect is it that it took sweepstakes cup for best seedling as well as medal certificate and first prize at the last Chicago Flower Show less than a year ago. Here are some of its features:

Growth—

Habit of Scott, but stronger stem.

Prolific Bloomer—

Averaging 30 flowers per plant.

Production—

Strong producer of cuttings, easy to root average 90%.

Health—

Free from rust or disease.

Seasonable—

Blooms heavily in December, best time for red carnations, but also flowers splendidly throughout entire year, including the summer.

Foliage—

Grows a bushy, large plant.

SILVER CUP

Trophy of Sweepstakes for best seedling carnation awarded to Thenanthos by the Horticultural Society of Chicago at the Grand Floral Festival, November, 1915.

PARENTAGE

Thenanthos has an ancestry to be proud of. Its parentage is:

ENCHANTRESS X RED SEEDLING

This red seedling was a cross of
NELSON X LAWSON

Every one of these carnations is of such well known excellence that no comment is necessary. The characteristics of Scott are very marked in Thenanthos.

PRICES AND DELIVERY

THENANTHOS cold grown cuttings will be ready for delivery January 1st, 1917. The demand will prove a heavy strain on the supply. All shipments made in the order received, so let us book your requirements early.

The Markets.

The markets were well supplied with flowers last week and trade was good. Roses are in large supply and their quality is much improved. Some good asters are to be had and the outdoor stock shows a change for the better. Gladioli and rubrum lilies are good, while carnations, the few there are, are short of stem and generally of poor quality.

Various Notes.

Henry Pauli, of Davenport, has given his greenhouses a coating of white paint.

Frank Davis, of the Davis Floral Co., is marketing some good indoor-grown asters.

George Forber, of Forber & Bird, Davenport, has returned from a trip to Boston, where he visited his son, Mortier, who is completing his studies as a violinist at the Boston Conservatory of Music. W. G.

HOLYOKE, MASS.

The regular meeting of the Holyoke and Northampton Florists' and Gardeners' Club was held September 5, at the Massachusetts Agricultural College, Amherst. Prof. A. H. Nehrling, of the department of floriculture, invited the members to spend the afternoon in inspecting the many interesting things to be found at the college and many availed themselves of the opportunity. A hardy perennial garden, recently established at the college, is receiving much attention from visitors.

The business meeting was called to order by President Butler and plans for the coming show were discussed. Prof. Nehrling read two papers received from the National Association of Gardeners, one entitled "The Diabrotica," by R. A. Sell, Texas, the other on "The Iris Worm," by P. S. Snow, Pennsylvania. A general discussion on insect pests followed. There were several vases of perennials from the college garden and H. E. Downer showed Senecio Clivorum. H. E. D.

NEW NEPHROLEPIS FERN

JOHN WANAMAKER

A "sport" from Nephrolepis Scholzell, with longer, narrower, gracefully drooping fronds. It is not so compact in growth as Scholzell, and therefore does not decay in the center, and is a durable house fern. It is a rapid grower, making an abundance of fronds, and is quite distinct from any other Nephrolepis.

The following ready for delivery October 1st:
4-inch pots, $25.00 per 100; 6-inch pots, 50c and 75c each; 8-inch pots, $1.00 each; specimens in tubs, $2.50 and $3.50 each.

CROTONS

NEW SEEDLING VARIETIES

Our new Seedling Crotons, some of which we disseminated in June, 1911, are varieties that should be in every grower's and private person's collection. They are far superior to many of the older varieties of Crotons and the types range from narrow to very large leaf.

We particularly call your attention to our set of thirteen, named after the "Thirteen Original States," which have won highest honors wherever shown.

4-inch pots, strong plants, $3.00 each; $30.00 doz.; $200.00 100.

6 and 7-inch pots, larger plants, $3.50, $4.00 and $5.00 each.

CROTON

LEAVES AND SPRAYS

Cut Croton Leaves and Sprays have been supplied by us in the past few years to some of the leading retail florists, who have featured them in mantel, table and funeral work. They are also specially attractive to use with Chrysanthemums.

Cut Crotons will last in a cool place from three to four weeks. We can supply them every day in the year. Very highly colored sprays at 25c, 35c and 50c; cut leaves, $3.00 and $5.00 per 100.

CUT CHRYSANTHEMUMS

We are growing over 50,000 cut blooms of Chrysanthemums in all the best commercial varieties. Ready October 1st and until December 1st. Make arrangements with us to have your "cut Mums" supplied by us. Either daily or weekly shipments. Lowest market prices.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

With Labor day passed, the summer migrants have commenced to return to their city homes. The result has been a slightly increased demand for cut flowers and potted plants, but funeral work continues to be the main activity. All the greenhousemen report a satisfactory condition of all kinds of stock and the outlook is most encouraging.

Various Notes.

Swan Peterson is erecting a 20x70-foot addition to his greenhouses at East Providence.

John Marshall, of the Fruit Hill Greenhouses, is shipping regularly a fine lot of Scotch heather and Asparagus plumosus to the Boston market.

Louis J. Reuter, of Westerly, was high man at the Labor day trap shooting tourney of the South Country Rod and Gun Club.

Considerable damage was done September 5 when a heavily loaded auto truck, becoming unmanageable, crashed into the greenhouse of John A. Macrae.

A dwelling house belonging to Walter S. Sword, of Valley Falls, was badly gutted by fire last week. The house is close to Mr. Sword's greenhouses, but fortunately the flames did not spread.

The Rhode Island Horticultural Society this week held its fall flower show of dahlias, asters and gladioli at the Narragansett hotel.

Carmichael Bros., of Shannock, are cutting some exceptionally fine America gladioli, which find a ready sale not only in the local market but also at Boston and New York. There has been an unusual demand for gladioli for decorative purposes at Narragansett Pier this season.

George W. Crawbuck, of New York, was a visitor in this vicinity last week.

The Empire Floral Co. is having a new icebox installed in its store at 9 Empire street.

Joseph Smith, with Smith, the Florist, was a visitor to Boston last week.

The T. J. Johnston Co. had an attractive window last week. It represented a rustic scene with ferns and potted plants, and was screened to permit a showing of nearly a score of canary birds. W. H. M.

FINE FERNS

FOR FALL AND WINTER TRADE

The fancy varieties of NEPHROLEPIS especially are very much in demand, and find a ready sale during the fall and winter months.

NOW IS THE TIME TO LAY IN A STOCK.

Owing to the great demand for ferns in the late spring we became sold out and were not able to fill all of our orders, but now we have an unusually fine stock of plants

NEWPORT, R. I.

The Newport County Agricultural Society will hold its fifteenth annual fair September 19 to 22, inclusive, at which the showing in the plant and flower department will be exceptionally large.

Christian M. Bogholt, gardener for Miss Fanny Foster, was awarded a silver medal, the highest award of the Newport Horticultural Society, for a seedling gladiolus he exhibited at the midsummer flower show. It is pure white in color and has been highly commended by growers who have seen it.

Leikens had the decorations of roses, dahlias and gladioli for the recent luncheon and dance given at the Clam-bake Club.

Edward Otto, with A. T. Bunyard, who went to the Manhattan Eye and Ear hospital, New York, ten days ago, has returned, after a successful operation for an affection of the ear.

C. Oberheitman, manager for Wadley & Smythe, is to take a two weeks' vacation with Mrs. Oberheitman before resuming his duties in New York for the fall and winter.

Carl Jurgens is finding a ready market for all the American Beauties he can cut.

The committee of the Newport Horticultural Society, consisting of John B. Urquhart, Frederick P. Webber, William F. Smith, Andrew Meikle, William Gray and William McKay, has completed arrangements for the eighteenth annual ball of the society. It will be held at the beach, with music by Conrad's orchestra. John T. Allen has been selected as floor manager and the dance order will include the ever-favorite schottische. W. H. M.

Greenhouse Heating.

STEAM FOR SOUTHERN RANGE.

Enclosed you will find a sketch of a range of four greenhouses which I wish to heat with steam. The outside temperature in this part of Alabama never drops much lower than 15 degrees above zero. I wish to maintain a greenhouse temperature of 60 degrees and shall grow a general assortment of plants, ferns, etc. What size of boiler will be needed? The side walls of the houses are concrete and are five feet high. The height to the ridge is twelve feet. I am thinking of running a 4-inch main flow from the boiler to the houses and then branching the main off to a 2-inch flow in each house. The boiler will be six feet lower than the walks of the houses.
T. S.—Ala.

The sketch shows that the houses are 150 feet long and that three of them are each twenty-five feet wide, while the other has a width of thirty feet.
Though a smaller boiler might answer, we would prefer to get one of twenty-five horsepower. The 4-inch main flow pipe will heat all of the houses, and a 2-inch flow pipe in each of the four houses will be sufficient to feed the returns. In addition to this flow pipe in each house, we would use six 1½-inch returns in each house, except the one that is thirty feet wide, in which we would advise the use of seven returns.

IMPERFECT CIRCULATION.

We have two greenhouses, one 16x61 and the other 16x55, heated by a Wilks boiler. Each of the houses contains one 2-inch flow, which declines toward the far end of the house and there feeds two sets of six 1½-inch returns, which slant toward the boiler. When the boiler is well heated, the flows and part of the returns become hot, but the returns within twenty-five feet of the boiler hardly get warm, in severe weather. If we place the system under city water pressure, which we can do by opening a valve and placing a safe-

Kroeschell Bros. Co.,

Kirkwood, Mo., May 22, 1915.

Gentlemen:—

Now that the firing season is over, and after a long cold winter, the coldest night being 6° below zero, I want to say I am well pleased with the No. 46 Water Tube Steam Boiler and the No. 14 Hot Water Boiler.
They are doing all you claim for them and more. The No. 14 Hot Water Boiler is heating that large house to 60° with the greatest ease in zero weather without the help of the steam boiler.

This steam boiler I think is a wonder, a quick steamer, and holds the steam, the easiest boiler in the world to clean and to keep clean. The double steam trap system is working fine, keeping all the steam lines well drained.

The boiler tube hot water system is the winner, the rapid circulation and even temperature obtained from this system is wonderful.

After being told repeatedly by other growers that roses could not be grown with hot water heat, we are getting the best kind of results, not only from the heating systems and boilers, but also from the roses.

Yours very truly,

(Signed) W. J. PILCHER.

Dubuque, Iowa, Nov. 28, 1915.

Gentlemen:—

I wish to report that I have used my No. 45 Kroeschell Water Tube Steam Boiler for the past two seasons, and will say I could not compare it with my former boiler, as it is so far superior in every way that there is no comparison whatever.

It does the work of two tubular steam boilers—saves fuel, needs less attention, as the fire lasts much longer—is easily cleaned, there being no flues to clean every night, as was the case with the old boilers.

If I should need another boiler, I would not think of buying any other kind.

Yours very truly,

(Signed) S. E. MUNTZ.

ty valve above the expansion tank, will this help the circulation any?

W. D. B.—Ala.

The description is so incomplete that we cannot be sure of the source of the trouble. The difficulty described would naturally result if the height of the returns is not far from the level of the grate in the boiler. The condition will certainly be helped, and possibly corrected, if the changes suggested in the inquiry are made. Unless the returns are several feet above the top of the boiler or a closed system is used, we do not like to use 1½-inch return pipes for hot water in houses more than forty or fifty feet in length.

If the system were working properly, there should be no difficulty in securing a temperature of 60 to 65 degrees in northern Alabama with the piping described, provided there are twelve 1½-inch returns in each of the houses. We would prefer, however, to use one 2½-inch flow pipe and six 2-inch returns for 60 degrees or four returns for 50 degrees, and there would be no difficulty about the circulation in an open tank system, provided the lowest part of the returns is higher than the top of the boiler.

WANTS HIGHER TEMPERATURE.

I should like to have you answer this heating problem for me: My greenhouse is 48x140, with 5-foot walls and a height of sixteen feet in the center. The boiler is in a pit at the south end. A hot water system is used. There are three 2-inch flows and twelve 2-inch returns. Each flow is attached to four returns. I have a 25-horsepower boiler, with a generator, for the 7,000 square feet of glass. I have been growing lettuce in the house, but wish to change the crop to cut flowers. Can I get a temperature of 60 degrees at zero with the present piping? If not, what change would you advise me to make?

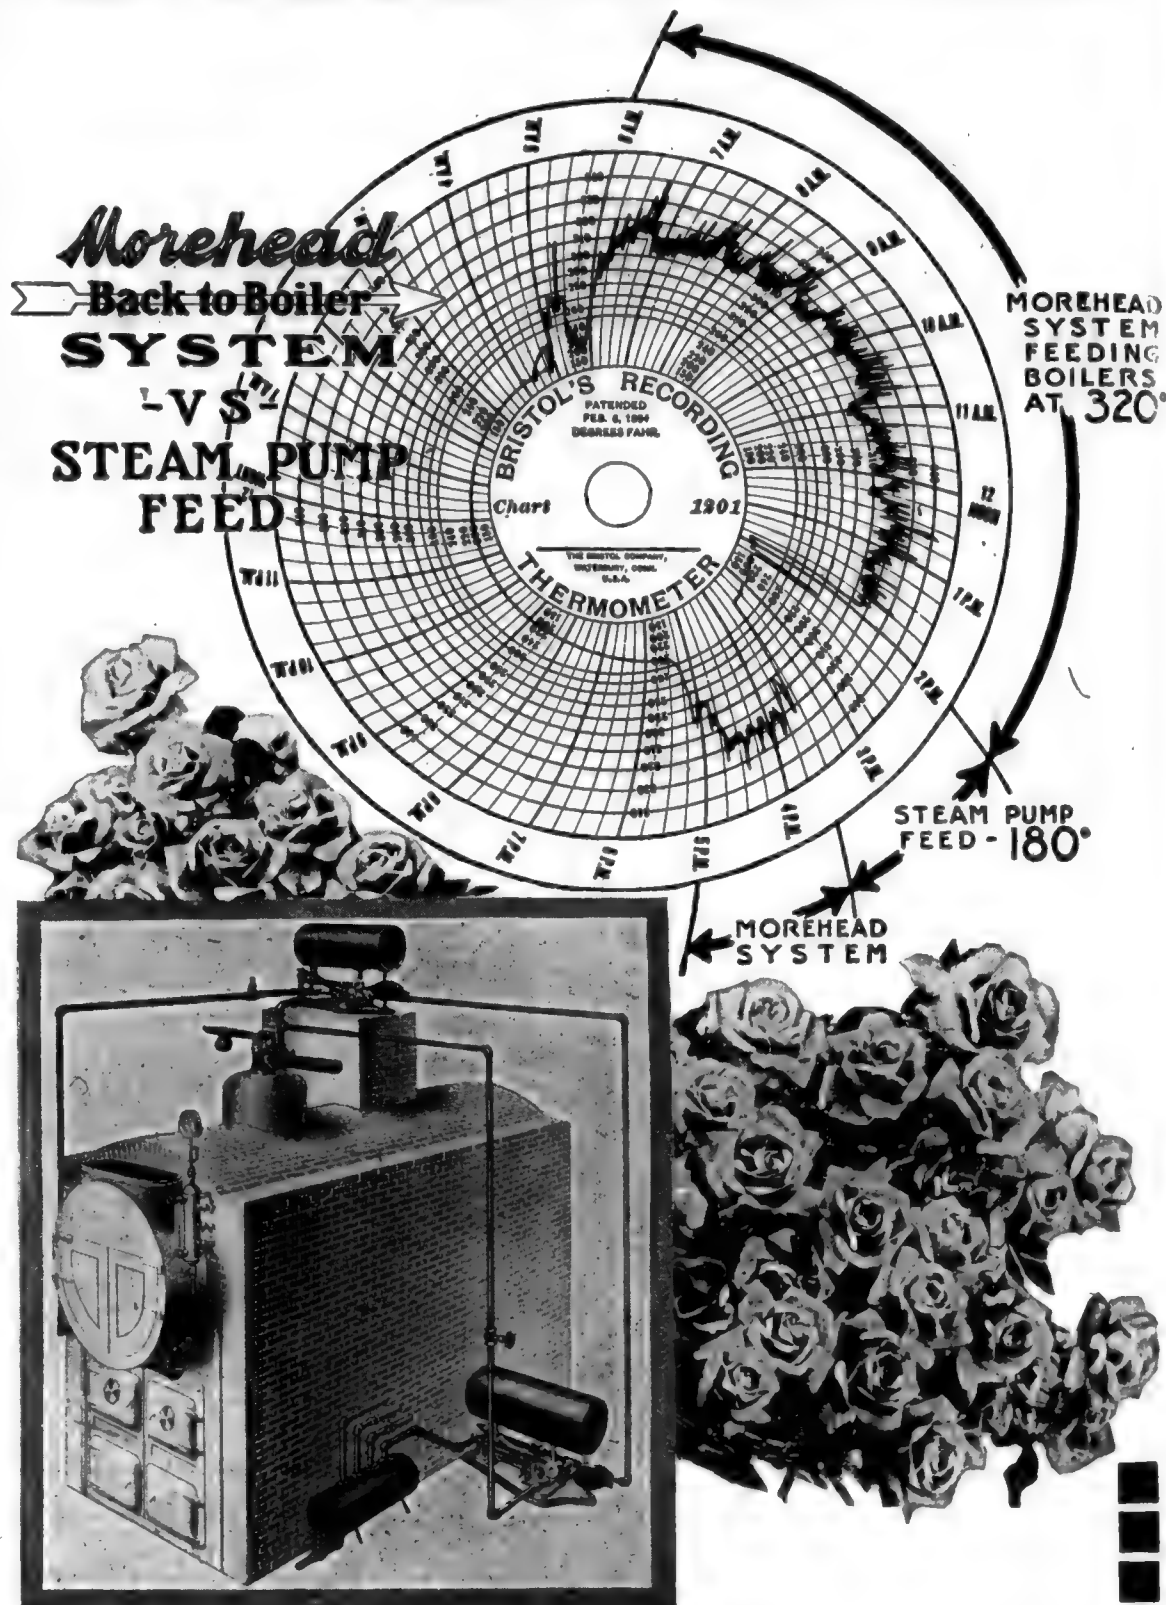

A. P.—Kan.

When using a generator, the heating capacity of a boiler and radiating surface, as compared with the effectiveness of an open-tank system, will depend largely upon the size of the boiler and the skill of the fireman, and will vary greatly, up to about twice the heating capacity of the open-tank system.

However, we would consider that the present radiating surface cannot be made to furnish much additional heat except at a considerable waste of fuel. If the present system will furnish a temperature of 50 degrees, about thirty-three per cent additional radiation will be needed to secure 60 degrees. This can be furnished by substituting 2½-inch for 2-inch pipes as flow pipes, and adding three 2-inch pipes to the number of returns. As now arranged, each of the flow pipes is carrying about 500 square feet of radiation, which is generally too much for 2-inch pipes.

ADDING ONE SMALL HOUSE.

I have a house 30x75, which is piped for hot water and is heated by a 35-horsepower boiler. I maintain a temperature of 50 degrees in zero weather, without forcing the boiler. The inlet and outlet pipes of the boiler are 4-inch. I expect to build another house, 16x25, parallel to the present one and of condensation returns from a steam pump system was taken under exactly the same conditions for both pump and Morehead System.

Between 2 and 2:30 p. m. the steam pump was cut into the line in place of the Morehead System.

Oh No!

- we don't want you to think that the above temperature chart represents greenhouse conditions
- because this chart was taken on a high pressure line
- but it brings out graphically the great advantages of the

over a steam pump for steam line drainage and boiler feeding.

Substituted for pumps, the Morehead System will keep all steam pipes clear of condensation and return it to the boiler as pure, hot feed water quicker and on 90% less steam than a steam pump will do it.

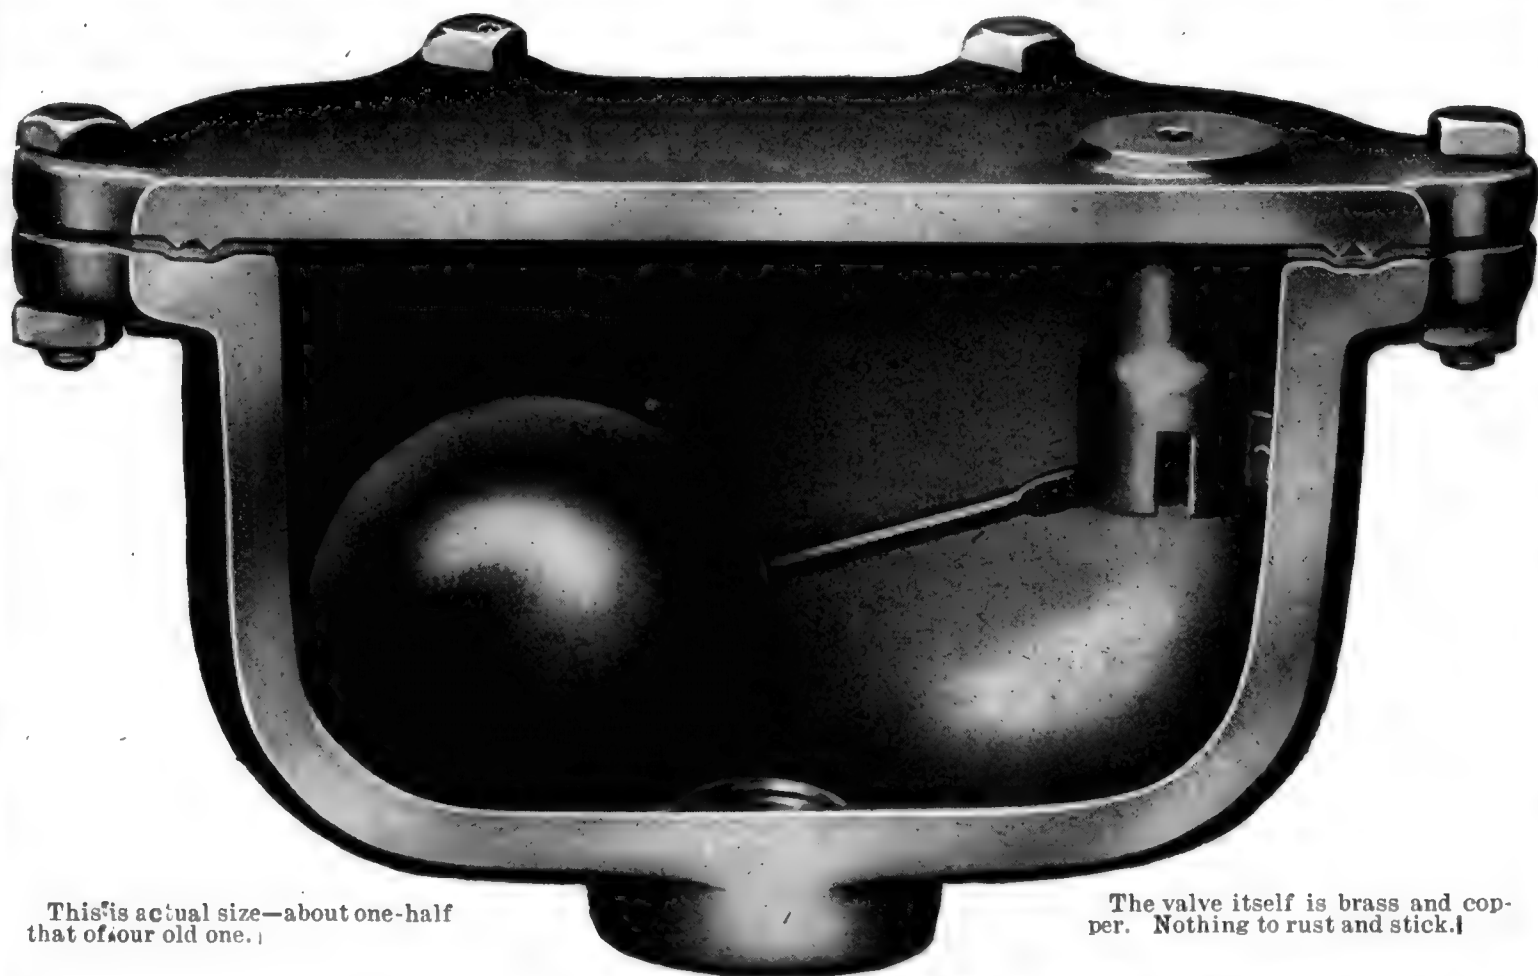

The installation expense is small—the results great. It matters not whether your institution is large or small, the Morehead System will save sufficient to pay for itself in a few months' time. Letters in our files prove this. Let us tell you about it.

The Interior of One of the Benjamin Dorrance Greenhouses. Showing One of the "Detroit" Systems in the Boiler Room of the Greenhouse.

Turn Your Waste Into Profit

In many Greenhouses steam-lines are allowed to blow off into atmosphere. This is a plain case of waste—it has taken a lot of heat to make steam from water and here it is being wasted. But there are many Florists who are confident that they have stopped this waste, and yet they still are wasting about one-third of this heat.

You see, although they know the elementary fact of engineering, that there is a big difference between live steam and steam that is just above the boiling point, they did not stop to think of this when they bought a steam pump to handle condensation.

A steam pump cannot handle condensation hotter than 212° F. (boiling point at sea level). Now the condensation under pressure in the steam lines may be 330° or 340° F. They have to let the condensation cool off in a receiver before the pump will handle it. Here is 33⅓% loss.

A "DETROIT" SYSTEM will handle condensation up to 340° F., and will shoot it back into the boiler before it has a chance to cool.

Are you sure you are getting every possible bit of heat out of your condensation?

Why not read up on the subject? There is a very interesting book, No. 5-A, which you may get from adjoining the boiler room. The new house will require a temperature of 60 degrees. It will have cement walls to the gutter on both sides, with glass in the end opposite the boiler room. The beds will be solid. Please tell me what size of pipes to use in the new house and how to arrange them. Will the 4-inch inlet and outlet be sufficient for both houses? A. G.—Ind.

There should be no difficulty in heating both houses with a 35-horsepower boiler. In fact, if the grate is of suitable size and the smokestack is high enough and large enough to give sufficient draft, the boiler would furnish heat for four times the present radiation. If the boiler has other flow and return ports, we would prefer to use the 4-inch flow and return ports for the house 30x75, but, if this cannot be readily arranged, 2½-inch flow and return pipes leading to the new house may be connected to the present 4-inch mains near the boiler.

To provide 60 degrees in the house 16x25, we would run a 2½-inch flow pipe to the farther end of the house, about two feet below the ridge, and connect it with two coils of four 2-inch returns. These should start at the middle of the end of the house and follow the walls around to the boiler end upon each of the walls.

Waterloo, N. Y.—M. Tobey reports that asters this year are badly blighted. A few of the late ones look better, but of late some sort of pest has been stinging the buds as they set. All affected plants are pulled out and burned.

A Message for You

Do not neglect to use Animal Manures

However, don't depend on them for plant foods. These Manures are dependable only in supplying Organic Matter for your soil.

The next step is to use Magic 99% Pure Carbonate of Lime

—to reduce the Organic Matter to Humus and fix the Nitrogen of your soil in this Humus. It is also needed to aid and assist in those important functions of Bacterial Activity, and consequent Nitri-fication.

The third, and very impor- tant, step is to use Magic Pure Bone Meals and Magic Complete Fertilizers of High Plant Food Content —to supply those three essential elements—Nitro-gen, Phosphorus and Po-tassium—necessary to pro-duce Growth, Productive-ness and Quality in all Floral and Vegetable Products.

Other growers are using Magic Fertilizers and feeding the Magic Way, and are getting best results possible. You will, too.

KANSAS CITY.

The Market.

The local trade improved somewhat last week and a steady increase is expected from now on, as most of the flower-buying people are back from their summer trips. Funeral work has been heavy all the week. Cut flowers are more plentiful. Gladioli and asters are the leaders. Asters have improved since last week and have increased in quantity. Lilies of different kinds are still in the market. Roses are more plentiful. Some nice Russell roses appeared and were bought as soon as unpacked. Little has been seen of dahlias so far this summer, but a fair cut is expected late this month. Outdoor snapdragons are available but are of inferior grade. The stock of greens has improved since last week.

Various Notes.

Peter Martin has finished the building of another greenhouse, 31x103. He has one large house devoted to geranium stock plants, which are looking fine. He also has made such changes that he will have no more trouble with water in the boiler pit.

The range of the Linwood Floral Co. was leased lately by Weber Bros. for ten years. They have been remodeling the place and have added a new greenhouse, 20x50. They will devote the place entirely to pot plants.

Reinhardt & Son, at Shawnee Mission, have one house in chrysanthemums and one in carnations and the stock is excellent. They are contemplating the building of several new houses in the near future. The houses will all be detached. Their outdoor perennials this year have not equaled last year's showing. They have about two acres of perennials.

W. J. Barnes has begun his regular fall decorations for the Emory, Bird & Thayer Dry Goods Co., using over 150 ferns and palms this week.

E. Humfeld is back from his 100-acre farm in the Ozark mountains. He gained nineteen pounds while away. He says that he got plenty of fish and that the hunting also is good on his place.

R. S. Brown & Son, at Maywood, are giving a larger amount of space in their greenhouses to spring bedding stock and pot plants and the stock is in fine condition.

Jacob Hepting has his carnations in excellent shape. The plants are sending up long shoots and he will soon start to cut them. His mums also look promising.

John Stevens' carnation range is looking well. He has planted over 40,000 carnations and 10,000 mums. He also has a nice lot of cyclamens and begonias and has ordered 1,000 azaleas for Christmas flowering.

Henry Kusik & Co. are receiving some excellent asters and gladioli from Colorado.

Arthur Newell reports that business is better and stock also has improved, but he is anxious to see still more good stock arrive. W. J. B.

Liberty, Ind.—Osa F. Coryell has organized a company and purchased the City Garden greenhouses, which he has leased for the last three years, and will continue the business under the name of Coryell & Co.

Bright weather and cool nights have helped the carnations and chrysanthemums in a manner most satisfactory to the growers. Carnation plants are practically all housed and it is interesting to note the scarcity of field-grown plants for sale in this section. Some of the growers have started cutting carnation blooms, which, while still short of stem, bring a good price.

At Charles M. Weaver's the first plantings of indoor Spencer sweet peas are starting to bloom.

Albert M. Herr's houses of Ricard and Poitevine geraniums, from which cuttings are being rooted, are a pleasant sight. For health and vigor they are unsurpassed and thousands of cuttings are going into the sand daily.

Rudolph Nagel is cutting some Smith's Advance mums, which are of high quality and reflect credit on their grower.

J. P. Siebold is devoting a considerable portion of his space to flowers for cutting, where formerly geraniums for cuttings were grown. His Marigold mums are of high quality.

At Peter Brown's millions of little pansy plants are in the finest possible condition. Mr. Brown's celebrated strain of pansies are known throughout the country.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ritchey have become enthusiastic autoists.

At the B. F. Barr & Co. store Paul Murphy has the window and a large part of the store room made into a beautiful garden, in which Barr's conifers occupy a prominent position. To some of us it is a pleasure to note with what interest the passers-by regard an exhibition of this kind.

The Lancaster County Florists' Club expects to visit the autumn dahlia show at the R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co. place, White Marsh, Md., Thursday, September 21. The trip will be made by automobile. The party will leave Center square, Lancaster, at 6:30 a. m., proceed to Quarryville, thence on the state road south to Conowingo bridge, over Susquehanna river, then on the state road, through Bel Air to a sign on the left reading "White Marsh, six miles." The route lies through a most picturesque country and the Maryland state roads are unsurpassed.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer J. Weaver entertained a number of their friends at dinner on the last day of August. Cards were played and the high prize winners were Mrs. L. Landis and Mrs. Ira H. Landis. H. K. R.

SAN FRANCISCO NOTES.

Frank Pelicano has half an acre of violets at Colma. He expects a fine crop about November.

The California Seed Co. has maintained a dahlia show at its store on Market street for the last five weeks. It was a big success, attracting the largest crowds that ever visited the store in the summer time. Walter Reubold trims the windows at this establishment and he has been using the space to excellent advantage supplementing the dahlia show inside.

The Floral City Nursery Co., which is engaged in the retail business at Poplar and Ellsworth avenue, San Mateo, is now growing most of its own stock. M. Poss, the proprietor, is building up the business in good shape. He has a house of roses, containing 1,000 plants, and several other houses.

N. Peterson, of Menlo Park, will begin to cut new carnations in about two weeks. His stock looks fine, everything being benched in good shape. He recently finished the erection of a number of houses.

D. Raymond, of the Garden City Pottery Co., made a short trip to Sacramento last week.

Domoto Bros. are starting to ship a good many chrysanthemums. They expect to be sending out large shipments by the middle of the month.

M. H. Ebel, of Sacramento, Cal., was a recent visitor to the local trade.

J. C. Craig, of Chicago, has been spending a few days here, after a trip through the northwest. He says he finds about the same market troubles here as prevail in the east.

Gardner Dailey, landscape architect with the MacRorie-McLaren Co., has returned from an extended orchid-collecting trip to Central America.

The E. W. McLellan Co. is building three houses, each 48x300 feet. These houses were planned according to the company's own ideas and other greenhousemen have inspected and approved the new features. The new houses will be devoted principally to Russell roses, which are grown extensively by this concern. The company has twelve houses of Russell roses and expects a heavy crop of these, as well as of Beauties, for Christmas. Manager Axell says that all the roses have improved during the last week or two. Hoosier Beauty, he says, has proven a fine summer rose. Hadley, on the other hand, is more important in the winter season. Mr. Axell

GENTLEMEN:

We have just gone through the worst West India hurricane which ever struck this part of the country. The wind attained a velocity of more than 90 miles an hour, wrecking residences, all the water front of the city and every ship in the harbor.

Our greenhouses, which we bought from you two years ago, stand in one of the most exposed portions of the city. The storm wrecked some two story residences within one block of us, but am happy to state that our greenhouses are standing with no loss whatever, except eleven boxes of glass. There was practically no damage to the stock inside. Hoping this will interest you, we remain,

"It Will Be Another Jacobs House"

NO sooner had we finished these three greenhouses for Viale Bros. of Pittsfield, Mass., than they started to consider building another, and wrote us, "You can bet it will be a Jacobs House, and no other. Our houses are the talk of the town."

Each of these three semi-iron, patented, even-span greenhouses is 21x150 feet, and is equipped with our patented iron gutters and ice clearing eave plates. We furnished all three complete, including the heating system.

Why wouldn't they want their next greenhouse to be a Jacobs "and no other"?

BLACK SPOT AND MILDEW ON ROSES

A slogan of modern reformers is, "Back to nature!" In the artificial conditions of the greenhouse, as well as in civilized social life, only a partial return to nature is advisable or possible; but nature's laws should be understood and utilized, not antagonized unnecessarily.

OF THESE two objects, the conservation of health and the promotion of longevity, is of vast interest to the human family, and each is receiving the intense study of scientific minds. Writers in the magazines and daily papers are uttering admonition after admonition, the substance of which is invariably: "Get back to nature. Seek out and study the laws that nature has laid down for the governing of life, and diligently apply them to your daily mode of living."

The Laws of Health.

While as yet the fruits of the labors of those disciples of clean living are not commensurate with the intensity of their toil, still there is hope that the time is coming when the application of their theories will reduce mortality to a minimum of unavoidable cases, and this old world will be infinitely benefited by the metamorphosis of a race of indifferent units into a race of virile, clean-minded, deep-thinking, healthful subjects of nature.

Elimination of disease and promotion and conservation of health are the prime fundamentals of organic life, whether animal or vegetable, and nature, the mother of us all, has provided laws governing existence, the faithful observance of which assists us greatly in our attempts to reach the pinnacle of all happiness, abundant health.

The great law of cause and effect must be consulted in the investigation of disease. Disease is the effect of a cause, or a series of causes, which throws out of gear the balance of Lake View Rose Gardens, James own, N. Y.

By CHARLES N. COTTER,

wheel of life, and before that wheel can be rightly readjusted the cause must be discovered and eliminated, and precaution must be taken to prevent its recurrence.

Penalties for Breaking Laws.

Disease is the penalty nature inflicts upon transgressors of her laws. In the beginning of human economics, laws were laid down to govern the conduct of those who composed humanity at that time, and the laws carried with them commensurate penalties for their violation. So, also, at the beginning of all things, laws were laid down by the Creator of nature, laws conducive to healthful evolution, and penalties were provided for their violation. In the case of human economics, death, imprisonment, banishment and fines constituted the penalties. In the sphere of vegetal economics, disease, blight, rot and death were the punishments prescribed.

Modern physicians, through their study of the laws of cause and effect, have elevated their profession to a plane of scientific knowledge that recognizes nothing as unconquerable in the vast catalogue of human ills. Equally proficient in their line of endeavor are the cultivators of plants, and at the present time it may safely be said that, whenever external conditions may be controlled, the trained plant culturist need fear no disease to which the plant is susceptible.

Control of external conditions naturally presupposes an area covered by glass, and as the most important of all the plants cultivated in glass structures is the rose, the remainder of this article will be confined to a discussion of the causes that have as their effect two of the most devastating diseases the rose plant is heir to; namely, black spot and mildew.

Lines of Communication.

The rose plant is an aggregation of various-sized cells, discharging individual functions, but interdependent on one another and all working toward the common goal, increased growth. From the end of the deepest submerged root to the tip of the highest leaf there is maintained continuously an unbroken line of communication.

The ability of plants to establish and maintain this line of communication is the most vital feature in vegetable anatomy. The process may be likened to the operation of a great trunk railroad, connecting the source of supply of raw materials, the manufacturing centers and the points of distribution. The roots, situated in a repository of nutrient food salts, may be termed the source of supply. The leaves, with their ability to work up, under the power of the sun, the raw food salts and combine with them other ingredients, gaseous and liquid, to make organized building compounds, may be termed manufacturing centers. The axillary buds and storage cells may be termed points of distribution.

Black Spot and Its Effect on the Young Growth of Mrs. Russell Rose.

When the Sun Is on Duty.

Through the process of transpiration, water and salts in solution are conveyed from the roots upward through trunk and branches to the leaves, where, under the influence of the sun, they are joined with other materials to form organized compounds. These organized compounds are then transported to the various points of expansion and are utilized in building up new parts of the plant. Just as long as continuous movement from root to leaf and from leaf to points of consumption is kept up unimpeded, a healthy condition may be maintained, but should the raw material be transported to the leaves faster than the leaves are able to take care of it, harmony of operation is disrupted and a cause is engendered that may have for its effect mildew and black spot.

When the Sun Disappears.

The sun occupies the pivotal position in the case, as it is the fountainhead of all plant energy. When its presence is obscured by the clouds, manufacturing of organized compounds in the leaves ceases and resumption of activity does not take place until it reappears. Hence it may be readily conceived that during prolonged periods of cloudy weather a congestion of raw material would take place in the leaves. This condition, if applications of water are continued injudiciously, results in weakened cell walls and brings about a state of low vitality that prevents the plant from waging a successful battle against fungous spores.

Right here we have an example of the working of the law of cause and effect. The lack of sunlight causes a cessation of manufacturing activity in the leaves and the congestion of raw material beyond the capacity of the cells to care for it, with the result that the walls of the cells weaken and general debility ensues.

Invitations to Disease.

Constitutional weakness and general debilitation, whether in man or plant, unless effectively remedied, presage disease. These unnatural conditions are brought about by continued violations of natural laws. Excesses in physical indulgence are the primary causes. If a man eats heartily and engages in strenuous employment, taking care that his lungs are afforded an ample supply of life-preserving oxygen, his system can easily take care of the large amount of food with which he loads his stomach. Digestion, assimilation and excretion are properly functioned and no ill effects follow. But let a man who leads a sedentary life follow the same dietary procedure, and witness the result. Digestion is faulty, assimilation is sparse and excretion is insufficient to care for the accumulated mass of waste material. The result is that the system clogs up; a general breaking down of the natural power of disease-resistance takes place, and the first vagrant germ or microbe that comes along selects him with joy as a desirable place in which to establish a stock farm.

Watching the Weather.

The same conditions apply to plants. During bright, sunshiny weather, abundant waterings may be given and no ill effects will result, as the plant in its entirety is, under the beneficial influence of the sun's rays, functioning properly and is able to digest and assimilate all nutritious materials absorbed and to evaporate most of the useless matter. But treat the plants the same way during spells of damp, cloudy weather, and the result will be the same as in the case of the man who eats to excess without engaging in sufficient work or exercise to provide a natural demand for the excessive supply of nutriment. A clogged or congested condition will arise in the system, giving birth to a general weakness which renders the plant an easy prey for any spores of mildew or black spot which may be leisurely floating through the atmosphere.

The Busy Little Germs.

Mildew and black spot are constituents of aerial life. As diversified and as multitudinous as land and water organisms are the inhabitants of the atmosphere. They belong to the lowest order of animal and vegetable life, and, unlike their more refined brethren, they characteristic of these two periods are such that control of atmospheric environment is at times impossible. Sunshine and rain follow each other for days—yes, and for weeks—with a frequency and evenness of duration that tax the good nature of the most optimistic rosarian. Nights warm and damp follow the erratic days and the use of steam in the pipes under the beds is almost precluded.

The manufacturing of organized compound in the leaves from the raw material conveyed thereto by ascending sap is reduced to a minimum; or, to be more explicit, only takes place during the periods of actual sunlight. Transpiration also is retarded, to a great extent, as the air surrounding the leaves is surcharged with moisture and consequently is unable to accommodate that additional supply which, under favorable growing conditions, would be passed off from the plant in the form of vapor during the functioning of transpiration.

The Prime Essential.

Control of soil moisture during periods of dark, damp weather, when the outside temperature is too warm to permit the use of artificial heat in the houses, may be conceded as the prime essential in the maintenance of an environmental condition conducive to plant health and inhibitory to occupation by fungous spores. During such periods water, if applied at all to the soil in which the roots reside, should be given only when absolutely necessary.

To culturists who operate under the numerical system of water application—that is, watering so many times in a given period regardless of external conditions—the foregoing theories may seem effete, but experience has proved their merit. Methods contrary to them may often be followed with good rather than ill results. But beware! The plants are endowed with great powers of adaptation. They can labor along in good health for a time under the most adverse conditions, but ultimately nature will exact her toll. The laws of cause and effect are immutable. Men or plants may violate one natural law after another and apparently do so with impunity, but the time arrives sooner or later when they will be called upon to pay the penalty—weakness and disease.

are imbued with a parasitic nature. Each type preys on its generic relatives in the higher scale of organic evolution and a continual warfare is waged. To all appearances, these atmospheric constituents form a large part of nature's judiciary system, as they are constantly alert to discern the violators of her laws and to inflict punishment on them by taking possession of the body and destroying health. All of the higher subjects of nature are under suspicion, and investigations are unceasingly conducted by these germs, microbes and spores. The only evidence of guiltlessness is the ability of the objects of suspicion to withstand the investigation and to cast the investigator back into the media from which it came. That is nature's reward for observance of her laws—immunity from the sinister effects of her dispensers of punishment.

Two Dangerous Periods.

In commercial rose culture under glass the two periods of greatest danger to the plants, as far as mildew and black spot are concerned, are early autumn and spring. Weather conditions

VIRGINIA'S BULB FIELDS

THE AMERICAN HOLLAND.

In Ole County No'folk.

Norfolk county, Virginia, long time famed as one of the largest truck-producing sections of the country, now boasts the growing of another commodity, which differs mainly from the other products, in the minds of the negro workers in the fields, in that it cannot be eaten. The passer-by along the roads is informed, in response to the perpetual inquiry, that, while the things grown look like onions, they really are "bubs," and will kill him if he eats them.

The Portsmouth side of the river, on account of soil conditions principally, has the largest acreage devoted to bulbs. Here the soil, a sandy loam, is particularly adapted, being practically identical with that seen in the bulb-growing sections of Holland, and producing some varieties of narcissi, tulips, etc., that even surpass the imported stocks in blooming qualities and have an additional advantage of blooming from a week to ten days earlier, a point that readily will be appreciated by all forcers of this stock.

The industry has long since passed the experimental stage, a period full of obstacles, such as encountered in every new enterprise. The intensive mode of planting used by Europeans could not be applied here, as the utter lack of skilled labor, coupled with the wages demanded by the most ignorant types available, made this impracticable. This condition was offset, however, by the cheapness of land. A system of team work, already largely in use in the truck fields, was adopted, and workers could be obtained that were familiar with the system. The result shows the bulb fields a series of ridges and hollows. The planting is accomplished by throwing out two furrows, one each way, then cultivating to the desired width, which also levels the bottom of the row. The bulbs are set out and the covering is done by merely reversing the plow action. In lifting, the rows are opened in a like manner, the bulbs being then forked out in the middle. The saving of hand labor thus accomplished more than compensates for the extravagant use of land.

The Home-grown Varieties.

The selection of varieties was next taken up, and here some real trouble was encountered. It soon was apparent that as many varieties as shown by growers in the old country could not be successfully handled without incurring much extra expense in keeping the stocks true, as to the workers "a bulb is a bulb." They have no idea of variety. Then, again, a few of the most desirable varieties of narcissi were either utter failures in this soil or else propagated so slowly as to make their culture unremunerative. Notable among these was the double Von Sion, Telamonius plenus, which, in spite of all efforts, persisted in coming green, with the symmetry of the flower not discernible. Experiments culminated in the selection of narcissi of probably twenty-five varieties, chief among which are princeps maximus, Emperor, Empress, Grandee, Silver Spur, Sir Watkin, Barrii conspicuus, Mrs. Langtry, Campernelle, poeticus Pheasant's Eye, ornatus and præcox grandiflorus, and among the newer ones King Alfred, Madame de Graaff and Glory of Leiden. In tulips the earlier types were discarded altogether, further plantings being made of the May-flowering and Darwins, which were highly successful. The planting of the different varieties now is regulated so that each occupies a separate cut or parcel of land, being replaced by the same variety after each digging, which thus minimizes the possibility of mixing.

Sales and Prices.

The first week in September finds the lifting of narcissi practically complete. The stocks for selling are always the first to be dug, as only by early lifting will the bulbs have a good appearance and hold a nice skin. For this purpose bulbs are obtained that have been planted for the purpose some two or three years previously, and they average over seventy-five per cent salable, either as double or single nose. With this complete the propagating work is taken up and bulbs are lifted that have been down from three to five years, depending on variety. These bulbs are generally split up quite small and show an increase in this period of from 300 to 1,000 per cent. These splits form first-size bulbs in two or three seasons, and thus the evolution. Tulips are taken up every year, usually as soon as the foliage matures. A large bulb of these will produce an abundance of off-sets every season, as well as retain its original size.

This season's liftings show stocks of unusual fineness, the ideal weather conditions that prevailed during the months of May and June permitting an extended maturing season, which is reflected in the size and substance of the bulbs.

Contrary to the general belief, these home-grown bulbs are being handled extensively by large eastern dealers of repute. The unwarranted prejudice does not exist with them, and if large repeat orders for carload lots are evidence of the satisfaction they are giving, then the bulbs must be doing all and more than the growers claim for them.

The prices are necessarily governed by European quotations, but the buyer is given an opportunity to save the cost of import freight and duty, which averages about $2 per thousand. In spite of the threatened dumping of excessive Dutch stock in this country, no demand has been felt for lower prices, and at the rate orders are coming in it is certain that there will again be no surplus.

OPEN LETTERS from READERS

A NATIONAL FLOWER.

Although I never saw an iris that was not beautiful, yet a feeling of protest takes possession of me whenever I read of its being proposed as our national flower. The iris is not any certain, definitely known thing, but any one of a thousand more or less similar or dissimilar flowers.

Is it native? Some varieties of it are, but its commonly known forms are not. As a matter of fact, the native species are but slightly known, compared with, say, the goldenrod. The most familiar form of the iris, the so-called German sort, is not native. It is not in any way characteristic of the country or of the people. It does not make any such intimate appeal to the people as does the goldenrod, the water lily, dogwood, violet, wild rose, field daisy, hawthorn, wild crab, or even the Spanish needle in its fields of burnished gold.

As to beauty, that is a matter of personal fancy. But, as between the goldenrod and the iris, give me the goldenrod. Most persons, I think, would agree with me in this opinion. Who ever heard of people swarming into the country, or anywhere else, on foot, in buggies, in autos or on suburban trolley lines, to gather the iris, as they go to gather the goldenrod? The American people love the goldenrod, weed though it may be, but they do not specially love the iris and probably never will.

Benjamin C. Auten.

CHAMPIONS THE IRIS.

In The Review of September 7 I read an article by C. S. Harrison, of York, Neb., which appealed to me strongly.

I have been growing Iris Germanica for a number of years and some of my original roots came from Mr. Harrison's fields. He wrote earnestly in advocating the iris as the national flower, but he did not name all the good qualities of the iris.

At shipping time in the fall of 1914 small bulbs were torn off the divisions and thrown on the ground because they were too small to send out. The following spring, after all the freezing and thawing, I was looking over the beds to see about the labels of the varieties that might have been broken or thrown out by the frost. I found that the discarded bulbs were growing out at the crowns and that some of them had only one small root left; the others had been torn off by the ice and snow. I placed them back in the rows where the original ones were, and this fall I cannot tell them apart. They are as strong and as sturdy as any of the rest.

Last year was one of the hardest on field-grown stock, on account of the heavy rains in this section, that I have ever seen. I have some low ground on my place, and it happens that some of my best varieties are located on this area. Sometimes last fall the water stood on this ground from one to four inches deep. In the spring of this year I had one of the finest looking sets of irises that you would ever want to see. The plants were covered with blooms. It looked as if they had tried to see how many flowers they could produce.

Another incident to illustrate the hardness of the iris also happened here. A shipment of I. florentina alba had been ordered from a firm in the east, but the roots were late in coming to me. The ground outside had been frozen for a week or more, and it was too late to set the roots out. They remained about the potting shed for a week or more waiting for a chance to set them, but that time never came, as Old King Winter had frozen the ground for good. Later on I took them out of the case and placed them in a flat, put them in a dry place in one of the greenhouses and left them until spring. They were finally planted out, and today all the florentina alba irises on my place came from those neglected roots.

Let someone else give Mr. Harrison's idea a boost. The iris as a national flower sounds good to my ears.

MOVE TO RELEASE AZALEAS.

Following the visit to the State Department of William F. Gude and C. B. Knickman, during which they solicited the aid of government officials in securing relief from the stand taken by the British and German authorities with respect to the shipment from Belgium of this year's stock of azaleas and other plants of Belgian production, Mr. Gude, as the Washington representative of the S. A. F., has transmitted the following letter to Secretary Lansing:

Washington, D. C., September 15, 1916.

The Honorable,
The Secretary of State,
Washington, D. C.

Sir:

On behalf of the Society of American Florists I respectfully but urgently request that you take prompt action by cable with the British and German authorities to the end that shipments of Azalea Indica and other plants of Belgian origin, now under embargo by the German authorities, be released, and that the Belgian growers be permitted to forward these shipments this fall to the American florists who ordered them.

These shipments consist principally of azaleas, which are imported from Belgium to be forced by American florists for sale at Easter and Christmas. Nothing will take their place. They are grown exclusively around Ghent, Belgium, and cannot be obtained from any other source. The shipments of azaleas usually leave Belgium from September 1 to October 15. They are only in proper condition to be shipped at this time. If they are not received here this fall, the loss will fall heavily on many thousands of florists who up to now have fully expected to receive them.

These shipments have come from Belgium each spring and fall with the consent of the British and German authorities, but the German authorities now refuse to issue export permits to the Belgian growers to ship to the United States, unless the money is paid in advance to Belgian growers. This plan is impracticable: First, because money cannot be sent into Belgium; second, because the British authorities would not allow the shipments to pass if payment were made to the Belgians, who are under control of the Germans.

Since the British Order in Council went into effect in June, 1915, the payments for shipments have been deposited to the credit of the Belgian shippers in the Banque Belge pour l'Etranger, London, with the understanding that they could not withdraw these funds without the consent of the British authorities. This plan must have been agreeable to the Germans, since they have permitted the shipments to leave, but they now stop them for reasons which we can only surmise.

The fall shipment will consist approximately of 1,200,000 plants of Azalea Indica, besides the bay trees, palms, etc., which come with them. They will have a delivered New York value of approximately $250,000, and be distributed to 5,500 or more American florists. If shipments are not made this season, most of the plants in Belgium must be destroyed, and as it takes many years to produce these plants no further shipments could be expected for many years after the conclusion of the war.

As the outlook will be dark for thousands of florists whom I represent unless these shipments arrive, I urge that you take such action by cable as will result in these fall shipments being allowed to come forward.

Yours truly,

William F. Gude,
Washington Representative.

RETAIL STORE MANAGEMENT

WHAT THE LEADERS IN THE TRADE ARE DOING

OUT-OF-TOWN SERVICE WEEK.

We are accustomed to an annual apple week, to a raisin week, to a made-at-home week, and half a dozen other kinds of weeks—there even has been a cheese week, when all grocery stores and others selling cheese were urged to decorate their windows and make special displays, the incentive being supplied by an association of cheese-makers.

Perhaps it is due to these facts that Albert Pochelon, secretary of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery, has conceived the idea of all retail florists coming in on an out-of-town service week. Mr. Pochelon's plan is to have every storekeeper do something on a designated week to advertise the facilities the trade now possesses in such adequate measure for handling orders for delivery at a distance. "Out-of-town service" is an excellent title. It means more to the man in the street than does our "telegraph delivery" or "F. T. D.;" the shorter we cut it the less it means to the man who does not know.

Mr. Pochelon is feeling the pulse of the trade with the idea of asking everyone to make a special effort during some week in November to feature this part of the business, either by window decoration, by store decoration, in advertising literature, or by a combination of all these methods. Mr. Pochelon, who probably has given the subject more study than any other one man, is of the opinion that the million dollars' aggregate business now handled by the out-of-town service will become two millions as soon as twice as many people learn of the trade's facilities for delivering flowers at a distance.

"CAPITALIZING VANITY."

In a popular weekly of recent issue a clever writer relates how many merchants become rich by capitalizing one of the weaknesses of human nature—vanity. He shows how the joy of being different, the craving of human nature for distinctiveness and exclusiveness, are responsible for a world-wide extravagance and higher selling prices on commodities really not worth the money. Large and small stores, he says, are compelled to figure on the human tendency on the part of the rich to excite the envy of those not so rich, and of persons in the lower ranks to imitate those of the higher plane. The author narrates numerous incidents to sustain his views, the first dealing with a retail florist, as follows:

"In a certain city the leading retail florist has amassed a big fortune by quietly utilizing a funny little phase of everyday human nature. This man charges perhaps thirty per cent more than any of his competitors; yet much of his stock could be duplicated right up the street. Some of his flowers may be a little better than those sold by others, but rarely thirty per cent better. They may have a longer ribbon on them or prettier twine around the box, but, on the whole, dollar for dollar, you could get much better value elsewhere.

"The main difference is in the selling price. Because he asks more than other dealers for the same article, this man has grown rich. He sells more flowers than any of his competitors and does so more readily. And he believes that his success rests to a large degree on the fact that his place is known as the highest-priced establishment of its kind in town.

"The young man, for example, who wishes to make a deep and lasting impression upon a beautiful and talented young woman by sending her flowers likes to buy, if possible, at this most expensive shop. She is flattered to think that he holds her in such high esteem as to get his flowers at the costliest place in town. And his own vanity is tickled because she now knows—and he knows she knows—that he is able to deal at such a high-priced store.

"I do not say, understand, that any merchant can increase his sales by raising his prices; but I do say that, so long as human vanity is what it is at this writing, a great many persons will derive much pleasure from showing their ability to have nothing but the best. And there is a tendency to measure quality by price."

There are a good many florists who will think this is from a fiction magazine, but there is truth and fact behind it.

Of course every merchant is concerned only with disposing of his goods and pocketing the profits; he does not, by any manner of means, sidestep the straight and narrow path by catering only to a demand created and fostered by vanity in human nature. All business, for that matter, exists only by reason of the needs of humanity, however those needs may be classified. In conclusion the author makes a striking observation:

"If it were possible to extract the vanity from human nature there would be necessary a business readjustment much greater than is expected to follow the European war. It would be worth while to know just how much modern business—with human vanity eliminated—could endure."

THE HARP IN FLOWERS.

The harp is not a popular funeral piece except for such orders as come from subscriptions among the fellow-employees of the deceased, but it is a favorite design for exhibitions, and it was for this purpose that Harve E. Lozier, of Des Moines, used it at the recent Iowa state fair. He took first prize with it.

The illustration shows the piece, which stood five feet high. It was made of Easter lilies, Sunburst roses, valley and orchids. Such a design scarcely can be made to sell for less than $50, and if the best quality of flowers in sufficient quantity is to be used, $75 will come nearer giving the florist an adequate profit.

TO STERILIZE SAND.

We use sand in our greenhouse propagating benches for rooting soft-wooded cuttings in June and July. These cuttings are rooted under double glass, in closed benches. Considerable fungus develops in the cuttings and sand. After the cuttings are rooted and hardened off, we plant them out, and remove the sand from the benches and place it outdoors in the sun.

Now, what we would like to know is: Can this sand be used again next season for propagating? Will the action of the sunlight outdoors destroy all fungi in the sand? We are compelled to buy our sand and have it shipped from Indiana, and this, of course, makes it expensive. We are therefore anxious to know if it will be practical to use this same sand again.

D. H. N. C.—Ill.

While the sun will sterilize the sand in a large measure, if you can turn live steam into it there will be far less danger of fungi. A small portable steam boiler with a perforated pipe leading from it would do the work efficiently. Failing steam, give the sand a soaking of water as near the boiling point as possible. There will then be little fear of fungi. I would give the bottoms and sides of the benches a good scalding before putting in the sand. It is perfectly practicable to use sand again when care is taken to sterilize it.

N. Y. CLUB FEDERATION MEETS.

A meeting of the New York State Federation of Floral Clubs was held at the state fair at Syracuse September 14, 1916. Vice-president E. A. Bates, of Syracuse, presided. There was a good attendance at the meeting and various reports were given on the work of the different committees during the last year.

A committee consisting of Messrs. McCarthy, Thorpe and White was appointed to draw up suitable resolutions on the death of President Wm. F. Kasting.

It was the opinion of the federation that its work would be more effective if there were more meetings during the year. It therefore was voted to hold an annual meeting at the New York state fair grounds at Syracuse during State Fair week, a second meeting at Cornell during Farmers' week, a third meeting in New York city during the spring flower show and a fourth meeting with some society of the federation, at such time as the president might designate.

It was voted to provide for an executive board, to consist of the president, secretary and treasurer of the New York State Federation of Floral Clubs and the president of each affiliated society in the federation.

The officers elected for the ensuing year were: President, F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown; first vice-president, Dr. E. A. Bates, Syracuse; second vice-president, George McCarthy, Syracuse; third vice-president, C. H. Vick, Rochester; fourth vice-president, George E. Thorpe, Syracuse; fifth vice-president, F. A. Danker, Albany; secretary, E. A. White, Ithaca, N. Y.; treasurer, W. A. Adams, Buffalo.

It was voted to appoint a committee of the federation to confer with the horticultural council in regard to an appropriation for a horticultural building at the New York state fair grounds. The members elected to this committee were President Pierson and Messrs. Bates, Lumsden, Workman and Thorpe.

Should callas be rooted in the dark the same as other bulbs? J. M.—Ind.

Callas should not be started in the dark, but in the full sun, and they are better if left outdoors until frost threatens.

LEAF-SPOT ON MUMS.

Is it best to have clean, fresh sand to start geranium cuttings in?

Of late many of my mum plants in the benches have lost their lower leaves. The leaves seem to dry and then die, although the plants are watered sufficiently. Many of the leaves have light spots, which give one the impression that worms have crawled on the leaves and left little streaks. The lower leaves, as a rule, show this condition. What is the trouble and what would you advise me to do? The plants are in good soil, are well watered and make good growths. I spray the plants with a hose on bright mornings.

F. B. R.—O.

Sand that has been in the benches for an indefinite length of time is not good for new cuttings of any sort, and to use such sand is to court disaster at the start.

The mums mentioned undoubtedly are affected with septoria, or leaf-spot, which always comes at this season when plants are grown close together and when the sunlight does not get down to the benches. There is, of course, a certain quantity of foliage lost when the plant is hardening or ripening, but F. B. R. speaks of little spots, or streaks, which would indicate that the ripening is not normal. When the plants are watered see that they are dry by night and keep them more on the dry side from now on. To kill the spores of leaf-spot, spray the plants with Fungine or Bordeaux, as directed, and this will hold the disease in check.

PROBABLY DUE TO CHINCH BUGS.

Last year I had the best Major Bonnaffon chrysanthemums grown around here, but this season I am having poor luck. I am sending you a package containing a few sample plants, and I hope you can tell me what to do for them. I grew them outdoors until August 1. When I put them in the house, about that date, they looked as well as any that I ever saw, but when they started to branch they suddenly showed signs of deterioration. I fumigated twice with cyanide, the last time nearly burning the plants. I removed all the branches except one, as I wished to grow them singly, and I notice that the branch I left is now suffering from the trouble. There is something eating out the center. I cannot find any pest in the house except wireworms, and they appear to be harmless. I have about 8,000 plants of Major Bonnaffon and ninety per cent of them are affected in the way I have described.

L. M.—Mass.

The package of plants has not yet come to hand, but L. M.'s description of his trouble seems to indicate the ravages of chinch bugs. Persistent fumigating with cyanide once a week should eliminate this bug. Meanwhile about all L. M. can do is to take off the superfluous shoots and endeavor to get the plants grown into a healthy condition. There is still time to do this, though it will make the crop quite late.

MUMS IN CALIFORNIA.

Those in the trade who keep in touch with the broader phases of business development are aware that in recent years a movement of cut flowers eastward from the Pacific coast has set in which has attained large volume in an extremely short time, extending as far as the tier of states composed of Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Nebraska, South Dakota and North Dakota and covering the far western section of the country after the fashion that the shipping trade of the Chicago market covers the middle west. Growing conditions in the territory that supplies the Los Angeles market are entirely different from those that maintain in other parts of the country and growers in the east who have not had the opportunity to visit the coast will be interested in the accompanying illustrations showing how chrysanthemums are grown in solid beds in enormous cloth houses.

The larger illustration was reproduced from a photograph made September 1, 1916, and shows a house of mums being grown for the California Cut Flower & Evergreen Co., Los Angeles. The stock in this one house totals 150,000 plants. All the best shipping and commercial varieties are included, one of the most popular being Major Bonnaffon. There is something about the climate of southern California that is especially suited to the growth of this variety and growers of wide experience say they never have seen such Bonnaffons, even when grown for exhibition in the east, the middle west or in Europe, as are turned out by commercial growers near Los Angeles. In addition to the Bonnaffons, the large white, William Turner, is grown in quantity, some of the flowers from this same house last year, as shown in the illustration, measuring over sixteen inches across.

Aside from the ability to dispense with glass and heat, what appeals most forcibly to the eastern grower is the planting in the solid ground, without the use of the tables used everywhere else except in a small southern section.

Chrysanthemum William Turner Grown in Cloth House in California.

A Californian Cloth House Containing 150,000 Chrysanthemums Photographed September 1, 1916.

The season is earlier in southern California than elsewhere, the early varieties being ready by the close of September, and the flowers are of splendid texture, standing shipping long distances. The Pacific coast wholesalers have introduced the chrysanthemum in parts of the country in which it was comparatively unknown up to the last two or three seasons.

ILLINOIS STATE FAIR.

Flower Show Much Smaller.

The flower show in connection with the Illinois state fair, held annually at Springfield, is not gaining in interest; on the contrary, it is decreasing in size and declining as an attraction to the grounds. One of the reasons, of course, is that it is difficult to make a show of cut flowers at the middle of September, neither roses, carnations nor chrysanthemums being in condition to display at this date, but a reduction in the premiums last year did nothing to help the show along. This year, however, the marked falling off in the size of the show was due to the defection of the growers from the north end of the state, who have enlivened the competition in recent years, and to the condition of stock, which resulted in an unusually small showing of all cut flowers. The exhibits are nearly all local.

The Awards.

The awards made during the first two days, September 18 and 19, when interest usually is at its height, were as follows:

Stove and greenhouse plants, to cover 200 square feet—George J. Dinkel, Springfield, first; George M. Brinkerhoff, Springfield, second; Hembreiker & Cole, Springfield, Ill., third; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., Springfield, fourth.
Twelve palms, single—George M. Brinkerhoff, first; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., second.
Six palms, single, three varieties, two of each—George M. Brinkerhoff, first; George J. Dinkel, second; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., third.
Two palms, made up—Janssen Seed & Floral Co., first; George M. Brinkerhoff, second.

One palm, single—George J. Dinkel, first; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., second; George M. Brinkerhoff, third.
Cycas revoluta—George M. Brinkerhoff, first.
Four araucarias—Gullett & Sons, Lincoln, Ill., first; George M. Brinkerhoff, second.
Twelve crotons, in variety—George M. Brinkerhoff, first.
Ornamental or foliage plant—George J. Dinkel, first; George M. Brinkerhoff, second.
Twelve flowering begonias, in variety—George M. Brinkerhoff, first; Hembreiker & Cole, second; George J. Dinkel, third.
Ten cyclamen plants, not less than 5-inch pots—Hembreiker & Cole, first; George M. Brinkerhoff, second.
Twelve ferns, distinct, one of each—George M. Brinkerhoff, first.
Six ferns, distinct, one of each—George M. Brinkerhoff, first.
Four adiantums, distinct—George M. Brinkerhoff, first.
Four Nephrolepis Bostoniensis, not less than 8-inch pots—George M. Brinkerhoff, first; George J. Dinkel, second.
Four Nephrolepis Pteronit, or any other sport of Boston—George M. Brinkerhoff, first; George J. Dinkel, second.
Four Nephrolepis Whitmanii—George M. Brinkerhoff, first.
Four Nephrolepis Scottii—George M. Brinkerhoff, first; George J. Dinkel, second.
One Nephrolepis Bostoniensis, not less than 10-inch pot—George M. Brinkerhoff, first; George J. Dinkel, second.
One Nephrolepis Pteronit, or any other sport of Boston, not less than 10-inch pot—George M. Brinkerhoff, first; George J. Dinkel, second.
One Nephrolepis Whitmanii, not less than 10-inch pot—George M. Brinkerhoff, first; George J. Dinkel, second.
One Nephrolepis Scottii, not less than 10-inch pot—George M. Brinkerhoff, first; George J. Dinkel, second.
One Cibotium Schiedel—George M. Brinkerhoff, first.
Four dracaenas, four varieties—George M. Brinkerhoff, first.
Four Pandanus Veitchii—George M. Brinkerhoff, first.
Twelve baby ramblers in bloom—George M. Brinkerhoff, first.
Twelve Souper in bloom—George M. Brinkerhoff, first.
Six Asparagus plumosus—George M. Brinkerhoff, first.
One hanging basket, fern—Gullett & Sons, first; George M. Brinkerhoff, second.
One hanging basket, Sprengerii—George M. Brinkerhoff, first; Gullett & Sons, second.
Basket of foliage plants, arranged for effect—George M. Brinkerhoff, first.
Two window boxes, filled—George M. Brinkerhoff, first.
One fern dish, filled—George M. Brinkerhoff, first; Hembreiker & Cole, second.
Collection of bulbs for fall planting, correctly named—Janssen Seed & Floral Co., certificate of merit.
Twenty-five American Beauty roses—Gullett & Sons, first.
Fifty Mrs. Russell roses—Janssen Seed & Floral Co., first.
Fifty Ophelia roses—Janssen Seed & Floral Co., first.

Fifty Kaiserin roses—Janssen Seed & Floral Co., first.
Twenty-five dahlias, double—Mrs. Nott, Charleston, Ill., first; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., second; L. A. Berry, Chicago, third.
Twelve vases of hardy perennials, each variety in separate colors—A. T. Hey, Maywood, Ill., first.
Asters—George M. Brinkerhoff, first; A. T. Hey, second; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., third.
Fifty chrysanthemums, two varieties—Gullett & Sons, Lincoln, Ill., first.
Fifty chrysanthemums, any variety—Gullett & Sons, first.
Fifty white carnations—Gullett & Sons, first. There were eleven classes for carnations, with thirty-three premiums, and only one entry.
Standing cross, four feet—Gullett & Sons, first; Hembreiker & Cole, second; A. T. Hey, third.
Wreath on easel, 24-inch—Gullett & Sons, first; Hembreiker & Cole, second; Mrs. Nott, Charleston, Ill., third.
Floral arrangement, set piece—Gullett & Sons, first; Hembreiker & Cole, second; Hembreiker Bros., Lincoln, Ill., third.
Dinner table, arranged with accessories—Mrs. Nott, first; Mrs. Coffey, Charleston, Ill., second; A. T. Hey, third.

haps will charge more than usual for their potted plants, and it is quite likely that they also will charge more for cut flowers.

Various Notes.

The September meeting of the Essex County Florists' Club will be held this week. Work for the fall will be planned and it is probable that the matter of holding a chrysanthemum show will be taken up. The club held its first flower show last year and it was a most creditable affair. The meeting will be held in Krueger auditorium.

Business is reported quiet at May's Flower Shop, 265 South Orange avenue.

While business is fair for this season, there is no life to it, is the report of William Weismantel.

Edward Jacobs, of Irvington, says business is fair. The plants in his greenhouses are in good condition, the chrysanthemums being especially fine.

Hutchinson's, at Elizabeth, have reopened their store, after the usual August shut-down.

The Rose Shop, of Summit, was opened for business last week. It is under the management of Howard Silcock, under the direction and supervision of Harry O. May. R. B. M.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

The condition of the local wholesale market last week was much the same as that of the week previous. There was plenty of seasonable stock and prices were reasonable. The few cool days the latter part of the week stimulated business among the retailers. The report had it that funeral work was plentiful, but aside from that little business was done. Roses in all varieties were plentiful, but extra fancy stock still is limited. The majority of the consignments arriving are fine stock, save that the blooms are somewhat short of stem. The demand has been exceedingly good for the light colors. Carnations as yet are small and short-stemmed, with the bulk of the arrivals field-grown stock. Gladiolus stalks still are in favor and large shipments from local and outside growers are arriving. Prices for these are as low as $7.50 per thousand for mixed colors. Asters, too, were abundant. Large lots were disposed of at low prices. Some good Easter lilies are arriving and the demand for them is excellent. Valley is scarce. A few Golden Glow mums are seen, but the demand for them is slow. Dahlias are late this year. Smilax continues scarce, but the market is well supplied with other greens.

Club Meeting.

The St. Louis Florists' Club held its last outdoor meeting on the grounds of the Sanders Nursery Co., on Henley road. The members met in the St. Louis wholesale district and automobiles conveyed them to the meeting place. Mr. Sanders and his two charming daughters, Laura and Jessie, received the club members.

After an inspection tour of the nursery, the meeting was called to order by President Bourdet. Following the preliminaries all committees were called upon for final reports. F. X. Gorly, chairman of a committee on boosting the sale of flowers on holidays, made a splendid report on advertising these special days and this report will have final action at the next meeting. The flower show committee reported that arrangements were completed for the use of Armory hall for the spring flower show, to be held March 15 to 18, and that the show organization had been incorporated as the St. Louis Flower Show Association.

Robert Newcomb, of Chicago, was elected to membership and J. J. Karins, of Riverside, N. J., made application for membership.

Ex-presidents C. C. Sanders and F. J. Fillmore were appointed installing officers. Those inducted into office were: President, Jules Bourdet; vice-president, August Hummert; secretary, J. J. Windler; treasurer, W. C. Smith; trustee, F. A. Windler. The retiring officers, J. J. Beneke and W. S. Wells, were extended a vote of thanks for the good work done during their terms of office.

The meeting then adjourned and the host again took the members in hand and escorted them to a shady nook, where a fine luncheon was spread. A vote of thanks was extended Mr. Sanders for his entertainment. The next meeting will be held at the new home of the St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co., 1410 Pine street, October 12.

W. S. Wells, ex-vice-president of the Florists' Club, entertained the officers of the club at his home, 4258 Flad avenue, September 11. An enjoyable evening was spent. Mr. Wells is one of the retiring officers of the club.

News from Abroad

Yokohama, Japan.—Appearances are that the crop of giganteums all has been marketed, although the date is considerably earlier than usual. There is a scarcity of the smaller sizes, those below 8 to 10-inch.

Ghent, Belgium.—Preparations are under way for the dispatch of the autumn shipments to the United States, particularly azaleas. While the conditions as to labor, etc., have not been favorable, there is an abundance of excellent stock with which to fill such orders as are able to pass the scrutiny of the various authorities. The Syndicat des Horticulteurs Belges has assurances of the continuation of last season's arrangements with London but the German authorities have not yet given the expected permits to export the stock.

Ollioules, France.—Exporters here are sending correspondents in America cable advices that the indications are that the prices of Paper Whites and Romans next year will be much higher, in consequence of an unusually small crop. At present contracts can not be made at any price. There are many factors which will contribute to next year's short crop and high prices, but the chief ones are the shipment this year of bulbs of smaller size than usual, the labor shortage and the special incentive to grow food crops.

Haarlem, Holland.—Had it not been for the British embargo there would have been no possibility of filling all orders for Dutch bulbs with this year's crop. Let it be remembered that in the last year before the war Great Britain took twice as many Dutch bulbs as did America and that during the two seasons of hostilities it still took as many as crossed the Atlantic. Now, with the British market closed, prices are higher than earlier in the season. This pertains principally to tulips, large-sized hyacinths and narcissi; other bulbs are more or less normal.

London, England.—The effort to get the trade to adopt minimum prices for field-grown roses and other plants is developing slowly, but progress is being made. Gradually it is coming to be understood that the habitual price-cutters will shave an unremunerative rate as quickly as one that affords a profit and that nothing is lost by asking enough to afford a chance to deliver well-grown stock.

Boskoop, Holland.—C. Grootendorst, secretary of the Protective Association of Holland Nurserymen, stated August 25 that the organization has instructed him to request The Review to insert the following remarks: "In another publication (not The Review) appeared an article about 'Delayed Imports to America.' We read therein 'that the Holland-America line has already taken off several boats, that in all probabilities more will follow, and that when it comes time to ship there will be little in the way of ocean transportation facilities.' This statement is grossly exaggerated, as the Holland-America line only laid up their best steamer, Rotterdam, and has no intention of taking off any other. The article further states: 'It is doubtful if the shipowners will care to bother with nursery stock, bulbs and other similar and bulky commodities, when they can get other more valuable cargoes that will bring a greater net return.' We submitted the clipping to the Holland-America line and they replied: 'We are pleased to give you the assurance that the transportation of plants and bulbs will take place with all necessary care as in the past and as regularly as possible. We shall be glad if you will publish this in the American trade papers.' The delay which caused a shipment of plants to Washington, D. C., to arrive in practically worthless condition is doubtless attributable to the strike which tied up S. S. Ryndam from March 28 until April 14. This strike has been settled satisfactorily and the chances of further labor troubles are slight."

in time for the start of the fall business.

The new place of Henry Blixen, at Edwardsville, Ill., known as the Woodland Gardens, now is completed. The young rose stock is in splendid shape and the fine houses of carnations and mums should soon produce a large cut.

Vandervoort's flower department, under the management of Edward Westman, made a fine job of the fall opening decorations for this department store. Sales of fall bulbs were large here last week.

The greenhouses of John and Charles Steidle, at Olivette, Mo., and of Werner Bros., at Clayton, now are complete and the expectations are for a large cut of roses this season. The quality of the stock from these places always is the best.

Otto A. Klingler, with Grimm & Gorly, now is the official buyer for the local store, while Marion Uhl-schmidt buys for the east side branch. They are daily visitors in the wholesale district.

Alexander Geranios and Mrs. Geranios are back home to stay, owing to the health of Mrs. Geranios. Since leaving St. Louis they have been at Great Falls, Mont. Mr. Geranios' many friends are glad to see him back.

Henry Young & Son recently built a greenhouse for ferns and orchids in the rear of Mr. Young's home on Waterman avenue. Robert Thomson was the builder. Mr. Young, Jr., is in charge of the Maryland avenue store.

Fred Michels, designer for George Waldbart, again is at his post after a two weeks' vacation. He refuses to make known where he spent his vacation; even Count von Hoffman is in the dark on this question.

Fred C. Weber, Joseph Witek, John Boerm and Fred H. Weber, west end florists, have started the fall season with excellent window displays. The few cool days put some new life into the flower-buying public.

We learn from a recent visitor to the greenhouse range of Hugo Gross that, according to the appearance of his houses, he will have a large cut of carnations, violets and sweet peas this season. Mr. Gross' stock always is of a high quality.

The Lady Florists' Home Circle were entertained September 13 at the home of Mrs. John L. Koenig, on Clarence avenue. A most enjoyable afternoon was spent. Mrs. Emil Schray will entertain the circle next month.

Fred W. Ude, Jr., and son, of Kirkwood, are in line for a big and fine cut of chrysanthemums, violets and sweet peas. The stock from this place is much sought after by local buyers.

Thomas Carr, the Union Market florist, says that business has picked up wonderfully of late. Miss Marie Richardson again will have charge of the design work this season.

Joseph Hauser, of Webster Groves, is cutting an abundant supply of his single red dahlia, for which there is a big demand. The local retailers are much taken with this new variety for display work.

Visitors last week were J. J. Karins, representing H. A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, Pa.; Robert Newcomb, of the American Bulb Co., Chicago; Frank Farney, of the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; Arthur Schwerin, of the Burlington Willow Ware Shops, Burlington, Ia. J. J. B.

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE—AND WHY

WILLIAM G. BADGLEY.

IN 1893, when only 14 years of age, the present mayor of Chatham, N. J., and president of Badgley & Bishop, Inc., New York, became the first regular employee at the greenhouse of L. B. Coddington, of Murray Hill, N. J., now one of America's most widely known rose-growing establishments. The tenth year later also marked a milestone in Mr. Badgley's career, for in 1903 he married Miss Florence L. Mulford and set up housekeeping and rose growing for himself simultaneously at Chatham. But building a big rose range in a few years did not supply sufficient occupation for this indefatigable worker, so in 1907 he organized the Wilson Plant Oil & Fertilizer Co., selling out in 1911. In 1910 he organized the successful New York wholesale cut flower house of which he still is the head. In 1912 he became Alderman Badgley, and in 1915 Mayor Badgley, but his neighbors say his energies are by no means all occupied even now.

KANSAS CITY.

The Market.

Business has been quite lively, the cool weather having been a favorable factor for the flowers. More good stock is arriving and it always finds a ready sale. All are glad to see the chrysanthemums arrive, as it means a relief to retailers' minds as long as the mum season lasts. There was little inferior stock on the market last week. Roses are more plentiful and the quality considerably better. Asters, lilies and gladioli are abundant and of good quality. Dahlias will not be conspicuous, for the simple reason that few bloomed satisfactorily. Everybody is satisfied with the business done last week.

Various Notes.

Wright & Ragan, a new firm, have started in business near this city, at Hickman Mills. They now are building two houses, each 27x200, in which carnations and chrysanthemums will be grown. The range will be modern in every way.

W. J. Barnes had a record in the number of orders received for one funeral last week. Fifty-eight different orders was the total. He went to Chicago September 12 to buy palms and bought about 100, but seemed well pleased with the stock he has in his own greenhouses. He said his stock was as good as any he had seen elsewhere. Mr. Barnes had the decorations in the store of the Emory, Bird & Thayer Dry Goods Co. for the anniversary sale.

The management of the Forest Hill Greenhouses will have to hurry to get its houses in shape before cold weather starts. The men now are blasting through about five feet of rock for a new boiler room. Material for a new house has arrived, but the men cannot erect it on account of the blasting. The new house will be used for bedding stock. It is feared it will not be ready in time to get the stock under cover.

The George M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. is redecorating its store. New linoleum was laid. Some extra fine roses now are being cut. Mr. Thomas was off several days last week on account of throat trouble.

Business across the state line has been good.

The Rosery has a nice batch of chrysanthemums in the benches and about 500 in pots. A good section of begonias and poinsettias was noticed. Mr. Ellsworth has moved back to the city from his cottage on the lake. He reports good fishing during the entire summer.

Mrs. T. A. Moseley is busy getting her car in shape for the floral parade to be held next week across the state line.

W. L. Rock is spending a vacation in the Ozarks of Missouri. Some nice roses are being cut at the greenhouses.

The managers of the amateur flower show have decided to ask the florists and nurserymen to send in non-competitive exhibits. The show will be held September 23 at the Muehlebach hotel.

T. J. Noll & Co. are receiving some extra good roses and mums in fair quantities.

Sam Seligman, of the American Bulb Co., Chicago, was a visitor here last week.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Market.

Market conditions have shown considerable improvement during the last two weeks, or since the advent of cool weather. Greenhouse stock is much more plentiful than it has been for months and the quality of flowers in general is considerably better. Prices are good for this time of the year and the shipping trade has received a new stimulus. Chrysanthemum Golden Glow has made its season's debut in the market and retailers are getting $3 per dozen for them. Roses are much more plentiful than heretofore, although the longer-stemmed flowers still are somewhat scarce. The cool weather of the last two weeks has greatly improved the quality of all varieties. Mrs. Charles Russell heads the list for quality, while Shawyer, Ophelia, Sunburst, Milady and Ward are of good proportions.

Carnations still are scarce and prices range from $2 to $6 per hundred. Roses are bringing $3 to $8 per hundred. Dahlias are in, but are extremely scarce. Zinnias are more plentiful. Asters are scarce, but those seen in the market are of excellent quality; they bring $2 and $3 per hundred. Cecile Brunner and George Elger roses are meeting with a good demand. Gladioli are past their zenith and are scarce, especially the more choice varieties. Easter lilies are not so plentiful as heretofore, but cosmos are abundant enough. Valley is more abundant and is meeting a good call on account of the fall weddings, which were numerous last week. Business has been active and funeral work exceedingly heavy. Green goods are plentiful.

Various Notes.

Mrs. Cecil Max, of Mobile, Ala., who has been visiting her father, Judge W. J. Vesey, for several weeks, has left for Muncie, Ind., in which city she will make her future home.

Miss Markey, of Markey Bros., has returned from a ten days' trip to Whitmore Lake, near Ann Arbor, Mich.

Miss S. L. Nelson is spending a two weeks' vacation at Auburn, Ind. Miss Nelson is secretary for W. J. & M. S. Vesey. This firm is cutting some fine Hoosier Beauty and Shawyer roses.

A. J. Lanternier & Co. are showing some excellent Golden Glow chrysanthemums, the first of the season. They have been busy with weddings during the last week and have had considerable funeral work.

The Flick Floral Co. is cutting some fine Cecile Brunner roses. Mrs. Alice Shive gave a dinner at the English tea room last week for the other women florists of the city. They were Miss Rhoda Doswell, Mrs. Clement Lanternier, Mrs. Richard Blossom, Miss Markey and Misses Mildred and Marguerite Flick.

A florists' club has been organized in Fort Wayne. Meetings will be held once a month. The first meeting will be held at the Doswell Floral Co. store, 301 West Main street, October 2. Election of officers will take place at this meeting.

SPENCER, IND.

We have to report a severe frost here last night and our fields of dahlias today look as if a black shroud were spread over them. This is the earliest severe frost by over three weeks that we have had in fifteen years. Last season frost was early also, coming October 7. This year's early frost cost literally thousands of dollars, as we had already scheduled more than forty shows, which will have to be canceled.

Aside from the frost, dahlias this season have bloomed sparsely, but our prospect for a good crop of bulbs is fine. We attribute the failure of dahlias to bloom well this season to a cold, wet spring and early summer followed by intense heat and drying winds, almost cooking the tender, watery growth. This time last season we were able to cut more than 100,000 blooms daily.

In our St. Louis show last season we used 16,000 dahlia blooms and with Bertermann Bros. Co., of Indianapolis, we used about 15,000 blooms. This season we have not been able to ship at any time to exceed 6,000 blooms, although we have ten acres more dahlias than last season.

The frost has not damaged the gladioli to any great extent.

WESTERLY, R. I.

September 12 Lewis T. Rankin went to New York with the intention of returning that night. He has not been heard from since 3:30 that afternoon, when he was talking to P. B. Rigby, of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., 117 West Twenty-eighth street, New York. As he was leaving this place he said he was going to buy some fur goods. His family believe that he has met with foul play.

Mr. Rankin's family waited two or three days before making an investigation. Then S. S. Pennock, head of the New York concern with which Mr. Rankin dealt, who summered at Weekapaug, near Westerly, was told of the nonappearance of Mr. Rankin. Mr. Pennock went to New York and made a thorough search, but could find no clue. He reported the matter to the New York police, who now are working on the case.

Mr. Rankin has been in the florists' business at Westerly for many years. Recently he opened a new store in the Rhode Island hotel, aside from his greenhouse business. He has a wife and one child, and is 43 years of age.

William Pfeifer, of Utica, promises to be to the fore as usual with carnations.

Henry Youell, as secretary of the Syracuse Florists' Club, reports that the club members agreed to combine in an exhibit at the New York state fair, which opened September 11. By adopting this plan a good prize was secured, which otherwise would have been impossible. As secretary of the American Gladiolus Society Mr. Youell tells me that the society intends taking strong measures to weed out the culls in the large list of varieties listed, and so encourage the propagation of the numerous fine varieties. I also am informed that, owing to the difficulty of obtaining good foreign stock, home-grown bulbs will bring better prices this year.

Robert Bard, of Syracuse, was judge of exhibits of the flower section of the exposition at Rochester, N. Y. Commenting on his decisions and the feeling of the recipients, the Scottish Bard said: "The best laid schemes o' mice and men gang aft a-gley."

I noted the absence at the Rochester exposition of two of our leading confreres, who formerly were at the front and shared in the success at Rochester. "Is it possible that they have lost interest and believe it is unnecessary to partake in what is generally conceded to be one of the most profitable forms of local advertising? Those who did exhibit put forth their best efforts to fill the vacancy and succeeded admirably. An aquatic pool with waterfall was built by George Cramer, of Rochester, who also was responsible for the large oval pond of nymphæas at the entrance. The F. R. Pierson Co., of Tarrytown, N. Y., exhibited a collection of choice nephrolepis, which was much admired. James Vick's Sons showed fine gladioli and asters.

On visiting George B. Hart, at Rochester, I found him superintending the transformation of part of his building into a whole, by making two stores into one store, which was necessitated by the increase of the commission business. A part of the store is intended for supplies. Two cold storage rooms, each 21x27, are one of the features. "Our business in Rochester for July and August is ahead of that of the same months of any previous year," observed Mr. Hart.

The Market.

Some of the tradesmen report that business is increasing; others say that there has been no decided change during the last three weeks. Nevertheless, there seems to be a general agreement that there has been much funeral work, which has served as a satisfactory outlet for the gluts in some items, such as asters.

The new crop of roses is coming in gradually, with indications of a heavy supply to come. Beauties are taken quickly, and if the buyer is not on the job all the time he suffers. Other roses are improving in quality. Mrs. Russell, Sunburst and Mock roses now are the leaders, but little can be said about Ophelia. The supply of roses has been cleared daily.

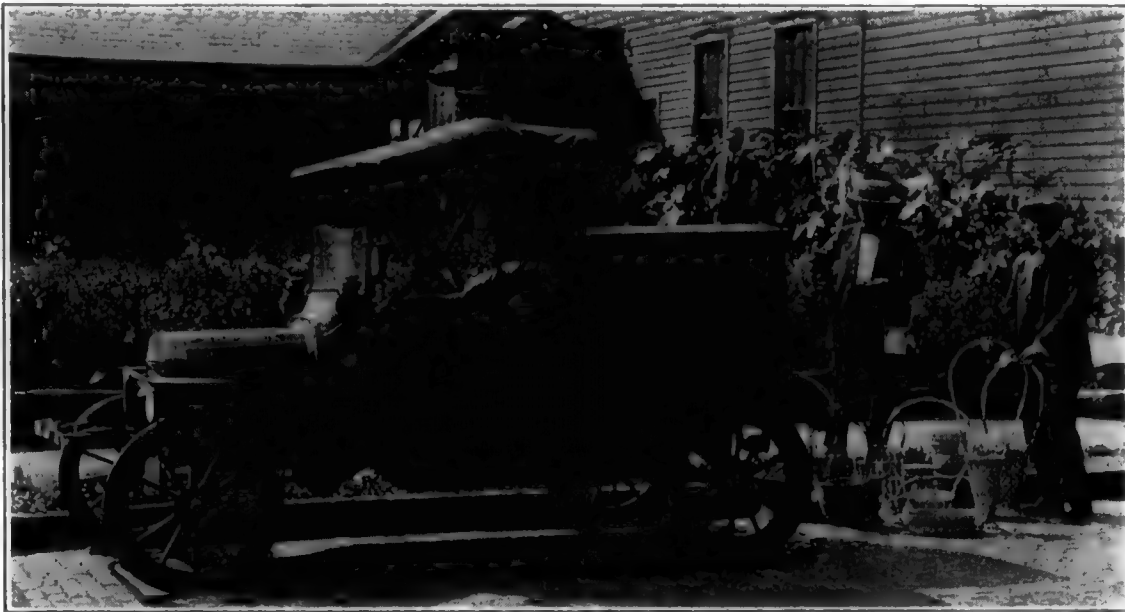

One or two growers are sending in chrysanthemums, and these sell readily at $2 and $3 per dozen, particularly Golden Glow. Valley may be had in small quantities at $6 per hundred. Lilies have diminished greatly in supply and at times are rather difficult to find. Carnations arrive in such small quantities that many of the retailers do not see any of them. Those to be had are satisfactory as to size of flower and length of stem. Few dahlias are available. So small is the demand for orchids that few realize the scarcity of them. Some extra fine snapdragons are obtainable, but there seems to be little demand for them.

Gladioli are slowly but surely decreasing in supply, but there is room for more sales to clear the entire supply. The quality also has fallen off largely. Without a doubt there is an overabundance of mediocre asters, and there will be as long as the growers pick what they have. However, there were more good asters in the market last week than ever before this season, and this was due to the fact that most of them were late asters. The weather was more suitable for the late ones and, then, some of them are indoor-grown. Cosmos may be had whenever desired, as it is in plenteous supply. Some nice marigolds reach the market and are disposed of easily. All kinds of greens are quite sufficient, with the exception of smilax, for which there has been an increasing demand.

Various Notes.

Fred Wise, of East Aurora, was in town last week. He has been cutting carnations throughout the entire season. His mums are looking fine and he expects to cut first-rate blooms soon.

Last week the weather turned a little cooler, and business and stock both have improved. American Beauties are good and clear readily, with the exception of shorts. Other good roses, such as Ophelia, Sunburst, Rhea Reid, Russell and Maryland, clear each day. Only the short-stemmed flowers are inclined to drag, as they are far more plentiful than the medium and long roses.

The supply of valley is limited and is cleaned up quickly. Orchids are choice but scarce; a few direct shipments of these are coming from Brampton, Ont. Asters have been coming in faster than required and so the short ones are inclined to drag. Gladioli are becoming a thing of the past; a few are to be had, but there is not much call for them. Carnations continue scarce. The stems are short, but the flowers are good and sell readily. Lilies are more plentiful again, but there is not much demand for them. MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

Market conditions remain about the same, although the weather has turned quite cold. Overcoats and fires were in order September 15 and 16 and, while there was no heavy frost, some damage was done to outdoor stock. Business in general is picking up and conditions are becoming better every day.

There still is a large supply of roses of all varieties, in all grades, and these are moving nicely. Carnations are coming in slowly as yet and the stock is necessarily short-stemmed and the quality only fair.

On account of favorable weather conditions, the late asters are in fine shape, as well as in large supply, and they are cleaning up well each day. Gladioli also are in good supply and are selling well. Valley still is scarce and it is impossible to take care of the demand with any degree of satisfaction. Lilies are plentiful and are moving nicely in funeral pieces.

Flower Show at State Fair.

The horticultural exhibit at the state fair this year was one of the best in years. The only trouble is that the retailers do not take the necessary interest to make it the success it should be. The advertising from an exhibition of this sort should be worth the effort to the retailer, while it has little or no value to the grower or wholesaler. It is to be hoped that next year will see a healthy increase in the number of exhibitors.

Following is a list of the prize-winners in the different classes:

Collection of greenhouse plants, not less than twenty-five kinds, to cover not less than fifty square feet—Holton & Hunkel Co., first; August F. Kellner Co., second; C. C. Pollworth Co., third; A. Klockner, fourth.

Display of palms covering not less than fifty square feet—C. C. Pollworth Co., first; Holton & Hunkel Co., second; August F. Kellner Co., third; A. Klockner, fourth.

Display of ferns covering not less than fifty square feet—Holton & Hunkel Co., first; August F. Kellner Co., second; C. C. Pollworth Co., third.

Display of foliage plants covering not less than fifty square feet—Holton & Hunkel Co., first; C. C. Pollworth Co., second; A. Klockner, third.

Specimen nephrolepis—Holton & Hunkel Co., first; E. Eberhardt, second; C. C. Pollworth Co., third.

Specimen palm—C. C. Pollworth Co., first; Holton & Hunkel Co., second; A. Klockner, third.

Wreath, not less than 21-inch frame—J. C. Arnold, first; Edlefsen-Leidiger Co., second; E. Eberhardt, third; R. Preuss, fourth.

Basket of cut flowers—Edlefsen-Leidiger Co., first; E. Eberhardt, second; A. Klockner, third; J. C. Arnold, fourth.

Asters—E. Eberhardt, second; no first award. Two hundred gladioli—E. C. Lowe, first; E. Eberhardt, second; A. Klockner, third.

One hundred fifty dahlias—E. Eberhardt, first; J. F. Fitchett, second.

Twenty-five red carnations—C. C. Pollworth Co., first.

Twenty-five light pink carnations—C. C. Pollworth Co., first.

Twenty-five pink roses—C. C. Pollworth Co., first; Holton & Hunkel Co., second.

Twenty-five white roses—C. C. Pollworth Co., first; Holton & Hunkel Co., second.

Twenty-five red roses—Holton & Hunkel Co., first; C. C. Pollworth Co., second.

Twenty-five any other color roses—Holton & Hunkel Co., first; C. C. Pollworth Co., second.

Twenty-five Easter lilies—C. C. Pollworth Co., first; Holton & Hunkel Co., second.

Twelve chrysanthemums—C. C. Pollworth Co., first.

Hardy phloxes, not less than five named varieties—E. C. Lowe, first; E. Eberhardt, second; A. Klockner, third.

Heliopsis, named varieties—A. Klockner, first; E. C. Lowe, second.

Delphiniums, named varieties—E. C. Lowe, first; A. Klockner, second.

Gaillardias—Fred Vogel, Jr., first; E. Eberhardt, second; E. C. Lowe, third.
Hardy perennials, correctly named—Fred Vogel, Jr., first; E. C. Lowe, second; A. Klockner, third.

Various Notes.

The annual state fair brought many out-of-town visitors, who visited the various greenhouse establishments as well as taking in the fair. Among those in town were W. Meyer, with the Janesville Floral Co., Janesville, Wis.; Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Liefer, Adell, Wis.; C. W. Coppins, Whitewater, Wis.; Henry Benz and Miss Rehl, with the Flower Shop, Racine, Wis.; Mrs. J. K. Richter, with J. J. Le Borious, Duluth, Minn.; J. E. Matthewson, Sheboygan, Wis.; Louis Turner, of Kenosha, Wis.; Clarke Adams, Racine, Wis.; W. A. Moore, Jefferson, Wis.; J. V. Shimek, Racine, Wis.; William Longland, Lake Geneva, Wis.; J. Foley and George Asmus, Chicago. H. J. S.

MANCHESTER, MASS.

The North Shore Horticultural Society, Inc., will soon have a fine, new horticultural hall. Land was purchased over a year ago on Summer street near the railroad depot. Plans have been prepared by the well known Boston firm of Kilham & Hopkins. While the building is intended primarily as a home for the North Shore Horticultural Society, it will be used for many other purposes. The building will have a frontage of sixty-eight feet and will run back ninety feet. The two principal halls will each measure 38x60.

One of the summer cottagers has subscribed $2,000 to the building fund, another $1,000, and several have donated $500 each. Work on the new building will start this fall, and it will be completed in time to house the summer exhibitions in 1917. W. N. Craig.

Worcester, Mass.—Fred B. Madaus has removed to a new location at 370 Main street. The new quarters are twice as large as the old ones.

Worcester, Mass.—William L. Luby, for several years with H. F. A. Lange, and W. N. Easterbrook, owner of greenhouses at North Worcester, have acquired the Fisher store at 537 Main street, which they will conduct on a partnership basis.

Andover, Mass.—The annual flower, vegetable and fruit show of the Andover Florists' and Gardeners' Club was held in the town hall September 8 and 9. The exhibition surpassed all former displays, both as to quality and quantity of stock shown.

Pittsfield, Mass.—F. I. Drake & Co., the firm consisting of Foster I. Drake and Max R. Engelmann, are planning numerous improvements in their store in the American House block, including a new floor. The greenhouses on Appleton avenue have been put in shape for winter. Business has been better than usual here this summer.

Westerly, R. I.—The new store of Louis P. Rankin, which was made by converting the old entrance of the Hotel Rhode Island into a salesroom, had its formal opening last month. It is doubtful if there is a duplicate of this unique store in the country. The massive granite steps that formerly served as an entrance to the hotel are used as shelves for the display of Mr. Rankin's plants and flowers and the arch over the steps lends itself to splendid decorations.

Southington, Conn.—That the employees of the Southington plant of the Peck, Stow & Wilcox Co. can do more than make the good pruning shears used by florists was demonstrated at the third annual outing of the company, which was recently held at Lake Compounce. They showed that they could play baseball, put the shot, do the broad jump, dance and eat pie with remarkable facility. There were 650 employees at the outing. Special cars took them from Southington to Lake Compounce and, after a short parade, the program of sports was started.

VEGETABLES AND FRUITS DEPARTMENT

CUCUMBERS; BEE POLLINATION.

I have four connected houses, 24x85, planted to cucumbers; the cucumbers are nearing the fruiting stage. It is my intention to pollinate with bees. How many colonies of bees will be needed, and where should they be placed in the house? The houses run north and south.
S. F.—Wash.

Four colonies will do the pollination effectively at this season. The bees will travel to all parts of the houses, but it would be better to place the hives not far from the centers.

Annual Banquet, Hotel La Salle.

BONE MEAL FOR LETTUCE.

I am thinking of getting my greenhouses ready for lettuce. I used bone meal with good results last year and should like to know whether it can be used with success two consecutive years. If not, please tell me what to mix with the soil instead of bone meal.

W. A.—Pa.

You will get much better results by using horse manure, either well rotted or only partly decomposed, and well mixed with the soil. If you cannot procure this, try sheep manure, which is a better food for lettuce than bone meal.

R. L. Watts.

C. W.

VINCA VARIEGATA.

Kindly advise me how to propagate Vinca variegata. Would it be a good plan to take the plants that I have in 2-inch pots and divide them? If dividing the plants is the proper thing, should this be done now or in the spring? I want to get a stock of plants for porch boxes and baskets.
W. C. H.—Pa.

A much better plan than dividing the little vincas is to take a good batch of cuttings now. Select young shoots which are tender; they may be cut off near the ground. These root readily, especially if a little bottom heat can be used to warm the sand. More mature wood, if cut in short lengths, also will root, but it will take a considerably longer period.
C. W.

Park Ridge, Ill.—Walter J. Pasvogel has traded his six greenhouses at Norwood Park, Chicago, for his father's 5-house range here.

Estherville, Ia.—Theodore Niermoth, of Hastings, Neb., has purchased the greenhouse business of Mrs. M. E. Jehu and moved his family here.

OBITUARY

John Patterson.

John Patterson, who for a number of years has conducted a florists' business at Ashton, R. I., died at the Memorial hospital, Pawtucket, R. I., Thursday, September 14, as the result of a shock sustained a week before. He was 72 years of age. He was born in Stockport, England, and when young came to this country, settling at Boston. The family later went back to England, but in May, 1867, Mr. Patterson returned to America and took a position with the Lonsdale Co., at Ashton, as a machinist. Being passionately fond of plants and flowers, he devoted all of his leisure time to his gardens, and more than a quarter of a century ago he entered the florists' business, which he developed considerably. His wife died several years ago and he had since made his home with his two sons. W. H. M.

John Bourgaise.

John Bourgaise, 60 years old, one of the leading florists of Racine, Wis., committed suicide September 8 by hanging himself in one of his greenhouses. Mrs. Bourgaise is in an insane asylum and the court recently placed the daughter under a guardian on the grounds that she did not receive proper treatment at home. Their trouble is said to have preyed on the mind of the florist and made him take his life. The funeral was conducted by the Order of Eagles. Mr. Bourgaise left an estate valued at $15,000.

John Boyle.

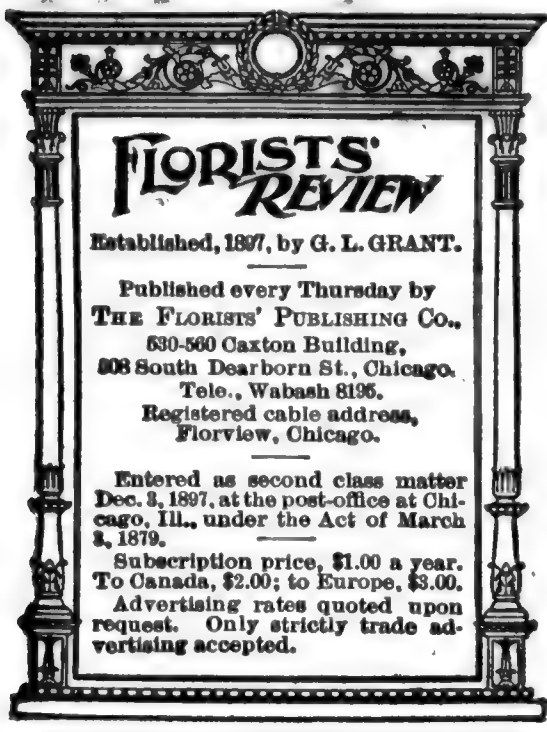

John Boyle, for many years a florist of Washington, D. C., died at his home in Silver Springs, Md., last week, at the age of 79 years, after a somewhat prolonged illness. Mr. Boyle was better known by the older florists of the city, for he was quite active many years ago, particularly with respect to organization work. At one time he was employed at the United States Botanic Gardens and later at the Department of Agriculture. Upon the death of the late Mr. Saul, he entered the florists' business for himself, on what is now Saul's Addition. Some years ago he took the place in Silver Springs, where he has since remained. He had a stand in the Center Market where he disposed of the stock he produced, which was looked after by his daughter.

C. L. I.

Ignatius A. Schmidtt.

Ignatius A. Schmidtt, son of Mrs. R. U. Schmidtt, the woman pioneer florist of Portland, O., died September 14, at the age of 52. Mr. Schmidtt for many years was associated with his mother in conducting greenhouses at East Ninth and Oak streets, Portland.

Bellefontaine, O.—A new flower store is to be opened in Bellefontaine about October 1. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Eads and Mary C. Eads, who conduct a greenhouse on East Columbia avenue, have leased for a period of five years a handsome store room in Short block. The new store will be white throughout. In design it will be similar to one of the fine stores for which Seattle, Wash., is famed.

Results bring advertising.
 The Review brings results.

THE calamity howler will find calamity, but the hustler will reap rich rewards in this trade.

ONE of the indications of trade conditions is found in the fact that the principal makers of flower pots are not able to keep up with orders.

DOUBTLESS the azaleas will arrive in the course of time, but experience has shown that the red tape connected with securing permits, the vicissitudes of travel and the high cost of freight and insurance all operate to reduce the quantity of imports.

PRICES for plants and cut flowers simply must go up along with the rise in other commodities and there are those who believe there will be not the least difficulty in lifting values twenty-five per cent once the trade stops trying to undersell the man down the street.

WHY is it so many men devote painstaking care for months to produce good plants and then ship them packed so carelessly? And why is it, when complaint comes from the buyers, these careful growers and careless shippers invariably blame the express company?

THERE will be only one trouble with the season now opening: Too little stock for the demand. The wholesale prices undoubtedly will be higher than usual and the man who retails the output of his greenhouses without regard to wholesale values will get a jolt when he tries to replenish his supply.

EAST OR WEST.

It's All the Same.

It matters not where the man is located, east or west, or what the stock is, an ad in The Review quickly cleans up the surplus. Like this:

The first ad cleaned up my amilax; more orders than plants.—A. F. Coulsen, Gettysburg, Pa., September 19, 1916.

Our ad in The Review sold all our field-grown carnations and orders still are coming in.—The Walton Co., Rices Landing, Pa., September 18, 1916.

The first appearance of my classified ad in The Review sold my surplus of carnation plants almost by the time I received my paper; orders for them twice over and I have had to return much good money.—R. E. Moss, Vinita, Okla., September 7, 1916.

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty sure he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

MANUFACTURE OF GLASS.

A preliminary statement of the general results of the 1914 census of manufactures with reference to the glass industry has been issued by the Bureau of the Census.

The quantity of window glass produced for sale increased from 346,080,550 square feet in 1909 to 400,998,893 square feet in 1914, or 15.9 per cent.

Of the 347 establishments reported for 1914, 103 manufactured building glass, 106 pressed and blown glass and 149 bottles and jars.

PRICES ARE ADVANCING.

The trade must act on the assumption that prices have advanced, are advancing and will advance all along the line. Practically everything a florist uses has advanced or is advancing. A few items have not yet shown much movement, but the turning point is here. Indeed, at the moment bulbs, which have been low since the war began, are joining in the general movement. French, Dutch and Japanese bulbs all are moving up and the indications are the movement, long delayed, now will be sharp. Sellers who bind themselves to former prices without having the stock actually in their possession are apt to burn their fingers. Next year's bulbs surely will cost more than in any recent year.

Sellers to the public should at once begin to ask better prices, for when present stocks are exhausted their replenishment will be expensive.

THE FERTILIZER INDUSTRY.

The Federal Trade Commission recently has completed an investigation of the fertilizer business that now has been published by the government.

The economic importance of the fertilizer industry, which embraces the production and sale of various fertilizer materials, as well as the manufacture and sale of prepared or mixed fertilizers, is shown by the fact that the value of all commercial fertilizers consumed in 1914 was in excess of $150,000,000.

The commission concludes that the wholesale prices of nitrogenous and phosphatic fertilizer materials have been governed fundamentally by conditions of supply and demand during the period covered by the investigation, although artificial conditions have at times exerted at least a temporary influence; and that consumers' prices of fertilizer materials for cash purchases in carload quantities have compared favorably with wholesale prices, but farmers' credit prices have often been excessively high.

GET YOUR COAL IN NOW.

The cautious grower will not let cold weather catch him without his sheds full of coal; indeed, if he has inadequate shed capacity he will do well to build sheds enough to store a large part of his season's needs or he will stack the fuel in the open, covering the pile with screenings to prevent deterioration by the action of the air.

The reason for urgency in the matter lies in the imminence of a severe car shortage. The report of the committee on relations between railroads shows a total car shortage of 57,822 for September 1, as compared with 39,991 the month before and 6,300 for the same date last year. According to railroad men, these figures foreshadow the worst period of traffic congestion in the history of the country and indicate that the experiences of last winter will be repeated, with the exception that the shipping public can assist by anticipating some of its needs and expediting car movement by unloading promptly.

WHITE AMARYLLIS WANTED.

Will you please tell us through The Review the botanical name of the white amaryllis, and where to buy it?

M. B.—Kan.

I do not know of a pure white amaryllis in commerce. Occasional pure whites have been grown by hybridists, but these are quite valuable. Do you refer to Amaryllis Belladonna, which sometimes comes pale in color, although usually it is pink? Seeds of the latter may be had from most seedsmen and are procurable at this season. A Belladonna is a fall bloomer. C. W.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

A radical change in market conditions began with the sudden drop in temperature September 15. That night brought the first frost of the season—in many of the growing districts near Chicago, a killing frost. This, of course, played havoc with the supply of outdoor stock. At the same time it has temporarily checked the output of the greenhouses. Demand is not abnormally large. It is just a good, healthy, September demand. But the extreme scarcity of stock makes it assume unusual proportions. With the burden of supply shifted to the shoulders of the indoor growers, the skirmishing for stock is continuous. To be sure, there still are asters on the market, but not in sufficient numbers to permit of their dominating the market as heretofore. So, too, with gladioli. Their volume is rapidly diminishing. In many places the stock of both asters and gladioli was put out for the season by this first frost.

The demand for Beauties is in excess of the supply. And as for Russell, it has been at a premium for nearly two weeks. Short Ward and Ophelia have been the most plentiful. But rose stock in general has been so scarce that it is safe to say nearly every wholesaler is filling orders for this flower short. Quality, however, is much better than it has been for some time.

With the rapidly approaching demise of asters, gladioli and their ilk, carnations are slowly edging their way to the front again. Of course they still are inclined to be short, both in stock and in supply; but in both they are showing marked improvement, and quality of flower really is good. It is almost needless to say that valley is scarce. So, too, are cattleyas. As for Easter lilies, they are scarce enough to clear readily. Auratum are practically off the market and rubrums are far from plentiful. Golden Glow still composes the bulk of chrysanthemum receipts, though a few of Smith's Advance are reaching the market. The demand for this autumn favorite increases as the days grow shorter. There is now no difficulty experienced in disposing of all that are received.

Greens alone have the unique distinction of being the one item in sufficient supply to meet all requirements.

Frauenfelder's Annex.

Quietly, and with as little show as possible, C. Frauenfelder, 3343 West Madison street, has been making some interesting changes. The large store directly to the west of and connected with the main store, which has hitherto been used as a workroom, is being remodeled throughout and will be opened October 1 as a show and display room. The glass front of this annex, which is more than twenty feet in width, will be occupied by a concrete basin, six inches deep and fifteen feet from front to back. This will be devoted to a display of palms, ferns and other plants and, in appropriate seasons, it will be flooded and filled with aquatics. Being separated from the main store, this annex can be kept at

One, not yet completed, is 10x16 feet and the other is slightly smaller. The contract has already been let for an ice machine, which will be installed early next spring.

Not content with this, Mr. Frauenfelder has ordered a new White auto delivery car. It is now in the paint

Various Notes.

It is John Michelsen's custom to spend a week in early September looking over the situation east of Chicago, including a visit to the violet growing district along the Hudson. He returned September 17, full of good cheer. He says that the eastern violets will be a little late this year, but that otherwise the growers are in better shape than usual; he anticipates an adequate supply and good quality. At Indianapolis, Cleveland, Pittsburgh and Detroit he found conditions the best within his recollection—everybody doing an excellent business and on the lookout for good stock. Mr. Michelsen feels that, while the E. C. Amling Co. will next week close its best business year, it stands on the threshold of an even better one.

Charles J. Strombach has been appointed head gardener in the parks of Wilmette, where he will be right-hand man for Benjamin E. Gage, of Peterson Nursery, who is superintendent.

There is said to have been a considerable quantity of Formosa lily bulbs for Chicago on the S. S. Hawaii Maru, which recently arrived with its bulb cargo in rotted condition.

The flower store at 421 West Sixty-third street, which has been operated by the Garfield Floral Co. since the death of its former owner, William Weil, April 5, 1915, has been bought by Abraham Iralson. As recently reported in The Review, Mr. Iralson has been so thoroughly pleased with the business done by his store at 356 East Forty-third street that he has been looking about for another good location.

Incidentally, Poehlmann Bros. Co. has ordered Belgian azaleas to the number of some 18,000. Frank Oechsli's orders for this season's importation aggregate close to 10,000. Whether all the shippers will be able to satisfy British, German and Holland requirements and get the stock on the boat now is the question.

Cutting back for the Christmas crop of special roses recently has been engaging the attention of Meyer & Damm Co., Elmhurst, where the season's prospects are considered the best yet.

Joseph Kohout is one of the growers who never is too busy to keep accurate count of his cut, sales and costs. He knows exactly what it costs to grow flowers and what each of his commission houses averages for them.

There are new flower stores all over town this fall, among them that of H. Jacobsen, at 5558 Ellis avenue, opening this week.

The new Niles greenhouses of George Weiland received their steam christening September 16, when the heat was turned on for the first time. A few more days and all the pumps will be in and everything will be set for the winter. Mr. Weiland, who was looking over the market September 19, is already making preparations to handle the rush of Christmas business in Evanston.

There are some things you can do better than anyone else. There are several of these things around a greenhouse. So thinks John Sinner, of Sinner Bros., and accordingly he spends several hours of every morning in the greenhouses before coming to his office in the loop.

With the return of keen weather the Richmond rose will come into its own again, says Felix Reichling, of Peter Reinberg's. In his opinion it is the best winter rose ever introduced.

An accurate schedule of the movements of George Asmus would prove an interesting study in the art of rapid transportation and lightning changes. But recently returned from the southwest, September 14 found him in Milwaukee and the following day in Morton Grove.

George Kaspar, 4005 West Twenty-sixth street, most agreeably surprised his parents with a party, September 16, in celebration of their silver wedding.

Another killing frost and, in the opinion of Charles Erne, of Erne & Klingel, the Chicago market will experience a shortage the like of which it has not faced in many months.

There is nothing like conserving your supply of good things. Miss Harper, of Bassett & Washburn, considers a vacation a good thing, so she reserved a part of it for the cool days. She is enjoying it now.

The arrival of candidum lily bulbs from the north of France is reported by Winterson's Seed Store.

A Miller, president of the American Bulb Co., returned September 18 from a swing around the circle from Detroit to Cincinnati. Samuel Seligman, who has charge of the accessories department, also is in town again and says there is so much to do here it is hard to get time for the road. Treasurer Albert Koehler is busy; his ledger already is becoming quite obese, although the concern has been in business less than two months.

Sidney Buchbinder reports that cool weather has brought a rush of business and a demand for refrigerators. He reports the sale of five refrigerators within the last week, as follows: Schiller, the Florist, for the West Madison street establishment; A. H. Schneider, of Oak Park; Dale & Nichols, of Visitors.

W. D. Fraser, representing the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, Eureka, Cal., has been in town several days, visiting growers and sizing up the possibilities here for the sale of the company's specialties. The Cottage Gardens Nurseries is C. W. Ward's new project. He will have a large quantity of Eureka-grown Dutch bulbs and Holland and Belgian plants ready for the market next year.

If Miss V. M. Fawcett, of Melbourne, Australia, can be accepted as an example of the florists of that country, the trade will have to reckon big with colonial craftsmen in the near future. To get acquainted with the American market, she sailed the Pacific and has spent three months in this country studying trade methods, the market and our wonderful supply factories. She took her departure from Chicago the early part of this week and expects to arrive in Australia by the middle of October.

George Washington Smith, of the Cleveland Florists' Exchange, Cleveland, O., is a big game hunter and is on his way home from a glorious good time in the wilds of Wyoming. Nor is he empty-handed, for he succeeded in bagging elk, deer and other denizens of the field and forest too numerous to mention. He was accompanied by his family and stopped in Chicago long enough to look around the market.

One of the week's visitors was Mrs.

GREENHOUSES: HINSDALE AND GREGGS, ILL.

Minnie Lilley Copeland, of Marion, Ill. She is the widow of James P. Copeland, a pioneer newspaper man, who, after retiring from that field in 1901, operated the Marion Greenhouses until his death, February 19, 1914. Mrs. Copeland continues the business.

R. G. Kootz, formerly of this city but more recently with the Hill store at Cincinnati, was in town for a couple of days this week. He is preparing to open a store on his own account in Cincinnati, at the corner of Race street and Opera place, using the name R. G. Kootz Floral Co.

A visitor on the market this week was William Hasselman, of Independence, Kan.

INDIANAPOLIS.

The Market.

Indianapolis and vicinity had its first frost September 14, which did great damage to stock planted on low ground but only slightly damaged that on high ground. As a result of the frost, which was the earliest this community has experienced in years, the gladioli and dahlias are extremely scarce.

The florists have enjoyed a good business through the entire summer and there has been a marked increase in trade during the last week. As the vacation season is over, people are returning home; thus counter trade is greatly benefited, plants as well as cut flowers being in demand. Parties, dances and weddings have accelerated the sale of valley and orchids. Orchids, therefore, bring a good price and valley is quoted at $6 per hundred sprays. Good roses are to be had from $2 to $6, with the supply cleaning up daily. The call for Beauties is greater; the prices range from 75 cents to $3 per dozen. The asters dropped in quality and, therefore, in price; $1.50 to $3 per hundred was the range. Lilies still are scarce and in great demand. Carnations remain of inferior quality, some bringing only $1 per hundred. Poor chrysanthemums are appearing and make $1.50 to $2 per dozen. The bright, warm days and cool nights are excellent for mums and carnations and the prospects for good crops are bright.

Various Notes.

Allen Humason, of the Hilmer V. Swenson Co., of Chicago, had a display here September 15 to 17 of novelty advertisements and side lines. Indianapolis florists are planning to advertise extensively, from the looks of Mr. Humason's order book.

The Bertermann Bros. Co. has remodeled its store. The side walls are of white, clouded marble, with an overhead of French gray. The fixtures and trimmings also are in gray.

The Retail Druggists' Association, which met here last week, gave the Claypool Floral Co. two large decorations—one for a dance and reception, the other for a banquet.

The state committee on experiments—A. F. J. Baur, Joseph Hill, John Hartje—motored to La Fayette in Mr. Baur's car to confer with the Purdue professors on the new work.

The Indianapolis Flower & Plant Co. has a promising crop of roses coming in. It also has been cutting fine asters. Fred Kiel and Will Roepke spent September 17 on a fishing trip to Oaklandon, Ind.

William A. Glaubke has completed a greenhouse 25x100, which will be devoted to ferns.

The H. W. Rieman Co. palm house was bare September 17 as the result of four large decorative orders.

Oliver Steinkamp left September 15 for Warsaw—not Russia—in his new car. This car, which he purchased at the state fair, was the first of its make sold in Indianapolis.

Walter Burkley has left the E. A. Nelson Co. to take a position with the Bertermann Bros. Co. Frank Liebking has left the Roepke Floral Co. and accepted a position with the Bertermann Bros. Co.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Junge and Carl Sonnenschmidt, of the Smith & Young Co., and Walter Bertermann, are touring northern Indiana and will spend a week at Lake Webster.

Earle Ealen has taken charge of the A. Wiegand's Sons Co. farm west of the city.

Edwin Morner, formerly with the E. G. Hill Co., of Indianapolis, was in the city last week to purchase stock for a store and greenhouse which have just been completed in Shelbyville, Ind.

Richard Kootz, formerly of this city, has opened a flower store in Cincinnati.

Baur & Steinkamp report a good summer business and that they have sold all plants, with the exception of Carnation Matchless, Enchantress Supreme and Peerless Pink.

L. F. Benson has been suffering from a nervous breakdown and with his family will spend the winter in Florida.

From Another Correspondent.

Trade was fair last week. Funeral work has been plentiful and stock has cleared daily. Indianapolis was visited by a severe frost last week, which caught many of the florists napping. However, this will help trade, as it will do away with some of the outdoor stock. Stock is overplentiful. Chrysanthemums are coming in, but not in large quantities as yet. The new crop carnations have not yet made their appearance. Dahlias have not been plentiful this year and no doubt the frost killed those not ruined by the dry weather. Beauties and other roses are of good quality, but the supply is short. Some asters are to be had, but first-class stock is short. All green stock is plentiful, except smilax, of which there is not nearly enough to go around.

J. J. Karins, with Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, was an early bird Monday morning, September 18. Mr. Karins reports that he spent six weeks in a hospital recently. From the energy he shows it must have done him good, as he certainly means business.

George Wiegand, who recently returned from a motor trip in Kentucky, has been taken to a hospital to undergo an operation.

Baur & Steinkamp report an extra heavy demand for young poinsettia stock this year; in fact, the demand was so heavy that they could not fill all orders. This firm reports a fine trade in field-grown carnation plants.

The Bertermann Bros. Co. is redecorating its store and making numerous improvements. Walter Bertermann has been on a two weeks' vacation.

A Year's Copies of The Review Makes a Stack a Foot High.

Every florist knows through his own purchases what has happened in the paper market the last few months—prices have doubled all along the line.

And it takes more than four tons of paper each week to print The Review!

Many readers have been so kind as to write that The Review is worth considerably more to them than its subscription price. Well, the tremendous rise in the price of paper makes it no longer expedient to sell The Review at $1.00 a year.

The subscription price, therefore, will be advanced January 1, 1917, to $1.50 a year.

Until December 31, 1916, any member of the Trade may subscribe for one or more years at the old rate of $1.00 a year.

Readers whose present subscriptions do not expire until after January 1, 1917, may renew for as many years as they like at $1.00 per year, providing that such renewals are sent during 1916.

Send $1.00 and your subscription will be extended one year from the present date of expiration, whenever that may be.

Send $2.00 and the subscription will be extended two years from the present date of expiration.

Send $3.00 for three years, $5.00 for five years.

No renewals for a full year will be accepted at less than $1.50 unless they are mailed by December 31, 1916.

The Canadian subscription price will be $2.50 a year beginning January 1, 1917. Canadian renewals mailed on or before December 31, 1916, will be accepted at $2.00 a year.

From Still Another Correspondent.

This market has been short on cut ferns. Several shipments were lost, and it was necessary to do considerable telegraphing before a plentiful supply was again available. A splendid spirit of coöperation was shown during the shortage, several of the tradesmen dividing their stocks and helping others.

William Roepke, the East Washington street florist, in addition to all the firsts at the state fair, expects to clean up on mums. A third of his range is devoted to this stock.

The Smith & Young Co. lately added a large and attractive line of new baskets to its stock.

A new messenger delivery service has opened offices here. A flat rate of 10 cents to any part of the city is charged. Quite a number of florists are using this service for their out-of-the-way deliveries. The messengers wear uniforms.

The Hoosier Floral Co. is marketing some unusually good Francis King gladioli. The spikes are forty to sixty inches long and carry from four to seven open blooms. A large basket of this stock displayed in Reynolds' store window attracted the attention of many, who gladly paid $3 per dozen for them.

John G. Chisholm, who has been with the Bertermann Bros. Co. for the last six years, left here last week to take a position with the Hill Co. at Cincinnati. Mr. Chisholm is an artist of considerable ability, and many of his personal customers will miss his fine work.

The South Park Floral Co., of New-castle, is shipping a great many fine roses to this market, the Russell roses being especially good. A visit to this range recently revealed a surprisingly large number of novelty roses grown for Business generally is reported good. Stock is more plentiful. Roses are arriving more satisfactorily, and good asters are appearing. A few yellow mums are offered, and now and then one sees a bunch or so of carnations. Growers are becoming more frequent in their calls on the retailers. R. F. S.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The opening of the present week, September 14, found the market in bad shape. There was an oversupply of flowers that had suffered from hot weather. The cooler weather that followed was accompanied by improved conditions. The supply of flowers fell off to an extent that enabled the demand to take most of the salable stock soon after it reached the city. There was no improvement in prices, except for fine quality flowers, notably in Russell roses.

The feature of the market as the week draws to a close, September 20, is the dahlia. Conditions are so different from those of a year ago that they merit description. Some of the dahlia growers have dropped out this season, others have reduced their planting, while all those now in the field have been compelled to pay higher prices for cultivating their dahlias than they have ever done before. This has increased the expense of production and reduced the quantity. The wholesalers, fully alive to these conditions, are endeavoring to get a better price for dahlias, knowing well that unless they do it will not be worth while to grow good stock. So far they have succeeded moderately; the average price for dahlias has been better than the price of a year ago. This is due partly to the shorter supply and partly to the efforts of the wholesalers aforementioned. The leading varieties of dahlias now on the market are Arabella, Sylvia, Castleton, Lyndhurst, Jack Rose, McCullough, Dorothy Peacock, John Wamaker and White Swan.

The trading in Easter lilies has been quite lively; they go up and down with surprising rapidity. Both asters and gladioli show clearly that they are nearing the end of their season. Tuberoses have been selling fairly well, but tritomas lack support. Cosmos is in demand; so are the finer hydrangeas, now well colored. New crop carnations are increasing in number, while roses show greater variety than last season; the one-time favorite, Killarney, shows a marked decline in numbers. Mrs. Russell is good and plentiful. All the roses sell fairly, except the white, which seem to be cut too closely. Valley is a little more plentiful in anticipation of October weddings, but orchids are still scarce.

Joseph Heacock pointed the way through a splendid field of corn that evidenced good cultivation and good sod. Every scrap of this corn goes into the silo to make ensilage to feed the cows that feed the roses that make the renown of the Joseph Heacock Co.

The roses were just starting into growth. They had been rested, pruned, cleaned, tied, fed and watered. The pruning was especially interesting, the 5-year-old plants showing cuts two eyes above last year's growth with regularity, the first pruning being rather low, to avoid building the plants up too high in later years. The young plants are in the smaller houses. The new one just built is in Canadian Queen, while Hadley has replaced Radiance in the larger and older house. Canadian Queen is growing in solid beds in a long, narrow house intended for young roses. It has made vigorous growth of a bushy character. The flowers could not be judged beyond the fact that the color appears to be a shade lighter than Bridesmaid. Hadley in the larger house is growing freely. The young plants were carefully grown up to 3-inch pots before being planted. They have now made a good start, the bottom breaks forming heavy plants evenly.

The remainder of the place appeared unchanged. The variety of special interest is Richmond, which keeps its place through the success of the Christmas crop. This requires skill of a high order, as the least slip will prove fatal where an entire crop of roses is required at a given time.

The manure shed, built a year ago, is a great acquisition. It is connected by pipes with the company's dairy and is fitted with wire screens for adding as much sifted manure as desired, free from shavings. When of the proper strength the liquid is pumped through the pipes to the greenhouses.

The Market.

The supply of stock tightened up somewhat last week upon the arrival of cooler weather. This was particularly true of roses. There has been little change in prices. Beauty roses are good and sell well at $1.50 to $3 per dozen. Orchids are more plentiful than they have been and maintain a price of $9. The aster season is almost over and good stock is scarce. Indoor asters are about cut out and the flowers from the fields are of an inferior quality. There are more dahlias on the market now and these are taking the place of scarcer flowers. The cool weather has greatly improved their quality. Tritomas have made their appearance and are meeting

Fall is with us. A little reflection at this time of leisure may prove very profitable to us later. The old saying, "In time of peace prepare for war," should be applied to business, only different wording, which would be, "In dull times prepare for the rush season." Now you have time for afterthought and forethought.

This year we have the finest line of Baskets, Xmas Wreaths and in fact everything for the florist in the supply line that has ever been shown. Our men are out with a full line, the prices of which are the usual Neidinger values, which almost every florist knows to be the best on the market.

We have made a practical study of florists' requirements of both new and old ideas from a practical standpoint, not alone that the article is practical, but that the price is reasonable, so that the florist can sell the goods in quantities. Don't fail to see our line when our men are in your city. Am positive a visit will be of mutual benefit.

For the florist whom our men might overlook, we shall publish a photo each consecutive week of one of our basket numbers that is selling the best on the road, thus giving every florist an opportunity of procuring the best quality for the least money ever offered.

The Florists' Club is to be represented this year by a bowling team of picked men. An effort was made to secure a place for this team on the Commercial Duck Pin roster, but the application was made too late. Through the activity of Otto Schoeps, who is looking out for the interests of the team, a place was secured in the Mount Pleasant Duck Pin League and the season will be opened October 2, when the florists will play the Park team at the New Arcade alleys. The line-up at present is: George C. Shaffer, Arthur Shaffer, Edward Niedomanski, George Gouldman, Milton Redman and Otto Schoeps. Regular nights for practice are to be selected and it is urged that other florists turn out to bowl with them or seek a place on the team.

The work of remodeling the store of William Marche & Co. has been completed. Every square inch of space has been utilized to the best advantage. This is a corner store and space is limited. On the Fourteenth street side the door has been moved so as to come at the intersection of the two streets, and the window has been extended twenty feet. The flooring of both windows has been lowered so as to come within a few inches of the floor of the store, and is of mosaic blocks. A handsome sign, with raised gold lettering that can be seen for several blocks, has been placed above this window. The H street window has been similarly treated, after having been extended for about two feet. In all the store has sixty-four feet of window display space. The outside walls of the structure are covered with pebble-dash; inside the walls are pea green, harmonizing with the white of the woodwork and fixtures. The icebox has been rebuilt and above it is a balcony with stairs leading to an attic, to be used for the storage of florists' supplies.

The Market.

Business was duller last week than any time previously this month. Little entertaining appears to be going on. A number of small weddings are taking place, but these do not call for many flowers. Funeral work, though a little less active, forms the main part of the business. Daily consignments of roses arrive in good condition. The cooler weather is helping them considerably and they sell easily. Some good varieties are seen, including Hadley, Hoosier Beauty, Cecile Brunner, Russell, Ophelia, Sunburst and Ward. The market was considerably handicapped on Saturday, September 16, when, owing to a wreck on the main line, the roses did not arrive and only a few local ones could be obtained.

Good quantities of asters are coming in and the best ones sell fast; the poorer

The Market.

There is little change in market conditions. It is considerably cooler, the thermometer at first dropping to 45 degrees. There is no valley. Lilies are short of the demand and a scarcity of good asters is reported. The stock coming into the market is of poor quality, fit only for the garbage barrel. Gladioli are in oversupply and prices have dropped accordingly. A few carnations have made their appearance. Roses are plentiful. The same may be said of green goods.

GLEN COVE, N. Y.

The regular meeting of the Nassau County Horticultural Society, held on the evening of September 13, was the best attended meeting of the season, and a most interesting session. A letter was received from Henry Gibson, tendering his resignation as secretary of the society, owing to the fact that he was about to move to a point too remote from Glen Cove for him to carry out the duties of his office. The resignation was laid on the table and Ernest Westlake was appointed secretary pro-tempore for the remainder of the year. During his term of office Mr. Gibson proved to be a genuine hustler and a most capable official, and we deeply regret losing his services. He carries the best wishes of all his fellow members to his new location.

The judges appointed by President Macdonald were James Gladstone, Harry Goodband and John Ingraham, who turned in the following report: Muskmelon, Joseph Robinson, first; six ears of corn, Frank Petroccia, first; twenty-five lima beans, Frank Petroccia, first; six ears of corn, Honeysweet, thanks of the society to Frank Petroccia.

The final schedule for the chrysanthemum show was read and adopted. It contains fifty-three classes, covering a considerable variety of exhibits, and should bring out many entries. In all but a few classes the competition is open to all. Final arrangements were made for the dahlia show, to be held October 5, and James Gladstone was appointed manager of the show, with Thomas Twigg as assistant.

An essay on "Mushrooms and Their Culture" was read by Joseph Robinson. It proved to be most interesting and full of practical information. Mr. Robinson described the various types of edible fungi and also told of many distinguishing characteristics of the poisonous varieties.

Two essays were received from the National Association of Gardeners, one on "The Diabrotica," by Robert Sell, of Texas, and the other on "The Maranoctua," by Percy Snow, of Pennsylvania. Both were favorably received.

James McCarthy, Cor. Sec'y.

Omaha, Neb.—A suit for $10,000 damages has been brought against Albert J. Hruban by the father of an 11-year-old boy who was killed when struck by the Hruban delivery auto truck June 29.

The Market.

Prices are somewhat lower on nearly all flowers, but business continues fairly good. On some days there is a good clean-up; on others there is a considerable surplus. This is something which has always existed in the cut flower trade and will continue while existing methods of distribution are in force. Some day we hope to see the trade on a more normal basis. Roses are arriving in larger numbers and are lower in price. Russell now is coming in nicely, being preferred by many to Beauty. Ophelia, Stanley, Hadley and Miller also are of improved quality. Carnations are more abundant and, while still short-stemmed, clean up at $1 to $2 per hundred. Sweet peas are temporarily practically out of the market. Lilies have been in good demand, with only a moderate supply.

Asters are, on the whole, of poorer quality than a week ago and the best flowers have difficulty in making $1.50 to $2 per hundred. Second grades go much lower. There is a continuation of the gladiolus flood, which should rapidly wane from now on. Lily of the valley makes $4 to $6, but is not in heavy demand. Its high price has hurt its sale. A few Golden Glow mums come in, but the quality is not yet good. Cosmos, salpiglossis, bachelor's buttons, gomphrenas and other annuals meet with a moderate sale. The cattleya scarcity is passing. A week ago sales were made at $12 to $15 per dozen; now they are down to $6 and $7.50. Some oncidiums, odontoglossums and cypripediums also are coming in. More gardenias are seen. Adiantum sells slowly, but trade in asparagus is a little better.

Club Meeting.

There was a large and enthusiastic meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, the first since the summer recess, at Horticultural hall, September 19. About 300 members and friends were present. Reports on the last club picnic and the outing to Bar Harbor, Me., were received and accepted. It was announced that classes in landscape gardening and floral art would be started as soon as a sufficient number of students were enrolled. A committee was appointed to draw up resolutions on the late Jackson Dawson, for some years an honorary member of the club. E. H. Forbush, state ornithologist of Massachusetts, gave a most fascinating lecture, illustrated by the stereopticon, on "How the Birds Help Us and How We Help the Birds." The lecturer showed most convincingly the supreme value of birds to gardeners and florists and answered a number of queries at the close of his lecture.

There was a good addition of new members. Following the close of the regular business the committee served a collation, after which dancing was enjoyed until midnight.

The Farquhar Picnic.

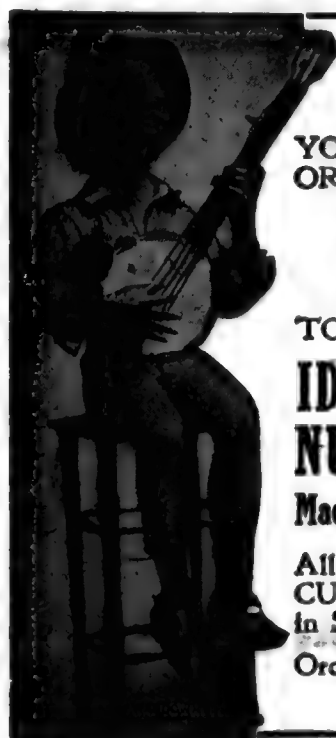

The nursery and seed store employees of R. & J. Farquhar & Co. held a most successful picnic at Wellesley September 16. The morning was dark and gloomy, but the sun broke out about noon, and the weather was beautiful the remainder of the day. The temperature conditions were ideal for the various races, baseball games and other athletic events.

The winners in the athletic events were:

Hundred-yard dash for men—R. Chapman, store, first; E. Johnson, nursery, second.
Fifty-yard dash for girls—Miss C. Wannberg, first; Miss R. McBride, second.
Pipe race—H. Jones, first.
Three-legged race—T. Westwood and M. Raux, first.
Ball-throwing contest, girls—Miss S. Sutton, store, first; Miss R. Beckett, nursery, second.
Fifty-yard dash for men over 40—John Van Leeuwen, nursery, first.
Relay race—Won by store, T. Westwood, G. Sanford, H. Jones, R. Chapman.

The baseball game between the store and nursery resulted in a tie, 5 to 5. The features of the game were the battery work of Stead and Chapman for the store and of McGoldrick and Johnson for the nursery. The game was a regular Red Sox-Detroit affair. The soccer game between the store and the nursery was won by the nursery, in a well played game, 1 to 0.

The committee in charge consisted of J. W. Davy, chairman; V. E. Nilsson, Various Notes.

At the store of Patrick Welch shipping trade continues extremely good, the call for Beauty roses, valley and lilies being excellent for long-distance shipments. Mr. Welch anticipates an exceptionally busy season, with prices averaging higher than a year ago. It is just ten years ago since he and his brother moved from Province street to Devonshire street, being the first wholesale firm to locate there. The writer well remembers hearing Mr. Welch say that the future wholesale industry of Boston would eventually locate there. Now every wholesale concern in the city is within a stone's throw of any of the others.

C. T. Beasley & Co., of East Milton, make pansies a great specialty. Seven houses are planted with them, over 30,000 plants being used. Picking of the new season's crop started some days ago. Already flowers are being picked on 5-inch and 6-inch stems. A number of new hybrids have been planted this season, including some unique colors. In addition to flowers sold in Boston and for home retail trade, large numbers are shipped to New York. A house of Queen of the Market aster paid remarkably well this season, while outdoor sweet peas were more or less of a failure.

The annual fruit and vegetable exhibition of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society will be held October 7 and 8. The annual exhibition of plants, flowers, fruits and vegetables, at one time termed the chrysanthemum show, is scheduled for November 1 to 5.

At Welch's, 280 Devonshire street, flowers were well cleaned up when I called September 16. Shipping trade continues good and Edward Welch anticipates a busy season.

The Market.

Another disappointing week in the wholesale market, despite the fact that the opening of the week gave promise of improvement from the disastrous conditions of the last month. But large shipments, hot weather, infant paralysis and the strike were too strong a combination to overcome. Business daily grew worse, accumulations of everything increased and at the week's end universal sacrifice of stock was necessary to give any semblance of activity. It therefore is difficult to quote satisfactory prices for the grower or the wholesaler. Fluctuations were constant.

American Beauty roses are improving rapidly in quality, including length of stem and size of head. Some extra fine flowers sold as high as $25 per hundred. There were not enough of these, however, to strike an average. Hadley is coming back, weakly as yet but promising. It will be many weeks before it will be at its best again. Of the other varieties of roses only the best grades—and of these the supply is light—bring the high quotations recorded. The recessions are rapid from the high-tide levels—from $5 or $6 to 25 and 50 cents per hundred. Thousands were sold at and under $5 per thousand! Prima Donna, Russell, Mock and Ward seem to hold the high places. Ophelia is abundant.

There are plenty of carnations, but they are an extremely short-stemmed lot, and many of them are "asleep"—

Wire GRIMM & GORLY

"25 cents to $1," says one of the men who handles them in thousands daily. The extreme prices for valley are $1 to $6, extra quality only commanding the higher figure. Higher prices are predicted for the fall and winter than ever before. Violets also are listed for a good advance above late years' prices. Liliun longiflorum is steady. Prices hold at the last quotations; $6 seems to be top for longiflorums and $4 for rubrums. Orchids are lower and declining; 50 cents likely will be top before the week is over, although good gigas were selling at 75 cents September 16.

The flood of asters is at its height and every wholesaler was loaded down with gladioli as the week opened. The demand last week was far below the supply, leaving countless spikes unsold. There are a few fine asters coming along. Dahlias are quite abundant and some prize varieties are seen, such as we may expect at the two dahlia shows this week and next, in this city.

Splendid yellow and white mums are here, selling at $1 to $3 per dozen. Tritomas are excellent, but go slowly. There is no lack of cosmos and outdoor flowers, the latter of a dozen kinds. Let us hope that this week may see the end of the depression and the coming of better days.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Peterson, of Cincinnati, visited New York September 15 and 16 on their way home by auto, via Philadelphia and Pittsburgh.

S. S. Pennock, of Philadelphia, and C. H. Totty, of Madison, N. J., were in the city September 16.

The annual reunion and banquet given by L. B. Coddington to his employees and friends last week was a most enjoyable occasion. Mr. Coddington is shipping more than 100,000 roses weekly to the New York market, and H. E. Froment handles the entire number.

The National Floral Corporation is progressing under the management of Hugo Mock, the organization now having nearly 200 members.

was prompted by the disappearance of Lewis P. Rankin, of Westerly, R. I., who has been missing from his home there since September 12. The missing florist came to New York to purchase palms, ferns, etc., for his retail store, called at the firm's store in New York and talked with Mr. Rigby. He has not been seen since; neither has inquiry nor police investigation found any trace of him.

H. W. Thomas, secretary of Arnold & Co., is in the city after a summer in the Catskills.

The stork left a baby girl September 12 at Charles Futterman's home.

Leo Rosens, representing B. Rosens, wholesaler of florists' supplies, is on his initial trip with samples of Christmas specialties and novelties. The concern has imported large quantities of red roping from Japan.

The MacNiff Horticultural Co. reports the opening of the plant auctions a great success. The attendance was large and prices satisfactory.

Johnson & Millang, the uptown plant auction house, say first sales exceeded their expectations. The retail florists find the venture convenient to them.

John Michelsen, of the E. C. Amling Co., Chicago, gave the New York market the "once over" September 14. In company with J. B. Deamud he made a trip to Brooklyn to have a look at the unloading of the French steamer that brought the big lot of Paper Whites and Romans.

Percy Rigby, of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., has returned from his two months' holiday with Mrs. Rigby in the Adirondacks.

The New York Florists' Bowling Club, Joseph Fenrich, captain, will resume playing early in October. A great 10-club contest is anticipated for the next S. A. F. convention.

J. Austin Shaw.

The first autumn meeting of the New York and New Jersey Association of Plant Growers was held September 14 at the offices of William H. Siebrecht, Jr., the secretary and attorney for the association. After the meeting the members and a few friends journeyed to Coney Island in automobiles provided by A. L. Miller, J. H. Fiesser, William H. Siebrecht, Jr., H. Baumann, Roman
J. Irwin and H. Harris. At Stauch's Pavilion the party showed considerable interest in the accommodations which could be made in the event of that place being selected for the purpose of the outing at the 1917 convention of the S. A. F. A hearty and well-served dinner was thoroughly enjoyed. Those who participated were A. L. Miller, J.
H. Fiesser, Walter F. Sheridan, F. R.
Pierson, Daniel Wittpenn, William H.
Siebrecht, Jr., Messrs. Lehnig and Winnefeld, H. Baumann, H. Baumann, Jr.,
Roman J. Irwin, H. Schmidt, Louis
Schmutz, Jr., H. Harris, H. Darlington,
Alfred Zeller, Hermann Schoelzel, T. W.
Langan and Frederick Klenk.

The MacNiff Horticultural Co. has changed the hour of its auctions so that the sales will start at 10 a. m., and Robert W. MacNiff states it is "caused by the enormous amount of bulbs we are receiving from Holland."

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

Last week's business was fair, and this week's business should prove good.
There are a number of large fall openings, for which orders for many flowers have been booked. The demand for stock from out of town is heavy.

Roses are in fair supply. The larger part of the offerings are short-stemmed, but some choice stock is available. Carnations now are coming into the market regularly. Easter lilies are in good supply, as well as asters.

Gladioli still are fairly plentiful, but only a limited quantity of good ones may be had. Other offerings are rubrum lilies, calendulas, cosmos, dahlias and a few chrysanthemums. Greens, except smilax, are plentiful.

Various Notes.

The Hoffmeister Floral Co., at Lick Run, has been sending C. E. Critchell some excellent rubrum lilies.

W. Ray Murphy, of the William Murphy Co., has returned from a week's business trip.

W. A. Whittaker, of the J. M. McCullough's Sons Co., is out of town on a business trip.

J. G. Chisholm, formerly of the Bertermann Bros. Co., Indianapolis, has joined the Hill forces in this city.

Imholte Bros., of Delhi, have begun to cut carnations from the new houses erected this summer.

Recent visitors were J. T. Herdigen, of Aurora, Ind., and William Lodder, of Hamilton, O. C. H. H.

EVANSVILLE, IND.

The Market.

Cool weather arrived Saturday morning, September 16, with the temperature ranging around 40 degrees. Light frosts were reported at different places. Roses and carnations are of good quality, but they soon will be much better. Business is quite lively, there being a good demand for all flowers for funerals, of which there have been many every week.

Various Notes.

A trip to the greenhouses of the William Blackman Floral Co. found stock in general looking well. Roses, carnations and mums are extra good. Business is excellent at the store.

The carnations and mums at the Julius Niednagel & Sons range are in fine condition. Business is good.

C. L. Niednagel is cutting good roses, especially Russell, Killarney and Ward.

Karl Zeidler is beginning to cut roses and carnations from his new houses. His mums are of good quality.

The Florists' Club members met at the home of Royston & Fenton September 13. There was a fair attendance and everyone seemed to enjoy himself. This meeting was to have been held at the residence of Ernest Lentz, at Boonville, but owing to the serious illness of Mr. Lentz's mother the meeting place was changed. During the evening Secretary E. L. Fenton made a report of the club's finances. The expenses of the recent picnic were $63.20. As not enough money was in the treasury to pay the bills, a motion was made and seconded that each member be assessed $1. Each member present made prompt payment and it is hoped that those who have not paid will send the money to the secretary as soon as possible. The next meeting will be held at the residence of C. E. Gysemen, Wednesday, October 11. The election of officers for the coming year will take place on this date. All members are requested to attend.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich.;
Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

THE prices of bulbs are going up all along the line—French, Dutch and Japanese.

SEEDSMEN who handle bulbs will be interested in the article on "Bulb Growing in Virginia," which appears on another page in this issue.

THE Rotterdam office of Ralph M. Ward & Co., New York, writes that the supply of bulbs in Holland is smaller than most American importers realize.

IN spite of the unquestionably short crop at Ollioules, the imports of French bulbs so far this season considerably exceed the quantity imported in any previous year.

THERE were light frosts last week, the earliest of recent years, in the seed-growing sections of Iowa, Nebraska and Colorado, but no damage of consequence was done to crops.

VILMORIN-ANDRIEUX ET CIE, Paris, landed the North-of-France candidum bulbs at New York last week the same as though their land were not occupied by battling armies.

SWEET CORN is almost sure to be in light supply and there is little hope of meeting the short deliveries by picking up free crops, the uncontracted acreage being considerably less than usual this year.

THE Holland-America Line has three steamers from Rotterdam due at New York between Monday and Friday of this week and they are supposed to be bringing the bulk of this season's Dutch bulbs. The Poeldyk, which was reported as in the harbor September 18, is said to have 12,500 cases.

THERE has been a large loss of Formosa lily bulbs on the S. S. Hawaii Maru, which left Yokohama about July 27. The shipment arrived rotted and useless. It is understood the principal consignments were to Henry & Lee and Ralph M. Ward & Co., both of New York, although a quantity of the bulbs was consigned to Chicago.

DIFFICULTIES at the docks in Brooklyn held up the S. S. Eleftherios K. Venezelos for almost two weeks before unloading the 14,432 cases of French bulbs it brought could be begun. The result was a flood of inquiries from consignees who were perplexed at the delay in receiving the consignments stated in the Review for September 7 to have been on the boat. The cargo had been discharged September 15, but at that date there still were on the docks fifteen cars of bulbs for the west, held back by congestion on the railroads. Before the Venezelos had been unloaded the Chalkydon arrived, September 12, with 7,860 cases more French bulbs.

BEAN CROP IN MICHIGAN.

The following is from a letter by the Gibson Canning Co., Gibson City, Ill.: "Much has been said and is being said daily in various trade publications on the subject of great shortage in the bean crop this year. It is generally known that the acreage in beans this year is greatly in excess of that of any previous year. Early crop prospects promised a gigantic crop. These prospects, however, were shattered by hot winds and drought which appeared in July and the prospect pendulum swung to the other extreme. Pessimistic reports of the most discouraging nature became the rule.

"It is only fair now, however, to follow the pendulum in its course from its pessimistic extreme to the conditions as they appear today. September 2 there was a meeting of the Central Michigan Bean Jobbers' Association at Alma, Mich. There were about 180 bean jobbers present. The report from practically all was that conditions had improved to a most unexpected degree in the last three weeks. At this meeting, while some eighty jobbers were still present, the chairman requested that each give his personal views, based on personal observation, regarding the bean crop prospects three weeks ago, two weeks ago and last week. The consensus was as follows: Three weeks ago the prospect was for five bushels per acre; two weeks ago, seven to ten bushels per acre; last week it looked as though it might be twelve to fifteen bushels per acre on an average, which would, in fact, be about a normal crop.

"Early beans are now being harvested in Michigan, which are yielding twelve to twenty-five bushels per acre, most of them so perfect that it will not be necessary to hand-pick them at all to put them on the market as full C. H. P. grade. Probably never in the history of the bean industry has the crop been so perfect and free from faulty beans as those which are being harvested at this time. Contrast this condition with those which prevailed last year, when the crop was so sorely afflicted with anthracnose that it became necessary to hand-pick from five to ten pounds of beans from each bushel before they could be put on the market as C. H. P. grade. It was a big elevator in Michigan that last year could turn out more than one carload of C. H. P. beans per week. This year the most modestly equipped one can turn out one or two cars of C. H. P. grade per day, if the remainder of the crop matures with the same degree of perfection as those which are now coming in.

"Present prospects are for an ample crop of beans for all legitimate requirements, and there is nothing at this time in the situation to warrant the unreasonable, and unprecedented prices which are now ruling.

"It seems inevitable that the price of beans must get down to a more rational basis before they are taken hold of in anything but a hand-to-mouth way.

"The high prices of beans in this country are attracting foreign beans from all quarters of the globe, which are now finding their way to our market.

"It would appear not to be out of place at this time to give the trade some information on the improved condition of beans in the last few weeks. They should know it. This information will prevent a great many now misinformed jobbers from sustaining heavy losses in taking on quantities of beans at the present prices, with the belief that the Michigan bean crop is a practical failure.

"Special inquiry into growing crop conditions in Michigan will convince you of crop prospects which are so much better than is now generally assumed, that the knowledge of this fact will be of great value to most of the readers of your valuable columns."

THE NUISANCE

Well, you see for yourself just how a business girl has the "undesirables" on her acquaintance list. It is simply impossible to avoid meeting them, but, thank heaven! Nuisance is positively the only one of his class I ever met in all the many hundreds of men I know.

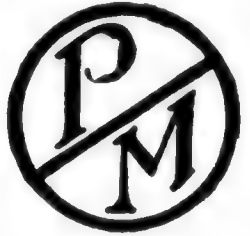

He tried the lovey-dovey love talk, told me how much he had always admired and loved me, how much he wanted me for his wife, and so desperate was he for my love and friendship he begged me to run away with him to South America. Holy Mike! I nearly collapsed right then and there. The comedy was too much for me, but he really thought he had me believing all his mushy stuff, and I certainly let him go ahead. It was fun for me. I had a large picture of myself running away with a man I turned down when I was a youngster—and just imagine me eloping with a married man, leaving behind him a wife and seven children! Oh, joy! What a romance! When the joke reached a stopping point, I begged to be excused and made my escape. Then Nuisance lost his good disposition and decided to get revenge, and he started—and I would be ashamed almost to enumerate the little, nasty, mean things he did; a real man would blush to think he had to be classed as a man with him. In a jealous rage he tore up—

MOTT-LY GLEANINGS.

"Yes, we have had a good season, and now are busy with grass seed sales," observed Manager C. E. Rotherham, of Wood & Co., East Cleveland, O., as he hung up the receiver and handed me a slip showing an order for 1,800 pounds of lawn grass seed for a local manufacturing concern. I also was shown an earlier order, which, together with the other one, made a total of 6,800 pounds, at $500 per ton, which, as Mr. Rotherham says, "was going some." Out-of-town orders also are increasing. Mr. Wood is rustivating among the Canadian pines.

A. C. Kendel, of Cleveland, opines that this is the best season for the market grower for several years, lettuce selling wholesale at $1.60 per one-half bushel basket in any quantity and cabbage from $60 to $65 per ton. Mr. Kendel predicts a big gathering at the Chicago convention of vegetable growers, if only for the purpose of congratulating each other on the prosperous tide, which turned in their favor after being so long in an adverse state. Counter trade showed a falling off this season, due to the prosperity, as only one-third of the usual entries in the home garden competition have been made, proving that, although the prizes offered by a leading daily are quite valuable, the amateur gardeners have other diggings more profitable. "Country trade has been more than good," concluded Mr. Kendel. S. F. Willard, Jr., of the A. C. Kendel establishment, had returned from a trip to Wetherfield, Conn., on the sad mission to bury a relative. He thinks the Nutmeg state will not produce more than an average crop of seed stocks this year.

At the Johnson Seed Store, Cleveland, the management finds itself cramped for room, although it only recently moved into the roomy store it now occupies.

The Theilman Seed Co., of Erie, Pa., finds that after striking the season's balance it has broken even and considers it a satisfactory condition of affairs, as the season was erratic.

George L. Siegel, Erie's pioneer seedsman, observed: "Has it occurred to you that no victim of infantile paralysis has been shown to be affected by nicotine, and, considering the quantities of that useful insecticide, would it not act as a preventive?" Surely this is a subject for study.

Manager Manley, of the Harvey Seed Co., Buffalo, N. Y., says that the reports from the bean fields in western New York are discouraging. The pea bean and red kidney bean were formerly grown in large quantities, but now they amount to almost nothing.

Livingston Seed Co., Columbus, O.—Bulbs, plants, hardy roses, ornamental shrubs and trees, fruit-bearing stock, fertilizers, insecticides, bird supplies, goldfish, etc.; forty pages, illustrated. The seed department also is represented by seeds of hardy perennials, vegetable seeds for forcing and fall planting, mushroom spawn and Egyptian or winter onion sets.

Wm. Elliott & Sons, New York, N. Y.—Illustrated catalogue of bulbs, plants, shrubs, seeds, horticultural tools and supplies; thirty-two pages and cover. Half a dozen different mixtures of grass seed are offered, for the lawn, bowling green and golf links, besides an extensive list of grass and forage seeds for agricultural use.

Jackson & Perkins Co., Newark, N. Y.—Wholesale catalogue of nursery stock, roses and perennials; sixteen unusually large pages, printed on cream-tinted paper and well illustrated. The nursery lists comprise both fruit-bearing and ornamental stock, in a wide range of sizes. Pot-grown hydrangeas and other plants for forcing also are offered.

Weeber & Don, New York, N. Y.—A 32-page, illustrated catalogue of bulbs, bulb fiber, hyacinth glasses, ornamental bowls and other receptacles, flower seeds for frames and greenhouses, winter-flowering sweet peas, insecticides, fertilizers, lawn grass seed, etc. Enclosed with the bulb catalogue is a separate list of peonies.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

In the "Chrysanthemum" department elsewhere in this issue is an illustrated article on how mums are grown in the southern part of California, with illustrations showing the interior of an enormous cloth house containing 150,000 plants grown for a Los Angeles concern.

Tacoma, Wash.—"One of the biggest and most successful ever held," is the way Secretary R. W. Drew, of the Tacoma Dahlia Society, summed up the sixth annual dahlia and fall flower show of the society recently held on the Rhodes Bros. roof garden. There were nearly 3,000 entries when the lists were closed. Competition was extremely close in the classes with cups as prizes. In the open class, composed of professional growers, Mrs. E. Peterson won the trophy cup, while Mrs. A. Ross, a grower at Everett, was second. The most interesting dahlia on display was called "Dee-lighted." This flower, with its molar-like center, calculated to make a dentist say things about faulty articulation, was grown at the famous Pudor farm. Its resemblance to the Rooseveltian smile made it the center of interest during the entire show.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

While there is an abundance of poor and medium-grade stock on hand, it seems to be increasingly difficult to obtain good stock at any price. This applies to roses in particular, but also in a great measure to carnations, the best cuts of the latter now coming from cloth-covered houses. There is quite a large demand for this season of the year, especially for shipping orders. In the city funeral work still forms the bulk of the business and here a grade of stock that is not good enough for long-distance work fills the bill. Of the cheaper outdoor flowers there is a great abundance. Valley is a little more plentiful and orchids are about even with the demand. Gadioli are falling off, as are asters and centaureas. Greens are plentiful.

W. S. Thompson, of the Skinner Irrigation Co., of Troy, O., was in the city last week with other officials of the company. A branch office of the company may be opened here.

One of the oldest and most consistent advertisers in these pages is S. Murata & Co., and their store and manner of doing business are just as consistent. Many out-of-town dealers have found that they can always obtain just "what they want when they want it" from this concern, which from small beginnings has attained large proportions—so large, indeed, that Mr. Murata says that they will have to seek even larger quarters than the big basement they now occupy on South Broadway. Prompt attention to orders and businesslike methods have led to this satisfactory state of affairs.

The Southern California Flower Market, a corporation, has purchased the entire business of the Golden Floral Co., 421-423 Wall street. M. Kai, one of the best known of the Japanese growers at Montebello, is secretary of the corporation, which handles the stock of some 200 growers. The new concern has taken over all the assets of the late company and assumes all responsibilities.

The poinsettias for cutting grown by C. Eeke, of Hollywood, are exceptionally good-looking this year. Mr. Eeke has removed the whole of his stock from Pomona to practically a frostless position in the foothill town and he has 35,000 plants; poinsettia bushes, he calls them. Some of these will be early this year, probably being in full bloom by November, but the great majority will just about make the Christmas market. By Mr. Eeke's method of packing they reach long-distance markets in fine shape.

Peter Wilson, of the staff of the Redondo Floral Co., again forgot himself as he was coming home from a Swedish picnic the other night. The speed cop charged thirty-six miles per hour and Pete did not deny the soft impeachment. "Five dollars or five days," said the judge, but Pete said it was worth it. Brother Borden is the one and original little vegetable grower, reducing his adipose by working at it morning and evening. The last week has been a busy one at the store, where they are handling some of the finest mums seen on the market this year.

grower, seems to have solved the problem of their culture.

Last week the force of the California Cut Flower & Evergreen Co., including J. Roller and "Pa" Morris to act as guide, philosopher and friend, went a-fishing on the briny deep. A launch was chartered, with Catalina waters the objective, but mal de mer put the guide out of business for a time and the bunch had it their own way. A fine catch of salmon grouper, whatever that may be, and rock cod was obtained, the whole party having a splendid time after Morris got through casting bait. One of the wild beasts hooked by Nelson weighed ten pounds, but whether this one was landed or got away I have forgotten.

The Market.

A spell of summer weather last week was rendered disagreeable by a strong east wind, which continued for several days—drying and trying to the growers. Possibly the weather was the chief cause for the slump in business. Funeral work was light and there was but little activity in other lines. Displays at the stores consist principally of outdoor-grown stock. Quantities of helianthus are used in decorations.

The Multnomah County Fair.

The annual fair of Multnomah county was held at the Gresham grounds, September 12 to 16. Special prizes amounting to $250 were offered through H. A. Lewis, of the fair association, to members of the Portland Floral Society, for outdoor beds filled with bedding stock and perennials. The sum was divided into seven first and six second prizes, so that each bed was awarded a prize. Those competing were: Tonseth Floral Co., Gill Bros. Seed Co., Routledge Seed & Floral Co., Swiss Floral Co., Mountain View Floral Co., Zimmerman Bros., John Zimmerman, William Dungey, Sr., and William Dungey, Jr. Some of the beds were planted too late to be in first-class condition and the flowers had been injured by recent rains. The general effect, however, was pleasing and added much to the attractiveness of the fair grounds. From the experience thus acquired, a better display can be arranged next year.

The Portland Floral Society arranged the beds through a committee consisting of Otto Griessel, chairman; R. R. Routledge and J. G. Bacher. For the fair association A. I. Gale was in charge.

A pyramidal stand located in the center of the main half was decorated with palms and ferns by Clarke Bros. September 13 was flower day and several tables were filled with vase dis-

(MATILJA POPPY)

The difficulty in raising this grand plant from untreated seed is well known. For many years George Southard, of Redlands, has treated his seed and can absolutely guarantee at least 90 per cent germination. The Southard process consists of removing the glutinous seal with which this seed is coated in the natural condition so that instead of waiting two or three years, as in the past, growers of this noble plant can obtain seedlings in two months. The genuine treated seed can only be obtained from us direct, and the price to the trade is:

other flowers that compete with asters a better chance. Chrysanthemums are beginning to attract more attention, the market being well supplied with many different varieties, which show excellent quality. Crocker and Gold Nugget are popular yellows; Monrovia and Crystal Gem take a prominent place among the whites, and Portola is starting out well. Some chrysanthemums now are being shipped and the consignments will no doubt increase rapidly in size from now on. The carnation supply is still moderate, the flowers being quite good but the stems short. However, each day's offerings show improvement in quality and good, long stems surely will be in evidence in another week or two. The present supplies clean up fairly well at low prices.

cut of late amaryllis is readily absorbed. Tigrinum and rubrum lilies are about gone, after a long and profitable season. Good violets now are being offered freely at the stores, at the regulation price of 15 cents per bunch or two for 25 cents. The street peddlers also are beginning to handle them. The rose market is all that can be desired, quality of the blooms being good, supplies adequate, prices normal and demand active. Judging from the reports of the rose growers, the supply will be unusually large this fall and winter, but shipping business has developed to such an extent that no trouble is anticipated in disposing of the offerings. Some nice cyclamen plants are beginning to arrive and they are meeting with considerable favor, as well as cut cyclamens. Valley and orchids are still on the short side of the market.

Various Notes.

After attending the S. A. F. convention at Houston, Tex., Mrs. R. E. Darbee, the Hyde street florist, made a tour of the middle west. As a result of her trip she is more enthusiastic than ever over the possibilities of shipping California flowers out of the state. She predicts that within a few years there will not be a large flower store in the United States but what will be using California flowers at some season of the

SPOKANE, WASH.

Rains and lower temperatures recently were sufficiently cooling to warrant steam in most of the ranges around town. Frosts were noticed by early risers, but none were severe enough to do damage. On the contrary, cooler weather has been beneficial, especially to asters, which are among the most important of the cut flowers just now. Thrips have been severe on asters and dahlias this season, but the cooler weather is saving the plants.

The aster is Spokane's official flower, and wonderful blooms are produced each year. The best this year have come from the gardens of Hutchinson & Sons. Their specialty is sweet peas, and these have been fully equal in quality to the standard established in previous years.

Henry Reimer has had chrysanthemums from his range at Reimer's station for several weeks. He is the first of the local growers to bring mums into the market and reports a ready sale for them, which is somewhat unusual for early mums.

H. L. Olsson expected to have Golden Glow and Early Frost chrysanthemums ready for market by September 20. As this is the time when first killing frosts usually come, he should strike a good market with his crop.

The Hoyt Bros. Co. is making progress with its alterations at the store on Post street, but the work is necessarily hampered by the business going on under the ladders and scaffolds. The new arrangements promise to make this store the handiest and best planned one in the country.

The Van Doren greenhouses at Post Falls have been leased to Farrell McCormick for a term of three years. Mr. McCormick took possession July 1. The range will continue to produce a general stock of cut flowers and plants for the Spokane market, though many shipments are made to Idaho points.

F. N. Young, of Post Falls, was a recent visitor. September 5 he leased and took possession of the Post Falls greenhouses, formerly owned and conducted by P. A. Wollan. Mr. Young was in the employ of Mr. Van Doren for several years, so he is well acquainted with conditions at Post Falls.

Those Winter Orchid-flowering Sweet Peas ordered last season have been blooming outdoors since the first of winter, and are improving in quality every week.

ORR BROS., Horticulturists.

New Westminster, B. Columbia.

August 6, 1916.

Last year we left the selection to you and they have given us the greatest satisfaction.

DAVIES & SON.

I have received over 1000 such testimonials inside of ten months.

WARNING:—There are or will be advertised many so-called new Winter Spencers. I have seen many new names on the Exhibition tables, but by careful examination all were identical with my older Winter Orchid, years in commerce, excepting the Yarrowa. Should you buy any such so-called novelty, test it side by side with my original varieties and judge for yourself.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSEYMEN.

President, John Watson, Newark, N. Y.; Vice-president, Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo.; Secretary and General Manager, Curtis Nye Smith, Boston, Mass.; Treasurer, Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.

THE nursery trade will find it expedient to work together for a rise in prices if the business is to continue to be profitable. Leading growers of apple trees some time since came to this conclusion.

THE peony specialists, especially in New Jersey and Pennsylvania, are making greater efforts than ever before to interest the public. Evidently it has paid to advertise and circulate retail lists of elaborate character.

NORMAN PETERSON, son of William A. Peterson, has entered the University of Illinois for the training in landscape architecture, with the intention of joining the staff of Peterson Nursery when he has completed the collegiate course.

At a recent meeting of nurserymen from various citrus sections of Alabama a temporary organization was perfected, to be known as the South Alabama Nurserymen's Association. W. E. Ensoy, of Mobile, was named president of the body and R. Lloyd Scott, of Theodore, secretary. The purpose of the organization is to coöperate with similar societies in the fight against citrus canker.

APPLE FORECAST.

The September 1 forecast of total apple production this year in the United States, as reported by the Bureau of Crop Estimates, United States Department of Agriculture, is 67,679,000 barrels of three bushels each, as compared with 76,670,000 estimated produced last year, of which not quite sixty-five per cent were sold. In the last ten years estimated production has exceeded the present forecast five times. Taking the country as a whole, it thus appears that the apple crop will be nearly an average, but twelve per cent smaller than last year's large crop. The crop is larger than last year in the Atlantic coast states, including New York and Pennsylvania, and in the Pacific coast states, but smaller in practically all the interior states except Michigan, which has about thirty-four per cent more than last year. For the first time this year an attempt has been made to forecast the crop by important varieties.

Baldwin appears to be the leading crop this year, with a forecast of 9,302,000 barrels, an increase of twelve per cent over last year's production. Ben Davis, which was the leading variety as to quantity last year, falls to second this year, with a forecast production of 9,245,000 barrels, which is seventeen per cent less than the production estimated last year.

PLANTING NURSERY STOCK.

Advantages of Fall Planting.

It is difficult to convince many florists that fall and not spring is the time par excellence for the planting of a large proportion of our trees and shrubs. The ground is now warm and in an ideal condition for the transplanting of many evergreens. There is more time to do this work properly, much better stock can be had from the nurseries than in the spring and it is sure to be fresh from the fields. Furthermore, nurserymen have more time to fill fall orders, being less rushed with business.

A great proportion of our coniferous evergreens can be safely moved now. Cool, cloudy and damp days are ideal for planting operations, but are not always to be had either in the spring or early fall. If care is taken to keep the

SPECIAL OFFER of PEONIES

We have at this time a surplus of the excellent varieties listed below, which we wish to dispose of. Prices based on this surplus only. No charge for packing. Prices f. o. b. Chicago.

Will not supply less than six of one kind at the dozen rate, or less than twenty-five of one kind at the hundred rate. No orders taken for less than six of one kind in divided roots.

GUARANTEE

Our stock is guaranteed true to description, and we will REPLACE WITH THREE any that prove not true. We can make this UNPARALLELED guarantee because of the extreme care we have always used in growing our stock. Any peony is much surer to bloom, and will be twenty per cent stronger, if moved in September, so that new rootlets may form before freezing down. This gives a great advantage to home-grown stock over imported plants, which invariably come too late.

roots moist, to water after planting, to firm the roots well and give a mulch, the losses are likely to be small. When hot, dry weather follows the planting, if the shrubs can have a hosing overhead late each afternoon it will be a decided benefit to them. Rhododendrons, kalmias and andromedas, among the broader leaved evergreens, can be successfully planted now.

The Gain in Root Growth.

Evergreens planted now, and deciduous shrubs toward the end of October, make a nice root growth while the ground is warm. The soil is well settled about the roots by the fall rains and growth matures early. In the spring, if you will notice how the fall-planted stock starts away ahead of the spring plantings, you must be still further convinced of the advantages of fall planting. Stock planted in the fall is sure to be dug from the open and not taken from storage sheds. Is it not much more satisfactory, in the spring, to cultivate about fall planted stock and watch it grow, rather than

The Market.

Fall has arrived sure enough. We had a week of cold, rainy weather, but as yet no frost. The florists report business good, with a large number of funeral orders and much decorative work. There is a large demand for cut flowers. Roses are plentiful now; carnations are scarce. Gladioli still remain abundant and many good varieties are to be had. They sell well. There is a large supply of cosmos in the market and many charming effects may be made with these dainty flowers in pink, white and purple. The demand for cosmos equals the supply. Rubrum lilies are scarce, and this also is true of Easter lilies. Chrysanthemums are arriving somewhat slowly. The blooms are small, but as a whole they are of fair quality for this time of year. Boston ferns are excellent. There is promise of a fine fall trade.

State Fair Winners.

Special note must be made of the exhibit of Holm & Olson, of St. Paul, of their large, exceedingly grand palms and of their fine fern baskets. O. C. Swanson had a table decoration handsome in every detail. The Chicago Avenue Greenhouses had some beautiful displays, as did the Merriam Park Floral Co. August Swanson acted as judge and W. Bofferding was superintendent of the flower exhibits.

Prizes were awarded as follows:

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.

The Market.

Business in the retail stores is beginning to have a fall aspect. Roses are more plentiful and consequently a little cheaper. The first carnations are in the market, but, as usual, they are short-stemmed. The best of the asters are gone, though some of the growers still have good ones grown indoors. There were a number of weddings last week that helped considerably.

Various Notes.

Blackwell, of Fairhaven, is adding another house to his range.

The working force at Peter Murray's establishment, at Fairhaven, recently petitioned for a 9-hour day, and the petition was granted. They had been working ten hours daily.

George Reed, who for some time has been the foreman for the Peckham Floral Co., is to leave his position to take a place as foreman for Peter Murray.

Edward Davis, of 191 Shawmut avenue, is disposing of some good ferns of the Boston and Whitman types. His stock this year is excellent.

Edward M. Pierce housed some fine stevia last week.

H. V. Sowle had a generous share of the wedding work last week.

Julius, the Florist, reports business as about normal for this time of the year.

The regular annual clambake of the New Bedford Horticultural Society was held at Woodhouse's pavilion, Thursday evening, September 14, at 7:30. About fifty members and friends were present and all reported a good time, as well as a first-class bake. W. M. P.

Why we believe NEBRASKA to be the best scarlet in sight today:

Habit: Strong, easy grower, making large plants in the field and lifting easily; it also makes a strong root growth, has no surplus grass, every shoot throwing a bloom in a very short time.

Blooms: Large, 3½ inches and over, with a delightful, spicy fragrance.

Color: The brightest scarlet.

Style: Full, well built, slightly fringed.

Calyx: Long and strong, absolutely never splits at any season or in any temperature.

Stem: Long, 24 to 36 inches, heavy and strong, holding the flowers perfectly erect.

There are no culls, all blooms being first grade.

SAN FRANCISCO NOTES.

were the guests of D. Raymond, Sunday, September 10, at the plant of the Garden City Pottery Co., at San Jose. It was field day for the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society and many members of the organization made the trip together by train, while others went down in automobiles. The visitors were first taken on a tour of the plant by Mr. Raymond. He showed them the old-time way of making pots by hand and then the modern methods. The lightness and airiness of the plant, as well as its cleanliness, were generally remarked. The company makes a large line of stoneware as well as flower pots. Special attention was called to the new machinery for making small pots. At 1:30 a delightful luncheon was served around a large table in the plant, the collation consisting of chicken, ice cream and other good things, Mr. Raymond having fulfilled his promise to the letter that there would be plenty to eat and to drink for all.

J. A. Axell, P. Ferrari and A. Carbone, after participating in the festivities at the pottery plant at San Jose, visited Dr. Parker's orchid establishment at Santa Cruz, where some fine specimens are to be seen. They made the trip in Mr. Ferrari's big touring car.

T. F. Burns, president of the California Dahlia Growers' Association, reports that the dahlia show given by the association last week was successful far above expectations, the returns amounting to more than enough to cover the expenses. At the close of the show the association presented the Palace hotel and each of the newspapers with a big basket of dahlias; also the Pacific Glass Works, which furnished the bottles. For these they received due thanks, and a nice note from the hotel management expressing great satisfaction with the show. The public is not to be permitted to forget the dahlia either, now that the exhibition is over. Mr. Burns, on behalf of the association, has offered to furnish 400,000 dahlia blooms to be placed along Market street during the "Path of Gold" celebration to be held October 4 and 5. The offer was immediately accepted by the carnival committee. Among those who will assist in the distribution of the blooms will be Angelo J. Rossi, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co.; Donald McLaren, of MacRorie & McLaren; V. L. Podesta, of Podesta & Baldocchi; B. M. Joseph.

Interest in the dahlia is still further enhanced by the advertising of the show to be given at the Exposition Auditorium October 3 and 4, under the auspices of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society and the California State Floral Society. The show will be managed by H. Plath.

The State Corporation Commission has authorized the Harris Seed Co., of San Diego, to issue five shares of stock in exchange for $250 in cash and nursery stock of the market value of $250. S. H. G.

The Market.

Business continues to improve. A slight frost September 14 killed most of the dahlias, but the asters and gladioli were uninjured. Carnations are improving, but the supply does not keep up with the demand. Valley is scarce and that which arrives is quickly taken. Roses are good, but not so plentiful as they have been. There is a brisk demand for blooming plants, with only a few Chatelaine begonias to meet the call. Retailers are impatiently waiting for cyclamen and mum plants. Ferns are having a good sale.

Various Notes.

William Wilmore, Jr., has returned from a business trip to Kansas City.

The man who stole and carried off a red-hot stove has at last been outdone. Albert Geisert, rose grower for the Park Floral Co., reports that someone entered his barnyard and got away with six tons of hay.

George L. Roberts, manager of the Elitch Gardens Co., is spending his vacation in the mountains.

The Park Floral Co. has a fine looking lot of chrysanthemum plants in 6, 7 and 8-inch pots and also a fine batch of Jerusalem cherries.

Recent visitors were J. E. Johnson, of Colorado Springs, and R. Alexander, representing the Lindley Box & Paper Co., of Gas City, Ind.

William Wilmore, Jr., W. D. Black, Fred Schumann and L. A. Kintzele are among the recent purchasers of automobiles.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

WITH LEAN-TO EXTENSIONS.

Please inform me as to the heating of two greenhouses with low-pressure steam. I have 2,700 feet of 2-inch pipe on hand and will purchase the needed 1½-inch pipe. I have an upright boiler, three feet in diameter and seven feet high. It contains seventy 2-inch flues, thirty-two inches long, and the grate is thirty-two inches in diameter. What is the capacity of the boiler, and will it heat more than the two greenhouses, as shown in the enclosed sketch? The boiler is on a level with the greenhouse floors. What size of trap will be needed to carry the condensed steam back to the boiler? Will one trap do the work, without a pump? The greenhouses are somewhat protected by buildings and trees on the west, north and south.

As the sketch shows, the two houses run east and west, with the boiler shed at the west end. The main part of each house is 21x75, but the houses are extended westward in the form of a lean-to, about 5x10, on each side of the boiler shed, thus enclosing the shed on three sides. The total length of the houses, therefore, is eighty-five feet. The side walls are five feet high. The south wall contains two feet of glass, but the north wall is boarded up to the eaves.

K. F. C.—Mo.

The boiler is evidently of about ten horsepower, and if 1½-inch returns are used, would probably heat a third house of the size of the present ones, but if the 2-inch pipe is to be used for returns we would not care to add to the radiation required for the two houses shown

KROESCHELL TUBELESS BOILER

For Steam, Hot Water, Vapor or Vacuum Heating Systems

Probably you have wondered why the Kroeschell Greenhouse Boiler is not sold by any of the greenhouse construction companies. In justice to all concerned, we feel it is our duty to state that the Kroeschell Boiler is never sold by anyone but THE KROESCHELL BROS. CO. We have no agents, and, as our prices are based on sales direct from factory to user, we do not quote anyone dealing in boilers special resale prices. Our stand in this matter has brought out a lot of competition; nevertheless, the great efficiency of the Kroeschell Greenhouse Boiler cannot be disputed, and in spite of the keen competition the Kroeschell Greenhouse Boiler is heating more glass than any other make.

in the sketch. One trap will answer for both houses, and this should be able to handle the water from 1,000 square feet of radiation.

For piping the south house for roses, we would suggest the use of two 2-inch overhead flow pipes and eight 1½-inch returns, although six 2-inch returns might be used. In the other house, which is to be used for carnations, two 2-inch flow pipes and six 1½-inch or four 2-inch returns might be used. The returns on the north and south walls should be extended through the lean-tos on their respective sides. The flow pipes should be carried upon the purlins, which are probably located about half-way between the ridge and the gutters in each of the houses.

If the south side of the rose house is at all exposed to cold winds, it would be well to use five of the eight returns on the south wall, or put in an extra return. The other returns should be on

CRUDE OIL OR NATURAL GAS?

At present we are burning crude oil under our boilers. The oil has a specific gravity of 16 and costs 70 cents per barrel of forty-two gallons. The local company wishes us to change to natural gas. What price should be paid for natural gas, to be equivalent to the cost of the oil?

W. A. & C.—Cal.

We would not care to pay more than 15 cents per thousand feet for natural gas, considering the price for which crude oil can be obtained. Before making the change, we would get as positive assurance as possible of the permanency of the flow. Although such a guarantee would not be so vitally important in your locality, southern California, as in the colder regions of the country, the pressure of the gas is usually lowest in the coldest weather, when it is needed most. Care should be taken, therefore, to provide thermostats to give the alarm in the case of falling temperature in the houses, due to a check in the flow, which might result in the fire under the boiler going out entirely.

FOR CARNATIONS AND MUMS.

I am about to build a greenhouse and should like to get some advice about the heating of it. Hot water heat will be used. The house will be 22x100 and of pipe-frame construction, with wooden gutters. It will be fourteen feet high to the ridge and seven and one-half feet high to the eaves. There will be four feet of glass in the side walls, with wood below the glass. The boiler shed will be at the north side of the house. Both gables will be glass. There will be two 5-foot solid beds and one 5-foot raised bench. The raised bench will be in the center, the two side beds may be raised later. How many flows and how many 2-inch returns will be needed to maintain a temperature of 50 to 55 degrees in zero weather? The house is to be used for carnations and chrysanthemums. A. J. M.—Mich.

A house 22x100, with four feet of glass in each of the side walls, can be heated to 55 degrees in zero weather with hot water by using three 2½-inch flow pipes and eleven 2-inch returns. We would carry one flow pipe upon each plate and the other three feet below the ridge. The wall coils would have four pipes each, and there would be three pipes under the middle bench. Each coil should be connected with the boiler by means of a 2½-inch main return pipe. Carry the main flow pipes with a slight fall and connect the highest point of each flow pipe with the expansion tank.

CONSTRUCTION AND HEATING.

What will be the necessary hot water piping for a greenhouse 20x75? The north end will be attached to the boiler room and will be boarded up solidly. The side walls will be double boarded to a height of three feet, with building paper between. Above the board wall there will be one foot of glass, making the total height of the side walls four feet. The height of the ridge will be from ten to twelve feet; please suggest the right height. The boiler is five feet below the surface of the ground. The expansion tank can be placed in the boiler room and can be well elevated. We shall use solid beds and grow lettuce principally. Sometimes in February the outside temperature here drops to 20 degrees below zero. I have a good supply of 1½-inch and 2-inch pipe, and also seventy-five feet of the 3-inch size. J. S.—N. Y.

For piping the house we would advise the use of the 3-inch pipe as a flow and would place it two or three feet below the ridge. At the end of the house connect this pipe with a coil on each side wall, using 2½-inch pipes for the purpose. Each of these coils should contain five 2-inch return pipes. Instead of having only one foot of glass in each side wall, we would advise the use of not less than thirty inches of glass, and we would then make the side walls five and one-half feet high. We would then locate the ridge at a height of twelve feet, although ten feet will answer if the walls are only four feet high.

Does sluggish circulation make the temperature hard to control?

The Market.

Two weeks have brought great changes in trade conditions. The schools are opening and thousands of students are arriving. This makes for better business, as well as the return of many families who spend their summers away from the city until the schools open. Business now is better than it was at any time this summer, with stock none too plentiful. Carnations are coming in freely and are of good quality. They are cleaning up well every week.

Roses still are scarce, or, better, they are scarce again. But from the looks of the houses it will not be more than a week or two until roses will be plentiful enough for all demands. I have never seen asters so scarce and of such inferior quality as they are this season. Gladioli also are scarce, while dahlias are not plentiful enough to cut any figure in the market. The first chrysanthemums have not yet made their appearance, but they will be here within a fortnight, from the appearance of the houses. The early mums are not generally profitable here, but they will be welcomed this year.

French bulbs arrived last week, at least the Paper Whites did. They are not of high quality this season, so far as I can see. The Dutch bulbs have not yet arrived. Usually they reach this city before this time.

Various Notes.

The Joy Floral Co. has a striking show window, consisting of a running stream and a pond with goldfishes and water lilies.

Joseph Browne, proprietor of the Lischee Greenhouses, has things at his place in the best of condition. He says his cut flower business is increasing steadily.

J. F. Corbett is considering taking on a good man to help to manage his place. He is a railroad conductor, and his business is rapidly becoming too extensive to handle without proper assistance.

Oscar Geny is away from the city most of the time, principally at Redboiling Springs. Leo Geny is again on deck at the store, having returned from his trip north.

Haury & Sons are still cutting roses heavily. They had good cuts during the entire period of scarcity.

McIntyre Bros. have some good orchids in pots in their show windows at present. Their cut of gladioli is the best I have seen since early summer.

A Message for You

Do not neglect to use Animal Manures

However, don't depend on them for plant foods. These Manures are dependable only in supplying Organic Matter for your soil.

The next step is to use Magic 99% Pure Carbon- ate of Lime

—to reduce the Organic Matter to Humus and fix the Nitrogen of your soil in this Humus. It is also needed to aid and assist in those important functions of Bacterial Activity, and consequent Nitri- fication.

The third, and very impor- tant, step is to use Magic Pure Bone Meals and Magic Complete Fertilizers of High Plant Food Content —to supply those three essential elements—Nitro- gen, Phosphorus and Po- tassium—necessary to pro- duce Growth, Productive- ness and Quality in all Floral and Vegetable Products.

Other growers are using Magic Fertilizers and feeding the Magic Way, and are getting best results possible. You will, too.

The Markets.

Trade last week showed some improvement. Roses are of better quality and clean up well, with the exception of Killarney, which is in oversupply. Asters and gladioli of good quality are none too plentiful and carnations as yet are too short of supply to cut any figure in the market. Lilies are sufficient for present requirements.

Club Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Tri-City Florists' Club was held at the R. M. C. Rohlf residence, Alta Vista Nurseries, Davenport. The attendance was good. The trip was made in automobiles. The members made a tour of the grounds, which proved extremely interesting, as Mr. Rohlf, in addition to his large nursery stock, makes a specialty of peonies, irises, phloxes and other perennial plants. President Stapp was absent, so Vice-president C. J. Reardon called the meeting to order. After the regular business had been attended to, Mrs. C. Sorensen presented the topic of the evening, "Perennial Plants." Mr. Rohlf opened the discussion by giving methods of increasing peonies by root divisions.

C. O. E. Boehm gave his method of growing seedling perennials. Max Knees, of Moline, made application for membership. Harry Bills showed some indoor-grown asters of exceptional size and quality.

Lunch was served, followed by a social session. After extending a vote of thanks to the host and hostess the club adjourned, to meet at the Henry Gaethje home, Rock Island, the second Thursday in October. W. G.

SEWICKLEY, PA.

The monthly meeting of the Sewickley Horticultural Society was held September 12 in the Odd Fellows' hall, Broad street, Sewickley. The coming show, September 22 and 23, was up for discussion, and a committee of arrangements was appointed. William Thomson, Sr., had an exhibit of orchids and Thomas Sturgis showed a collection of gladioli, also some fine seedling dahlias of the Indian family type. A vote of thanks was accorded the exhibitors. The business and reports of the field day, held August 30, were gone over, the picnic being voted a success in every way. The society extended a vote of thanks to Mrs. William Thaw for her kindness in granting the freedom of her estate for that day. Applications were received from five who wish to become members. M. C.

COLUMBUS, O.

Trade is improving from day to day, with stock about equal to the demand. Asters, however, are falling off somewhat. There has been a fairly good supply of asters, regardless of all the failures; of course, some of the stock was extremely poor, but the better stock was cleared each day.

Roses are good and blooms now are coming from the young winter plants. The quality is fine, with the demand rather strong on all varieties, especially Sunburst. Beauties are not plentiful; the quality is dropping off as this item becomes scarcer. Carnations are better, a few showing up with fairly good stems. In a short time we should have plenty of good stock.

Gladioli are about done for this season, and they have done themselves proud. At times gladioli were about the only flowers to be had, and even after other stock came in they found a market. There are few other flowers, except a few garden kinds, such as marigolds, zinnias, cockscombs, etc. The trade calls for few of them. There is a sprinkling of snapdragons, but the quality is not extra.

The cool weather of the last few days has made the greenhouse men busy getting the stock housed. J. M.

PORTLAND NEWS NOTES.

plays made by professional and amateur growers. September 14, 15 and 16 the principal flower feature was the dahlia show, fostered by the National Dahlia Society. The several school garden exhibits were specially interesting, showing a large variety of fine products grown and attractively displayed by the children.

Various Notes.

John W. Hauser, of New York; W. B. Clarke, of Eureka, Cal., and Fred Young, of Walla Walla, Wash., were recent visitors.

Ignatius A. Schmidtt, son of Mrs. Regina U. Schmidtt, died September 14. Mr. Schmidtt was 52 years of age and had for several years been associated with his mother in operating greenhouses at East Ninth and Oak streets. Mrs. Schmidtt is a pioneer florist.

Niklas & Son last week showed some good zinnias in a variety of colors.

Edward Boyse, of the Martin & Forbes Co. store, is suffering from a muscular or nervous disorder of the left leg. It has been troubling him since early in June. He arranged an attractive window display at the new store, in which a heavy gilt frame with black background was decorated so that it resembled a picture. James Forbes, of the company, received a 2-column biographical sketch in the "Men You Often Read About" column of a local daily.

Coral Van Kirk, daughter of F. A. Van Kirk, and J. Norman Schmitt, were married September 6. The young couple will make their home in Portland, where Mr. Schmitt is associated with his father in the planing mill business. Mrs. Schmitt is popular with the Portland florists and has the hearty good wishes of the trade.

Henry Clemmens, of Newberg, reports a satisfactory business this season with his sweet peas. He found a good market for his blooms and has hand-picked a quantity of seed. He grows callas in part of his range and has good success with them. S. W. W.

Forest City, Ia.—H. S. Gardiner, manager of the Hill City Greenhouses, reports frosts last week which did considerable damage to soft-wooded stock outdoors. It was considerably earlier than the first killing frost usually visits this neighborhood.

GENTLEMEN:

We have just gone through the worst West Indian hurricane which ever struck this part of the country. The wind attained a velocity of more than 90 miles an hour, wrecking residences, all the water front of the city and every ship in the harbor.

Our greenhouses, which we bought from you two years ago, stand in one of the most exposed portions of the city. The storm wrecked some two story residences within one block of us, but am happy to state that our greenhouses are standing with no loss whatever, except eleven boxes of glass. There was practically no damage to the stock inside. Hoping this will interest you, we remain,

Sincerely yours,

Hannibal, Mo.—M. Sedlmeier has a new variety of coleus, a sport of Anna Pfeister. It is pure yellow, overcast with a hue of red or pink, not in spots, but over the whole surface of the leaf. The under side of the leaf is pure light yellow. When completely shaded the color is almost a pure yellow, but never turns green nor does it burn or look unsightly when exposed to the strongest rays; it simply takes on more of the hue which reminds one of a partly shaded sunset with the horizon light in yellow and red. The habit of the plant is excellent. It is a clean, strong grower, branches well and has fine, large foliage. It is well fixed, as none has gone back to the parent in color or habit. It has been named Sunset, appropriately, and Mr. Sedlmeier plans to disseminate it in a year or two.

CYPRESS SHINGLES BEST

That boiler room must be covered, and if you would have the entire Greenhouse job uniformly standard, Cypress shingles must be used. No other wood will withstand the action of the elements like Cypress; all the most notable endurance records in the history of shingles were made by Cypress shingles.

Read from the report of the U. S. Gov't, in Bulletin No. 95, Forest Service, Department of Agriculture:

A shingle roof on a house at Greenwich, Conn., was said to have lasted 250 years; another in Brooklyn, N. Y., was recorded to have lasted 228 years, and still another, at Clifton, Staten Island, was still doing business after 200 years of continuous service. Cypress shingle roofs at New Orleans, La., that are 100 years old are no curiosity—plenty of them.

There is no discount on a Cypress shingle roof.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

BUILDING A BIGGER BULB BUSINESS

How the average window display of bulbs, which to the layman has the appearance of an onion exhibit at a county fair, may be made really efficient by the use of a Dutch girl figure and artificial blooms of hyacinths, tulips and narcissi. A suggestion capable of elaboration.

DESPITE the delay in the delivery of the fall bulbs and the reports of short crops in France and Holland, the appearances are that the quantities imported this season will be the largest in the history of the trade. The cause given for this is the stock one of the hour—the European war. The Holland growers, who heretofore have saved most of their choicest bulbs for critical European buyers and too often palmed off the “seconds” on less particular American customers, have been in a dilemma, so to speak. The greater part of their European business has been cut off by the war and the British embargo, so that many of them have been making unusual efforts to make sales in the American market. While not desiring to disturb supplies already contracted for, some of the exporters are said to have made extremely attractive quotations earlier in the season.

The Bulb Window.

Importers in the United States have been willing to take hold strongly and it is reasonable to assume that a larger quantity of bulbs will have to be sold this fall, and that the bulk of the greater supply will have to be moved at retail. The mail-order seed houses, as usual, have issued their fall catalogues featuring bulbs, and perhaps many florists who handle bulbs at retail, whether located in city or country, are contemplating getting out some sort of literature to assist in increasing their sales this autumn. But whatever the form of sales promotion employed, for the local bulb business there is no sales-making force so effective and economical as the display window. That most seedsmen and florists are aware of this is attested to by the annual autumnal crop of bulb window displays.

Now these window displays, at least those seen by the writer, consist mainly of small baskets neatly filled with the different kinds of bulbs, with each of the exact little piles labeled and priced. Windows of this description may sell the bulbs displayed, true, but there is something radically wrong with them, and if this wrong is corrected their ability to sell bulbs surely will be greatly enhanced.

A Fact That Counts.

The trouble is that the average retailer does not get far enough away from his business to see it in the right perspective. He does not seem to have had the leisure, leisure in this case being defined as that profitable time or opportunity to get far enough away from the business to see it as it really is. To the man outside, the average bulb window looks like a display of so many onions of different colors and shapes. The man inside, behind the counter, who buys his hyacinth, tulip and narcissus bulbs by the thousand, seems to forget that the ultimate consumer actually buys, not the bulbs, but the flowers they will produce in the spring. While the bulbs constitute the article exchanged for the money across the counter, the amateur gardener really sees and purchases them for the potency within that will be flowers in spring.

The window to sell the most bulbs, then, should not only show the bulbs for sale, but also the flowers the bulbs will produce. Some of the retailers have reasoned this out and supplemented their bulb displays with highly colored lithographs of tulip, hyacinth and narcissus blooms. But why not make the advertising more realistic? As bulbous plants in flower are out of the question in fall, why not utilize the artificial replicas of hyacinths, tulips or narcissi, such as manufactured and offered for sale by the supply houses? A large number of artificial flowers is not required and they will serve for years if packed away where they will keep clean.

The Illustration.

The accompanying illustration, which depicts a window used in the spring as a drive on bulbous cut flowers and potted plants, is printed here merely as a suggestion for a fall bulb window. By substituting artificial tulips, hyacinths or narcissi for the natural flowers shown, and by placing the various bulbs in the near foreground, the retailer would have at his service a bulb window psychologically correct from a sales or advertising standpoint. In place of the girl it could show a little Dutch boy in wooden shoes and such a window surely would be much more effective than the average bulb window one sees each autumn. It would suggest to the pedestrian the possibilities of his own garden; artificial flowers would give him visions of his spring garden, filled with beautiful blooms like those in the window. And right there before him would be the bulbs, at such a small cost per dozen! Result, more business.

A Window Full of Dutch Bulbs is Tame Compared to This.

Cultural Directions.

There is another point that the retailer of bulbs should not overlook, which, while outside his province, is of much importance. Inasmuch as the customer buys bulbs for the flowers they give in the spring, each sale of bulbs really is not completed until spring and the flowers arrive. If the bulbs fail or produce poor blooms because of improper culture, the customer will be dissatisfied and inclined to blame the bulbs rather than the real cause; and the displeased customer as a rule procures his next supply of bulbs from "the other fellow." It therefore behooves the florist who aims to build a bigger bulb business to see that each buyer is instructed as to the culture of bulbs. Either printed slips with directions should accompany each sale, or every salesperson on the floor should be capable of giving the buyers planting instructions, whether the bulbs are intended for beds or borders outdoors or for winter-flowering in pots indoors. Among other things, the amateur should be told when is the best planting time; he should be given hints about the best soil; he should be told how deep to plant; he should be told that tulips and hyacinths, separately and of one variety only, make the best showing in rectangular and circular beds.

The Country Florist's Chance.

All this may seem like borrowing trouble, but it is a service that counts and makes for satisfied customers. The retailer who puts himself in his customers' shoes, studies their garden problems and requirements, helps them to buy and to plant their bulbs rather than merely sell them the bulbs, will render a gilt-edged service that will have a far-reaching effect on his prosperity.

For the country florist there is room for great development in the bulb business and every country florist should assist to develop this field. He should plant one or two beds on his home grounds or at his greenhouses. It is a good kind of advertisement. Everybody is interested in the flowers that bloom in the spring. They are cheering after the long winter and for that reason appeal with particular force to us all.

Because hyacinths, tulips, etc., do not bloom until spring, many forget to buy and plant the bulbs until spring comes and their neighbors' flowers are a belated remainder. The florist should advertise his bulbs as soon as they come in and keep up the advertising day after day until he is either sold out or it is too late to plant. And what better time than now to plan bulb windows that will register high on the long scale of sales efficiency the very day frost clears the beds of their summer plants?

DUTCH BULBS

FLOWERING THEM FOR MARKET.

Some Notes for Novices.

The Dutch bulbs are again to hand and probably the majority of florists have received at least a portion of their stock. If the soil has been prepared in advance, as previously suggested, and there is an ample supply of flats, pans and pots, the sooner the bulbs are got into the soil the better. Of course it is possible to plant tulips and narcissi as late as December and still get fair results, but, speaking broadly, all Dutch stock should be in the soil before November 1 if it is intended for forcing. The longer bulbs lie in the cases or bags the more they will fritter away their strength. If you want early bulbous flowers you must plant early. All varieties need a certain number of weeks in the soil to make the necessary root and top growth to make them fit for forcing.

Each year we hear some doleful talk about bulbous flowers being overdone and wholesale markets glutted with them at certain periods. Last winter and spring bulbous stock sold remarkably well in all the big markets and unless all signs fail business the coming season will be better than ever. Some florists do not grow bulbs, but it is safe to say that they are indispensable to the country florist who does a retail trade and who has numerous orders for floral designs. The appended notes are intended as suggestions and helpful hints to the many who are new in the business, or who have not yet done much in bulb forcing.

Tulips.

Only a few varieties of the early tulips are of real commercial value, these being naturally of moderate price. It is always well, however, to try one or two additional sorts, especially where a good retail trade is done.

The query often is heard: "What tulips are best for Christmas flowering?" As a matter of fact, I doubt if it will pay any country florist to endeavor to get Christmas tulips. Only one or two varieties are amenable to early forcing and it is absolutely necessary to have them in the soil at the earliest possible date to have any success with them. The little Duc van Thol is the popular Christmas tulip in Covent Garden market, London, but here they never seem to have attained any great degree of favor.

Rose, white and scarlet colors may be had and all at low rates. White Hawk is a beautiful pure white early tulip, one which always comes white and comes in a little ahead of the popular La Reine, the most heavily grown of all forcing tulips. Early in the season the petals are delicate pink. Toward spring they come pure white. By growing it dark it is possible to have early flowers nearly pure white. Thomas Moore, rich orange, is a good forcer. As a scarlet Vermilion Brilliant is good. The leading yellow for forcing is Yellow Prince. This is equally good as an outdoor bedder. Rose Luisante, of a dark, silky rose pink color, is a popular market variety, while Queen of the Netherlands, of a beautiful light blush pink shade, carries a big flower on a long stem and sells on sight. The old Cottage Maid is a little cheaper than Queen of the Netherlands but not in the same class for quality.

By way of variety the following might advantageously be grown in moderate quantities: Pink Beauty, a fine, stocky grower of cerise pink color, not adaptable, however, for early forcing; Flamingo, brilliant pink on a white ground, and the old, showy Keizerskroon, red, margined golden yellow.

One or two double tulips are necessary and of these Murillo is easily the leader. Not only is it fine for cutting, but it is the best of all tulips for pan culture, being particularly fine for Easter. Tea Rose, also called Brimstone Beauty, apricot yellow in color, is another fine double for cutting, as is Couronne d'Or, golden yellow tinged with orange.

During the last year or two Darwin tulips have appeared in considerable numbers on the markets. These carry much longer stems than the early tulips. They can be successfully forced to bloom satisfactorily from the middle of February onward. Pride of Haarlem, of a rosy scarlet color, is the best of all the Darwins for forcing. William Copeland, of a delicate lavender, when forced is also good. Other good sorts for forcing are Clara Butt, salmon pink; Mme. Krelage, rosy pink, and Gretchen, soft pink. Try a few of these Darwins and I am sure you will grow more a year hence.

Narcissi.

The French-grown bulbs of Trumpet major narcissi can be had in flower for Christmas, but I doubt if they are a paying proposition even at $6 per hundred blooms, as many of the bulbs will come blind. Early in January, however, they are all right and are preferred to Dutch-grown Trumpet majors. Golden Spur is the most widely grown and popular of the single narcissi. French, Guernsey and Dutch-grown bulbs follow one another in succession, the last named producing the largest flowers. Silver Spur, with a white perianth and golden yellow trumpet, is a beautiful forcing daffodil, similar to Empress in color. Emperor is well worth growing. Princeps is a cheap and easily forced daffodil. The perianth is somewhat flimsy, but for an inexpensive variety this still is worth growing. Victoria is a grand variety with a creamy white perianth and rich yellow trumpet, not suitable for early forcing, but a stocky grower and the finest of all daffodils for pans. Of the shorter trumpet varieties poeticus ornatus, Sir Watkin, Barrii conspicuus and Mrs. Langtry are good. Ornatus may be had in bloom by the end of January and is a popular variety.

The only double narcissus of commercial value is Von Sion. The flowers are somewhat coarse and lack the beauty of the single varieties, but it still is grown in large numbers. Do not overlook the little Campernelle jonquils, which flower early and are most fragrant. The variety C. rugulosus is the best to grow.

If restricted to half a dozen narcissi, the following would be the most serviceable for the average florist: Trumpet major, Golden Spur, Silver Spur, ornatus, Victoria and Campernelle rugulosus.

Hyacinths.

Hyacinths are higher priced bulbs than tulips and narcissi and have never attained the same commercial value for forcing purposes for setting. In pots and pans, however, there is a strong call for hyacinths in late winter and it is here that florists can grow them most profitably.

The Dutch miniature hyacinths are used to some extent for forcing. These are less expensive than the Roman hyacinths, which they follow in blooming.

New Store of Edward A. Forter, Successor to Sunderbruch's Sons, Cincinnati.

Good varieties of these miniature hyacinths to grow are: Gertrude, deep rose; La Grandesse, pure white; King of the Blues, deep blue; Queen of the Blues, light blue; Moreno, bright pink.

For pan culture it is better to try second-size bulbs of named sorts rather than the miniatures. First-size bulbs and those of exhibition size produce fancy spikes, but their cost is too high for the average florist.

In potting or boxing hyacinth bulbs see that they are barely covered with soil; in fact, it is just as well to leave the nose of the bulb peeping above the soil.

"buy flowers almost daily for their own use—they buy flowers almost as regularly as they buy food and clothing—and they only buy flowers to give away on infrequent occasions. While they come to me for the bouquet they wish to send to the debutante, or for the wreath they wish to send to some public person's funeral, for ordinary needs, which far outnumber the special requirements, they go to the man around the corner who makes no pretense to style. I get the chance to serve them when they want to make a 'front,' but the best flower buyers do not often care much for that. At the same time, to maintain my reputation as the 'best' florist I must give stock and service more costly than any other florist gives. That it is costly out of proportion to the prices I am able to charge, almost any florist can see; my margin of profit is not so great as the margin of the man who merely tries to sell fairly good flowers without any frills of service. While my business goes on year after year, it is spasmodic, constituted of a demand for special flowers for special occasions; it is profitable, but not more profitable than many a much smaller and less exacting business is, and it is not growing to any perceptible degree, certainly not so rapidly as the business of the man who sells flowers instead of style."

A CALL TO THE F. T. D.

President Wm. F. Gude and Ex-President Irwin Bertermann, together with the directors and other officers, desire your presence at the meeting called in Chicago, October 11 and 12, at 9 a. m., at the La Salle hotel. The immense growth of our organization, which was instrumental in the selling of five million dollars' worth of flowers last year, needs your presence:

Because—New by-laws and regulations will be proposed.

Because—The increasing of membership dues will be considered.

Because—You should show your appreciation of work done gratuitously by the officers in the past, by attending.

Because—Your coöperation and suggestions are necessary.

Because—It is going to be a record-

THE RETAIL

FLORIST.....

FORTER'S NEW STORE.

Edward A. Forter, successor to A. Sunderbruch's Sons, Cincinnati, by whom he was for years employed, recently opened a new store at 128 West Fourth street, in the heart of the Cincinnati shopping district. The illustration shows the modern character of the equipment—no counters except a small one on which to wrap parcels; no barrier between the florist and his customers. The store front contains a large window, showing the stock and the interior to good advantage. In the rear there is a large shipping room, with a well appointed workroom in the basement.

"CAPITALIZING VANITY."

In The Review of September 21 there appeared an interesting article under the head "Capitalizing Vanity," describing how a retail florist had built the largest and most profitable business in his town by catering to that characteristic of human nature which causes people to want to make a "front." The account was from one of the popular weeklies and it did not mention the name of the florist, so that it is not possible to check up from our own knowledge of the situation, which quite possibly might be greater than that of the writer of the article.

Most florists well acquainted with the retail flower stores of the United States recognize that one store in a middle western metropolis has the reputation in that city of being the best flower store in town. Its proprietor tells a different tale from the one told by the writer in the popular magazine.

"It is all very well," says this florist, "to be known as the best florist in town, but the fact is I see my customers supplying their daily needs at the store that is not 'best,' though they come to me when they want something special." This florist has prospered; he still is doing well, but that things do not always come his way is clear:

"The better class of people, among whom I get my patronage," he says, breaking meeting of the retail trade of this country.

Because—Every phase of the business will be discussed and much information will be obtained.

Because—You owe this duty to your business as well as the F. T. D. If you are considering time and money you will be repaid a good many times.

If absolutely impossible to attend, jot down suggestions or experiences and forward President Wm. F. Gude, before October 5; also notify me in case you cannot attend this meeting.

Very truly yours for a greater F. T. D. Albert Pochelon, Sec'y.

VEGETABLE GROWERS' MEETING AT CHICAGO

A NINTH MILESTONE PASSED.

The Best Meeting Yet.

It was at Cleveland in 1908 that a band of enthusiastic growers of vegetables under glass got together for two days of good-fellowship and the discussion of their various problems, incidentally organizing the Vegetable Growers' Association of America. The original plan was to admit only growers who have glass, but as the organization developed this policy was abandoned and of those attending the ninth annual meeting this week at Hotel La Salle, Chicago, only about one-third have greenhouses. The registration on the opening day was close to 350, but this included committeemen, local gardeners, exhibitors, florists and the wives of members. The principal attendance is from Detroit and Cleveland, a party of forty-five coming from the former city. In his response to the addresses of welcome E. A. Dunbar, of Ashtabula, said the attendance would double before the final adjournment on Friday.

Many of the growers under glass find this too busy a season, with the present labor shortage, to attend, but it is apparent that it is an outing for most of the visitors, with, at the same time, an earnest desire to learn. Vegetable growing has been more or less a matter of chance, especially with the outdoor man, who has worked from dawn to dusk with no chance to study except in the school of experience. But it is becoming more of a science, especially as glass is being added—and there are exhibitors in the trades' display who say their business in building vegetable houses has increased faster the last five years than in building for florists; also that the vegetable growers are building the finest type of wide, iron-frame houses, building better on the average than florists do.

The Opening Session.

President M. L. Ruetenik, of Cleveland, was not able to be present at the opening session, September 26, and Vice-president Howard W. Selby, of Philadelphia, occupied the chair. He is a seller, not a grower, but he is a live wire and thoroughly conversant with the growers' problems. In his address he commented on the fact that recently better prices have been obtained for vegetables than has been the case for several years, but he insisted that the prices have not advanced in proportion to the higher cost of labor, fertilizer, seeds and other materials. Labor scarcity is the growers' greatest problem today, he said. Of constructive work he declared advertising to increase the consumption of fresh vegetables to be one of the things the association should undertake.

Treasurer E. A. Dunbar, of Cleveland, reported a balance of $603.34 a year ago, cash receipts of $532.91 and expenditures of $427.48, leaving a present balance of $708.77.

Secretary S. W. Severance, of Louisville, reported that 132 members had paid the $2 fee for 1916, that forty had paid $3 for new memberships, that four had transferred from annual to life memberships and six new life members had come in, making the paid membership 155 for 1916, with sixty-one life members. He reported eighty-four in arrears for 1915, forty-six in arrears for 1914 and thirty-five in arrears for 1913, none of whom are counted as members for 1916. He recommended the appointment of a committee to revise the by-laws, especially with respect to the qualifications for membership, and report at the 1917 convention.

An invitation was presented to hold the 1917 meeting at Springfield, Mass.

Three Excellent Addresses.

The program took the excellent course of limiting the set papers and providing ample time for what are called round-table discussions, although the only table is the secretary's; the members speak from their chairs on the floor. But the afternoon of September 26 was the occasion of three excellent addresses, as follows:

Illustrated address, "Certain Diseases of Truck Crops and Their Control," L. R. Jones, Professor of Plant Pathology, Wisconsin State Experiment Station, Madison, Wis.

Illustrated address, "Soil Fertility in Relation to Market Gardening," Henry G. Bell, Agronomist, Soil Improvement Committee, National Fertilizer Association, Chicago, Ill.

Address, "Refrigeration in Relation to Marketing Vegetables," Arnold H. Goetz, Mechanical and Refrigerating Engineer, Kroeschell Bros. Co., Chicago, Ill.

These were practical talks, dealing in an instructive way with technical matters that a grower has little time to study.

The daylight hours of September 27 were devoted to outdoor affairs, but the evening was the occasion of a "Better Seeds" session, under the leadership of C. E. Durst, of Urbana, Ill. The program was as follows:

Report of Committee on Nomenclature and Varieties of Vegetables, C. E. Durst, Secretary. "The Seedsman's Attitude Toward Nomenclature," Leonard H. Vaughan, Chicago, Ill.

Report of Committee on Seed Inspection and Certification, D. N. Shoemaker, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

"The Relation of the Seedsman's Disclaimer to the Purchase of Vegetable Seeds," A. L. Stone, President American Seed Analysts' Association, Madison, Wis.

Round-table Discussion, "Seed Selection and Plant Improvement for the Vegetable Grower," A. T. Erwin, Iowa Agricultural College, Ames, Iowa, Leader.

Committees on nominations, etc., were announced.

The Inspection Trip.

In spite of the rainy weather that prevailed September 27, everyone was ready and eager for the automobile trip to the north side gardens and the inspection of the Poeschlmann greenhouses at Morton Grove. The delay incident to the weather postponed the starting for an hour, but once on the way the ninety or so automobiles made good the loss of time. Lunch was served at the Wayside Inn, Morton Grove, and after a short, informal session at the inn, the trip was resumed and the return to the city made by 6 o'clock.

The Closing Sessions.

The program for the remaining days of the convention is:

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 28, 6 A. M.

Visit to South Water street produce market and West Randolph street farmers' market.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 28, 9 A. M.

Round-table Discussion, "Greenhouse Problems," R. L. Watts, Director Pennsylvania State Experiment Station, State College, Pa., Leader.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 28, 11 A. M.

Round-table Discussion, "Marketing Vegetables," H. W. Selby, Philadelphia, Pa., Leader.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 28, 2 P. M.

"Marketing" Session Continued.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 9 A. M.

Round-table Discussion, "Extension Work for Vegetable Growers," C. W. Waid, Michigan Agricultural College, East Lansing, Mich., Leader. Entertainment for visiting ladies, exact time to be announced.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 11 A. M.

Report of Committee on Resolutions. Report of Committee on Nominations. Election of Officers for 1917.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 6 P. M.

Annual Banquet, Hotel La Salle.

The Local Management.

The officers of the association are strong in their words of appreciation of the local management, which was in the hands of the allied trades people in Chicago. It seems that the arrangements are the best ever, the entertainment program the most elaborate and the whole affair planned on a scale new to the association. The general committee had Fred Lautenschlager as chairman, E. F. Kurowski as treasurer, and Jas. B. Foley as secretary. The special committee chairmen were: Finance, Geo. Sykes; publicity, Melvin Ryder; hotel, W. L. Kroeschell; program, H. G. Bell; entertainment, D. J. Coyne; banquet, Leonard Vaughan; trades' exhibits, Alfred Dietsch; reception, J. E. Pollworth. To Mr. Lautenschlager special credit is given and when he spoke in welcoming the convention he received the heartiest applause of the day.

THE TRADES' DISPLAY.

Everything for the Greenhouse.

The trades' display in connection with the meeting of the Vegetable Growers' Association of America at Hotel La Salle, Chicago, this week is the principal feature of interest to greenhouse managers who do not grow vegetables. While the exhibition was prepared especially to appeal to those who grow vegetables under glass, it has an almost equal interest for those who grow cut flowers and pot plants.

The exhibition occupies every foot of space in the great ballroom on the nineteenth floor of the hotel. The rates for space were from 40 cents to 60 cents per square foot; the committee sold every inch that was available and might easily have sold more. It is by far the largest display that ever has been made at a meeting of the vegetable growers and reflects much credit upon the committee in charge, which was: Alfred Dietsch, chairman; Rudolph Kurowski, George Sykes, Jr., J. E. Pollworth, Leonard Vaughan, John Leonard, W. E. Wehner, Arnold Ringier.

Greenhouse Building Materials.

Larger than any other single feature of the exhibition is the showing by the Chicago manufacturers of greenhouse building material. Those exhibiting in this department are:

The John C. Moninger Co., Chicago, occupies one end of the hall with an exhibit that includes a model of its all-steel greenhouse, each part exactly one-eighth actual size. There also is a showing of the principal parts of the greenhouse in full size models.

Lord & Burnham Co., Chicago and elsewhere, has brought a boiler into the ballroom and staged it in one of its iron-frame houses, complete in all details. There also is a large showing of parts and printed matter.

The A. Dietsch Co., Chicago, has staged a full size section of its well-known short-span house for vegetables, with cypress gutters on 8-foot pipe posts.

The American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., Chicago, which this week is completing its first year in business, shows photographs of the ranges it has built and shows parts and fittings to illustrate the special features of its construction.

The Ickes-Braun Mill Co., Chicago, has a booth in which it displays details of its construction.

The Foley Greenhouse Mfg. Co., Chicago, has erected one of its iron-frame greenhouses, with tables on which to show special features of the construction.

The Garland Mfg. Co., Des Plaines, has erected a section of an iron-frame house, the well known Garland iron gutter.

The Advance Co., Richmond, Ind., shows its ventilating apparatus, pipe carriers and greenhouse fittings.

The Southern Cypress Manufacturers' Association shows a model bungalow in miniature, also many photographs, samples and booklets, all dealing with the merits of cypress for the special purposes that interest florists and gardeners.

Greenhouse Heating.

Kroeschell Bros. Co., Chicago, widely known as a manufacturer of greenhouse boilers, shows these by photographs, but the principal feature of the exhibit is an ice machine in operation. No doubt there have been many cold deals on this ballroom floor, but nothing to compare with this. The apparatus is a small model of the same outfit that has been installed recently in several Chicago wholesale cut flower establishments, among them the E. C. Amling Co., A. L. Randall Co. and Kyle & Foerster.

The Superior Machine & Boiler Works, Chicago, has a booth for the exploitation of the Superior hot water boiler.

M. B. Skinner & Co., Chicago, show steam specialties, including the popular pipe repair clamp.

H. Munson, Chicago, shows boiler flues and clamp pipe fittings.

The Hansel Grate Co., Chicago, shows a model of its firebox rocking grate, the special feature of which is that there are no fingers to burn off. The bars consist of separate sections for each inch, affording many economies.

The Crane Co., Chicago, shows a steam trap.

Fertilizers and Insecticides.

The Kentucky Tobacco Product Co., Louisville, shows its line of nicotine insecticides.

The Hammond Paint & Slug Shot Works, Beacon, N. Y., shows insecticides, paint and putty.

The Farmers' & Florists' Fertilizer Co., Chicago, is making a display of Aetna brand tankage.

Brownell Improvement Co., Chicago, shows agricultural (pulverized) limestone, with literature about its value to the soil.

The Corona Chemical Co., Milwaukee and Newark, N. J., show arsenical insecticides.

Armour & Co., Chicago, show their line of commercial fertilizers.

The soil improvement committee of the National Fertilizer Association shows commercial fertilizers and literature regarding their use.

Seeds and Tools.

The Leonard Seed Co., Chicago, shows a large line of market gardeners' seeds.

Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, shows bulbs, plants, market gardeners' seeds and Iron Age implements.

The Beeman Garden Tractor Co., Minneapolis, seems to gain the attention of more growers than any other exhibitor, the display consisting of what is known as the garden tractor and walking machine. It is a mechanical power cultivator. Incidentally, the working of the machine was demonstrated at the establishment of Poehlmann Bros. Co., Morton Grove, when the party arrived there on the visiting tour September 27.

S. L. Allen & Co., Philadelphia, show the well known Planet Jr. line of seeders, weeder and cultivators.

The Skinner Irrigation Co., Troy, O., has a booth in which the merits of its irrigation system are demonstrated.

Miscellaneous Exhibits.

One of the interesting features of the exhibition is the showing made by the state universities; the schools maintained at the public expense actually are beginning to advertise their service to the public. Four of these gardening instruction institutions are making large exhibits, showing the work they are doing, with the idea of gaining the interest and support of the trade and increasing the enrollment in the schools. These institutions are the Horticultural Department of Purdue University, La Fayette, Ind.; the Ohio State University and Experiment Station, Wooster, O.; the Division of Vegetable Gardening of the College of Agriculture of the University of Illinois, Urbana; the Division of Vegetable Growing, Department of Horticulture, Pennsylvania State College, State College, Pa.

Percy Jones, Chicago wholesale florist, has a booth for the reception of friends.

The American Mutual Cyclone & Hail Insurance Association is represented and a number of horticultural and agricultural publications have booths.

In the main hall of the nineteenth floor, between the exhibition room and the meeting room, is a large showing of vegetables grown by the school children of Cook county, Ill., under the five country life directors employed by the county.

Fred Holm, vice-president of the Cook County Truck Growers' Association, also makes a large display of vegetables.

THE ANNUAL BUSINESS SESSION.

Officers Elected.

The yearly business meeting of the American Dahlia Society was held in New York September 26, President Vincent occupying the chair, with some fifty members and others present. The officers for 1916 were reelected, as follows:

President—Richard Vincent, Jr., White Marsh, Md.

Secretary—J. Harrison Dick, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Treasurer—F. R. Austin, Tuckerton, N. J.

Vice-presidents—Geo. L. Stillman, Westerly, R. I.; Leonard Barron, Garden City, N. Y.; J. B. Norton, College Park, Md.; W. W. Wilmore, Denver, Colo.

Executive Committee—Geo. W. Kerr, Doylestown, Pa.; I. S. Hendrickson, Flowerfield, L. I., N. Y.; J. Duthie, Oyster Bay, N. Y.; P. W. Popp, Mamaroneck, N. Y.

Nomenclature Committee—Prof. F.

H. Hall, Geneva, N. Y.; L. K. Peacock, Berlin, N. J.; Geo. W. Fraser, Storrs, Conn.; E. S. Brown, East Moriches, L. I., N. Y.; James Kirby, Huntington, N. Y.; A. L. Miller, Jamaica, N. Y.; Joseph Lane, Garden City, N. Y.; Rev. Wm. Wykoff.

By-laws Amended.

The annual report of President Vincent recommended certain changes in the by-laws, which were adopted. The initiation fee is canceled and dues become $2 per year, with $5 for honorary membership.

Secretary Dick reported a membership of 169 active and seventy-five associate members. He reported on the trials of dahlias at Geneva, N. Y., and St. Paul, Minn., and on the progress of affiliation, Short Hills and Oyster Bay having come in. Four issues of the quarterly bulletin have been published and in them have appeared a recommended scale of points for judging, a classification of types of dahlias and a definition of an amateur, all of which were adopted and made official.

Treasurer Austin reported $839.50 received from the previous secretary and $177.10 from Mr. Dick; total, $1,016.60. Disbursements were $769.61, of which $301.87 was for printing, leaving a balance of $246.99.

The selection of the next meeting place was left to the executive committee.

The business meeting was followed by a banquet at the Navarre hotel, thirty-four attending, including the officers, judges, press representatives, members and five ladies.

THE DAHLIA SHOW.

Unfavorable Season Affects It.

The exhibition in connection with the annual meeting of the American Dahlia Society in New York this week was staged in the Engineering building as a part of the eighty-fifth fair of the American Institute. While the exhibits occupied all the available space, mental comparison with the show of a year ago makes it apparent that the flowers of many growers have suffered severely from the unfavorable weather. But the show nevertheless was an excellent one and the attendance of the public was large from the moment the doors opened.

Most of the exhibits were from private gardeners and amateurs, but a number of trade growers exhibited, the gold medal display of W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, being the great feature of the show. It is said to have been the finest display of dahlias, for both variety, quality and arrangement, ever staged in America. Max Schling was the only retailer exhibiting. Large displays not for competition were made by R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co., White Marsh, Md.; George L. Stillman, West-erly, R. I.; W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J., and Cottam & Son, Wappingers Falls.

The Awards.

The judges were a quintette of well known private gardeners, Messrs. Duff, Norton, McNichols, Fraser and McKenzie.

The special premiums provided by the Dahlia Society's friends were awarded as follows:

Finest and most meritorious display of dahlias, any or all classes, grasses or other foliage allowed, quality and arrangement to count—W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, gold medal.

General collection containing any or all types, arranged for effect, space fifty square feet—N. H. Cottam & Son, Wappingers Falls, N. Y. first; W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J., second.

Display of six vases of giant single dahlias, distinct varieties—P. W. Popp, Mamaroneck, N. Y., first.

Decoration of dahlias, any design, any foliage—Young & Nugent, New York, first.

Vase of decorative dahlias for effect, any foliage—W. A. Manda, first.

New peony-flowered dahlias, twelve flowers, not less than four varieties—P. W. Popp, first; Harding, second.

Vase of mixed dahlias—Wm. Noonan, first; Sullivan, second.

Modern cactus dahlias, twelve flowers, not less than four varieties—C. Louis Alling, first; Petrie, second.

Best exhibit in the amateur classes—Arpenter, Fort Thomas, Ky., first.

A new seedling cactus dahlia, shown by an amateur—James Duthie, Oyster Bay, N. Y., first.

New seedling dahlia, to be named for Mrs. Gertrude Dahl-Mordcau, Charleston, N. C.—Mrs. C. H. Stout, Short Hills, N. J., first.

Largest dahlia flower in the show—Gowans, first.

Smallest dahlia flower in the show—J. P. Sorenson, Essex Falls, N. J., first.

The premiums offered by the American Institute were awarded as follows:

COMMERCIAL GROWERS.

Collection of fifty varieties, one flower of each, at least four types—W. D. Hathaway, first; Maurice Fuld, second.

Collection of twenty-five varieties, one flower of each, at least three types—W. D. Hathaway, first; C. Louis Alling, second.

Collection of ten varieties, one flower of each—W. D. Hathaway, first; Howell, second.

Display of single dahlias, 100 flowers—Mills & Co., first.

Display of cactus dahlias, 100 flowers—W. D. Hathaway, first; Walker, second.

Display of pompon dahlias, 100 flowers—W. D. Hathaway, first; Allen, second.

GARDENERS AND AMATEURS.

Collection of fifty varieties, one flower of each, at least four types—James Kirby, first; Joseph Robinson, second.

Collection of twenty-five varieties, one flower of each, at least three types—Wm. Noonan, first; James Kirby, second.

Collection of twelve varieties, one flower of each—P. W. Popp, first; Wm. Noonan, second.

Display of cactus dahlias, fifty flowers—Arthur Daly, first; James Kirby, second.

Six varieties cactus, three each, long stems—Gowans, first.

Six varieties pompons, three each, long stems—J. P. Sorenson, first.

Six varieties single, three each, long stems—W. H. Waite, first.

Twelve cactus, distinct varieties, short stems—Arthur Daly, first.

OPEN TO ALL.

Twenty-five show dahlias, yellow, one named variety—John Lewis Childs, Floral Park, N. Y., first.

Twenty-five show dahlias, white, one named variety—W. D. Hathaway, first; John Lewis Childs, second.

Twenty-five show dahlias, pink, one named variety—Maurice Fuld, first; Cottam & Son, second.

Twenty-five show dahlias, any other color, one named variety—Maurice Fuld, first; Cottam & Son, second.

Twenty-five decorative dahlias, white, one named variety—Maurice Fuld, first; W. D. Hathaway, second.

Twenty-five decorative dahlias, pink, one named variety—Maurice Fuld, first; W. A. Manda, second.

Twenty-five decorative dahlias, any other color, one named variety—W. A. Manda, first; Cottam & Son, second.

Twenty-five cactus dahlias, yellow, one named variety—Maurice Fuld, first.

Twenty-five cactus dahlias, white, one named variety—Maurice Fuld, first.

Twenty-five cactus dahlias, pink, one named variety—Brookcrest Gardens, first; James Linane, Rye, N. Y., second.

Twenty-five cactus dahlias, any other color, one named variety—Maurice Fuld, first; Cottam & Son, second.

Ten varieties peony-flowered dahlias, three each, long stems—Cottam & Son, first.

Ten varieties cactus, three each, long stems—Gowans, first; Doty, second.

Ten varieties decorative, three each, long stems—Cottam & Son, first.

Eight varieties pompons, three each, long stems—Webber, first; C. Louis Alling, second.

Peony-flowered dahlias, six varieties—W. D. Hathaway, first; Miss E. Morehouse, second.

Cactus dahlias, six varieties—Gowans, first; Doty, second.

Show and fancy dahlias, six varieties—Brookcrest Gardens, first; C. Louis Alling, second.

Decorative dahlias, six varieties—W. A. Manda, first; W. D. Hathaway, second.

Pompon dahlias, six varieties—Brookcrest Gardens, first; Webber, second.

Single dahlias, six varieties—Mrs. O. P. Chapman, Jr., first.

Twenty-four cactus dahlias, distinct varieties, short stems—Arthur Daly, first; W. D. Hathaway, second.

Twenty-four decorative and hybrid show, distinct varieties, short stems—W. D. Hathaway, first.

Twelve scarlet dahlias, any one named variety, long stems—Hunter & Son, first; Mrs. O. P. Chapman, Jr., second.

Twelve white dahlias, any one named variety, long stems—John Lewis Childs, first; Jas. Linane, second.

Twelve yellow dahlias, any one named variety, long stems—W. D. Hathaway, first; John Lewis Childs, second.

Twelve pink dahlias, any one named variety, long stems—Maurice Fuld, first; C. Louis Alling, second.

Twelve variegated dahlias, any one named variety, long stems—Doty, first.

OPEN LETTERS from READERS

CUT FLOWERS FOR THE SOUTH.

In The Review for September 7 there was an article dealing with the difficulty growers and wholesale houses in the north experience in the delivery of salable stock to the dealers in far southern districts, with a few suggestions by a speaker at the convention of Texas florists as to relief for the trouble.

In this reply it is not my intention to discuss the personal endeavor of each party to a transaction to realize the lion's share of the bargain, nor would I be absolutely sure that all the dealers in the south would be any more fair in judging a shipment unsalable, and therefore demanding credit for it, than some grower in the north would be in trying to dispose of stock of inferior quality; and I will therefore confine myself to the merits and demerits of the proposed remedies.

We shall now consider the first proposition, "More commercial glass." This has been the slogan of many worthy members of our profession in Texas for the last quarter of a century, and great efforts have been made by some of our best growers to master climatic difficulties, with the hope of attaining a more uniform production of staple cut flowers. Much time and money have been wasted in trying to acclimate certain annuals which act as a valuable asset to northern florists during the summer months. Some of this work has, in a measure, been successful, and the writer has been able to observe a gradual improvement in carnation and rose culture during the last twenty years, but it seems still doubtful if southern Texas can make a greenhouse produce a paying crop more than six or seven months in the year, even if thousands of acres were covered with glass, and it would, therefore, still be necessary for the dealers to draw from a northern market at certain times in order to hold and stimulate their trade.

A southern commission house as an alternative seems much more plausible to the writer, but would from necessity require a branch house in some of the northern cut flower centers in order to insure safe shipments to the members of such association, as no grower now conducting a business at a small margin of profit would ever think of consigning his stock with the inevitable element of risk. If shipments from wholesalers to retailers heat in transit, why would those from growers to a commission house be expected to fare better?

The writer, who has on several occasions followed shipments packed in his presence, would certainly be pleased to be shown what error produced a sleepy box of carnations upon arrival in Fort Worth and a salable lot in Houston from the same cut, same varieties, and practically the same time. When these phenomena can be explained and a remedy found, no grower will hesitate to satisfy a claim made by any reliable customer, and it would be far more satisfactory than having to accept ten or fifteen per cent as the full payment on the thousand-dollar account of someone who never complained as long as his credit was good.

Although our Texas friend is perfectly correct in his list of the losses to the retailer as the result of unsatisfactory quality of shipped-in stock, the northern shippers are equally puzzled with regard to breaking even after duplicating every fourth or fifth shipment.

In suggesting a commission house for the Texans, the speaker at their convention made the assertion that "we all have at times some good stock to offer at wholesale," but admits that such a glut would be of short duration and would not warrant the expense of advertising, which of course is logical. But would not more glass increase such overproduction at a time when climatic conditions are most favorable in the south, and could such a surplus be disposed of in adjoining markets when perhaps such overproduction would be national in scope? And are not the northern growers already confronted with this uncertainty, since the erection of larger sheets of glass in the south, and repeatedly receiving notices to cancel standing orders when perhaps their crops have been brought into prime condition with the expectation of supplying such customers? And, therefore, the writer is still in doubt if the retailers in the south have been financially benefited by the spasmodic home production which only is possible at a time when northern stock is also at its best, for they still must call on the northern houses at a time when there is more risk to shipping and less chance to pick up a good quality of stock.

As a conclusion to this letter I would ask the question: Before going to the expense of equipping a commission house, why not let a trusted member of the Texas association spend a few weeks in some of the northern cut flower centers to investigate the methods used by growers and shippers in handling the stock, and thereby ascertain the time between cutting and shipping and other incidentals? This I am sure would meet with the approval of practically every grower. This coöperation would forestall any risk in connection with the proposed undertaking, and also help the northern growers to find "the error of their ways."

THE NEW TWELVE-TWENTY.

M. Rice Co. in New Home.

A year ago the M. Rice Co., of Philadelphia, planned a new building that would give to the business the space, the light and the facilities that it required. Today that building plan has become a reality. September 25 saw the first mail shipments leave the new building, after a week's suspension of business made necessary by moving from 1220 Race street to 1220 Spring Garden street, a distance of four blocks. The following day saw the resumption of shipments by express, by freight and also of local delivery. The transfer of offices, with all the necessary books and paraphernalia, was a mere trifle compared with the task of moving the large stock necessary to carry on a modern florists' supply business. Some idea of the congestion in the old quarters, large as they were, can be gleaned from the fact, that while there is three times as much floor space in the new building as there was in the old, that space is all filled.

The new Rice building is situated on the south side of Spring Garden street. Spring Garden is the widest street in Philadelphia, a street that is made beautiful by a central grass plot that stretches away out toward the park entrance on the west. The Rice building is of reinforced concrete, fifty-four feet wide and over 100 feet deep, five stories surmounting the basement. Each story is of generous height, completely glass covered at front and rear, with generous windows on each side, each floor an exact duplicate of every other.

What the Floors Contain.

Entering from a flight of double steps, through a large doorway ornamented with the Rice coat of arms, the first impression is one of space, an impression that is enhanced as floor after floor is reached. The right of the first floor is devoted to the general offices, where all the clerical force has ample space, wonderful light and every modern appliance for aiding the work. In the corner of this general office is the safe, built into the building like a large closet, with fireproof metal doors and 12-inch concrete walls. The safe is 6x8x8 feet. To the east of the general offices are the private offices of the secretary and treasurer and of the president, both thoroughly equipped. Near by, just in front, is a neat salesman's office.

To the left of the front door is the general display room, where samples of choice staple stock and novelties are on view. The rear, and by far the larger proportion of the first floor, is occupied by the checking department, where all orders are brought together and checked preparatory to shipment. Immediately in the rear of the checking room is the packing room, where the orders are packed and dispatched, and where all incoming goods arrive. This floor is equipped with an electric freight elevator of considerable size and speed and with a chute from outside to the basement below.

The basement is devoted to bulky supplies and those requiring moisture. It is equipped with a self-feeding magazine steam boiler that can be divided in half in mild weather. It is also the temporary home of moss wreaths, magnolia wreaths and any other greens that are heavy or that must not get too dry.

The second floor is devoted to general stock. Here is everything else except baskets. The way this floor has been filled already is surprising.

The third floor is the basket stock room. Some idea of the growth of the basket industry may be formed by reflecting that one whole floor of considerably over 5,000 square feet is devoted to baskets alone. Then remember that these baskets are stacked high, very high, and you have it.

The fourth floor is the basket factory and paint shop. It is equipped with a large cedar tub for soaking the wreaths and willow baskets and with a compressor for spraying the paint over these baskets. This compressor is also equipped with a fan and tube for carrying the paint fumes from the room to the open air.

The fifth floor is the scene of wreath making. Here the fancy wreaths are made up ready for distribution. An ingenious labor-saving device is a wreath-rack on wheels. This rack holds a large number of wreaths; when full it is wheeled to the elevator, lowered to the floor below, given a light spraying of preservative, sent to the drying room if need be, and returned to the floor above until required.

Precautions Against Fire.

The fire precautions are complete. They consist of a fire tower, with sprayers and balconies at each floor, and of a complete system of sprinklers. These sprinklers are placed at regular intervals in water pipes set in the ceiling. Under fire heat of 160 degrees the lead in any sprinkler melts, letting off the water over a radius of 100 feet. The stairway and elevator doors are metal, fireproof.

The many details for storing, handling and quickly dispatching the stock that have been carefully worked out are the result of years of experience in the field of florists' supplies. The building is claimed to be the finest and most perfectly appointed florists' supply home in the country. Phil.

THE BELGIAN PLANT SHIPMENTS.

The following is from a letter sent, September 19, by McHutchison & Co., New York, to their customers:

"With regard to fall shipments of azaleas, etc., from Belgium, we are up against a serious problem; the German authorities will not allow the shipments to leave Belgium unless payment is made to the Belgian growers in advance. This, of course, is impracticable; money cannot be sent into Belgium, and the British will not pass the shipments through the blockade if payment is made to the Belgians, who, of course, are under the control of the German military authorities.

"Up to June, 1915, the German authorities made no objection to the shipping of these goods. The British Order in Council went into effect about that time and British permits were given on the understanding that payment be deposited in a bank in Great Britain to the credit of the shipper, not to be withdrawn without British consent. The German authorities evidently agreed to these conditions, as after much negotiation with the Belgian growers they likewise gave permits to ship and shipments have come forward since on that basis.

"As the strong censorship in Belgium prevents information coming from there, we did not get the exact text of the former agreement made, but from information which reached us in devious ways we understood the British would release, through Belgian banks, part of the funds accumulated in the Banque Belge pour l'Etranger, London. Evidently not enough of the funds were released to satisfy the Germans and that is likely the reason why they now stop shipments.

"We surmounted all previous obstacles, got shipments through from Belgium each fall and spring since the war began, but the German authorities probably acted with deliberation in this case and did not allow sufficient time for pressure to be brought to bear upon them to change or even modify their orders. Still, the situation was almost as bad last fall and yet shipments came, late we admit, but we shipped all our orders, so we are not without hope that this fall's shipments will yet come.

"The United States State Department acted energetically and placed the matter by cable directly before the German authorities in Belgium. The German and British embassies are both lending assistance. Our Holland connections are in touch with Berlin and London, the strong syndicate of Belgian growers is negotiating direct with the German military authorities in Belgium, so you will see that every agency is working to the end that these shipments will come this season.

"We even offered to advance payments through Holland for the shipments, then pay a second time through London, but the British authorities refused to allow the shipments to pass the blockade if payment had been made in advance for them."

TENNESSEANS PLAN SHOW.

The officers of the Tennessee State Florists' Association met at the Geny Bros. store, at Nashville, September 21, to consider plans for the next annual meeting and flower show, which are to be held in January. After considerable discussion it was decided to hold the meeting at the same time as the annual meetings of the nurserymen and the fruit growers. The officers of the other two bodies, some of whom were in the city, were called into a joint session.

It was decided to hold a fruit and flower show in connection with the meetings. The committees visited the City Chamber of Commerce and were promised cooperation in securing proper quarters for the show and the business sessions. Several buildings were then visited, to make sure that proper floor space could be secured. The committees took steps to make the show an assured thing and the work pertaining to the show was left with the president, Karl P. Baum, of Knoxville, and the secretary of the other associations, G. M. Bentley.

There will be a good trade exhibit; a number of the large florists' supply houses have already signified their intentions of making displays. Immediate steps will be taken to make the show worth while and to secure the attendance of every retail florist in the Dallas, Tex.—Albert G. Sprinkle has returned to his position with the Green Floral Co., after two months of illness in a sanitarium.

Hatcher Station, Ga.—R. A. Lee & Co. have become the sole owners of the Chattahoochee Floral Co., dealers in decorative greens.

Fort Worth, Tex.—Among the recruits from the amateurs the trade has Mrs. G. W. Smith, 1712 Sixth avenue, who has a small greenhouse and a garden where she grows plants and cut flowers, sweet peas especially, which for two years she has been selling at wholesale to Fort Worth florists.

College Station, Tex.—The department of horticulture of the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas has just closed a contract with the Lord & Burnham Co. for the construction of one of its all-steel greenhouses, 25x133 feet, as the beginning of a range for experiment for the benefit of the florists of Texas. The house will be modern in every respect and a laboratory for floriculture will be constructed with the service building, all to be fireproof throughout.

Bristol, Tenn.—The Bristol Floral Co. has increased its capital stock from $10,000 to $25,000.

New Orleans, La.—Florists of New Orleans recently took a day off for their outing across Lake Pontchartrain to Mandeville. This was the thirty-second time the New Orleans Horticultural Society held its annual outing, and the third time the women folk of the florists attended. Arrangements for the picnic were in charge of a committee composed of the following: Henry Kraak, Claude Ory, Henry Scheuermann, A. Verlinde, Paul Abele, C. R. Panter, Joseph Steckler.

Dallas, Tex.—A large flower show will be held at Dallas in the early part of November by the Texas State Florists' Association and the Dallas Women's Forum. Plans for the joint exhibit are being completed by committees from two organizations. Cash premiums will aggregate $500 and there will be numerous merchandise prizes. One day will be designated as chrysanthemum day. There also will be a rose day, a violet day, a design and bouquet day, a fern day, etc., and an auction will be held each night of the day's entries.

state. Mr. Baum says that he means to make the Tennessee State Florists' Association the largest state society in the country by the time the meeting is over. Tennessee florists plan to make the state lead in the production of flowers, as it already does in the production of nursery stock. F. B.

FOR THOSE SHADY PLACES.

The constant inquiry of the estate owner, "What can I plant in those shady places where grass will not grow," is satisfactorily answered by advising the use of Pachysandra terminalis, a beautiful evergreen plant growing six inches high, perfectly hardy and enduring dense shade and dry locations as well as flourishing in direct sunlight or moist positions.

Although introduced into this country from Japan some years ago, its full value as a ground cover for shady places does not seem to have become known, possibly owing to the difficulty of propagation and the fact that the unusual method of planting and preparation of the soil are at fault.

The writer, after numerous experiments, finds that the planting of rooted cuttings directly into the permanent positions is much the best method of obtaining quick and lasting effects, as the plants then grow to an even height and quickly fill up all open spaces with their beautiful green foliage, particularly if the top is pinched out the year following the planting, causing from four to six new shoots to break from the crown. On the other hand, with an old field-grown plant the tendency is to assume more of a scraggly effect.

The ground should be first dug and properly manured and fertilized and the rooted cuttings planted about six inches apart, given a good watering and then, if possible, an inch deep mulch of leaf mold or humus. If this is done no further care is required except the suggested pinching the following year, although occasional fertilization is beneficial.

Plantings of pachysandra made in this way have proven highly successful under beech and other trees where such plants as periwinkle and English ivy were failures. Particularly beautiful effects may be obtained by bulb plantings made among the pachysandra to remain year after year.

This planting of such a ground cover adds not only to the beauty of an estate by covering the unsightly bare places with a sheet of deep green in strong contrast to the green of the lawns and tree foliage, but is of extreme benefit to the trees or shrubs under which it is planted, as the falling leaves of the trees and shrubs may remain among the pachysandra, providing a beneficial mulch for both.

Pachysandra is also a suitable border for walks and flower beds, as it is of a low, even growth at all times and may be easily kept within bounds.

THE CHRYSANTHEMUM SOCIETY.

The annual exhibition of the Chrysanthemum Society of America will be held in conjunction with the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society's show at Philadelphia, November 8, 1916.

President Wm. Kleinheinz announces the committees to examine new chrysanthemums for the ensuing year as follows:

Boston—Wm. Nicholson, chairman; James Wheeler, Alex. Montgomery. Ship flowers to chairman, care of W. J. Thurston, manager, Boston Flower Exchange, 1 Winthrop square and Otis street, Boston, Mass.

New York—Eugene Dailledouze, chairman; Wm. H. Duckham, A. Herrington. Ship flowers to New York Cut Flower Co., 55 Twenty-second street, New York, care of chairman.

Philadelphia—A. B. Cartledge, chairman; John Westcott, S. S. Pennock. Ship flowers to A. B. Cartledge, 1514 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Cincinnati—R. Witterstaetter, chairman; Jas. Allen, Henry Schwarz. Ship flowers to chairman, Jabez Elliott Flower Market, care of janitor.

Chicago—N. J. Wiator, chairman; George Asmus, Thomas W. Head. Ship flowers to chairman, 162 North Wabash avenue, Chicago.

Shipments should be made to arrive by 2 p. m. on examination days to receive attention from the committee, must be prepaid to destination and an entry fee of $2 should be forwarded to the secretary not later than Tuesday of the week they are to be examined, or it may accompany the blooms.

Seedlings and sports are both eligible to be shown before these committees, provided the raiser has given them two years' trial to determine their true character. Special attention is called to the rule that sports to receive a certificate must pass at least three of the five committees.

The committees will be in session to examine such exhibits as may be submitted on each Saturday during October and November, the dates of which will be October 7, 14, 21, 28 and November 4, 11, 18, 25.

SAGINAW-BAY CITY, MICH.

The Market.

A week or so ago Jack Frost visited us to the tune of 26 degrees above zero and nipped nearly all outdoor flowers.

The asters did not feel the cold severely, as they were rather hardened by the extremely dry summer, but of late they have been drawn on so heavily that the remainder can only be rated as thirds and fourths. Roses take kindly to the cold spell and only a little heat is required to make them show quality. All the establishments completed the benching of carnations some weeks back and in a week most of the growers expect to cut blooms, which will be a most gratifying relief to all. After that, mums will assert themselves.

The Bay City Fair.

Everyone took an active interest in the Bay City fair and did his best to make the affair a hit. As a result there was a good showing of stock—5,000 square feet of plants, cut flowers and fancy baskets. Credit for the good showing is given the Saginaw-Bay City Floricultural Society, for its hard work in boosting the exhibition and engendering cooperation among the members. Out of 115 prizes the florists captured 100, and all the awards would have been won had it not been an off season.

The Bay City exhibitors were Boehringer Bros., Marsh Floral Co., R. L. Leidy and John Irvine. The principal exhibitors from Saginaw were Zorn & Gaertner, Roethke Floral Co., Grohman the Florist and J. B. Goetz Sons. Many others would have been glad to make exhibits of their own, but stock was too scarce. The small exhibitors bunched what they had with the large exhibitors. The money received was dropped into the strong box of the society, to pay for winter entertainments and the summer outing.

Superintendent John Irvine had everything planned to the queen's taste. The hall was trimmed with oak wreathing and oak boughs. The exhibitors wish to thank F. H. Stevens for the expert manner in which he judged the entries. Those who won were:

Collection of palms, not less than twenty-five specimens—Boehringer Bros., first; J. B. Goetz Sons, second; Marsh Floral Co., third.

Ferns—J. B. Goetz Sons, first; Roethke Floral Co., second.

Coleus, twenty specimens—Roethke Floral Co., first; Boehringer Bros., second; Marsh Floral Co., third.

Geraniums, twenty specimens—J. B. Goetz Sons, first; Roethke Floral Co., second; John Irvine, third.

Begonias—Boehringer Bros., first; Marsh Floral Co., second; Roethke Floral Co., third.

Cannas, ten plants—Boehringer Bros., first; only one entry.

Asters, twenty-five specimen plants, in five colors—Zorn & Gaertner, first; John Irvine, second; R. L. Leidy, third.

 Specimen palm—Boehringer Bros., first; J. B. Goetz Sons, second.
 Specimen ficus—Marsh Floral Co., first; Boehringer Bros., second; J. B. Goetz Sons, third.
 Specimen fern—Marsh Floral Co., first; J. B. Goetz Sons, second; Wm. Roethke Floral Co., third.
 Specimen araucaria—Wm. Roethke Floral Co., first; Boehringer Bros., second; J. B. Goetz Sons, third.
 Specimen salvia—Boehringer Bros., first; J. B. Goetz Sons, second; Marsh Floral Co., third.
 Specimen dahlia—J. B. Goetz Sons, first.
 Specimen Caladium esculentum—Boehringer Bros., first; J. B. Goetz Sons, second; Wm. Roethke Floral Co., third.
 Specimen Asparagus plumosus—Wm. Roethke Floral Co., first; Marsh Floral Co., second; J. B. Goetz Sons, third.
 Specimen Asparagus Sprengeri—J. B. Goetz Sons, first; Marsh Floral Co., second.
 Specimen staghorn fern—Boehringer Bros., first.
 Specimen bay tree, standard—Boehringer Bros., first.
 Specimen bay tree, pyramid—Boehringer Bros., first.
 Specimen boxwood, standard—J. B. Goetz Sons, first; Boehringer Bros., second.
 Specimen boxwood, pyramid—Boehringer Bros., first; J. B. Goetz Sons, second.
 Specimen boxwood, bush form—J. B. Goetz Sons, first; Boehringer Bros., second.
 Hanging basket of foliage plants—J. B. Goetz Sons, first; Boehringer Bros., second; Marsh Floral Co., third.
 Hanging basket of foliage and flowering plants—J. B. Goetz Sons, first; Boehringer Bros., second; Zorn & Gaertner, third.
 Display of roses, thirty blooms, three varieties—J. B. Goetz Sons, first; Boehringer Bros., second; R. L. Leidy, third.
 Display of carnations, thirty blooms—J. B. Goetz Sons, first; Boehringer Bros., second.
 Display of gladioli—J. B. Goetz Sons, first; Boehringer Bros., second.
 Twelve America gladioli—Grohman the Florist, first; J. B. Goetz Sons, second; R. L. Leidy, third.
 Fifty gladioli in three varieties—J. B. Goetz Sons, first; R. L. Leidy, second; Grohman the Florist, third.
 Display of asters, not less than 1,000 blooms—Zorn & Gaertner, first; Grohman the Florist, second; R. L. Leidy, third.
 Fifty white asters—Zorn & Gaertner, first; Grohman the Florist, second; R. L. Leidy, third.
 Fifty pink asters—Zorn & Gaertner, first; R. L. Leidy, second; Grohman the Florist, third.
 Fifty lavender asters—Zorn & Gaertner, first; R. L. Leidy, second; Grohman the Florist, third.
 Fifty purple asters—Zorn & Gaertner, first; R. L. Leidy, second; Grohman the Florist, third.
 Display of dahlias, not less than fifty blooms—J. B. Goetz Sons, first; Grohman the Florist, second.
 Vase of assorted flowers—J. B. Goetz Sons, first; Boehringer Bros., second; Marsh Floral Co., third.
 Basket of flowers—J. B. Goetz Sons, first; R. L. Leidy, second; Boehringer Bros., third.
 Sweepstake—J. B. Goetz Sons, first; Boehringer Bros., second; Zorn & Gaertner, third.

ILLINOIS STATE FAIR.

The Final Awards.

The flower show at the Illinois state fair, Springfield, is of such great duration that, especially at such a warm season, cut flowers will not keep during the entire show and must be replaced. Consequently, during the later days there are classes that are duplicates of those staged earlier. In The Review last week the first awards were reported. Here are those of the second set of classes:

Twenty-five American Beauty roses—Gullett & Sons, Lincoln, Ill., first.
 Twenty-five Mrs. Russell—A. C. Brown, Springfield, first; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., Springfield, second; Gullett & Sons, third.
 Twenty-five Richmond—A. C. Brown, first; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., second.
 Twenty-five Ophelia—A. C. Brown, first; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., second.
 Twenty-five Hoosier Beauty—A. C. Brown, first.
 Twenty-five Killarney—A. C. Brown, first; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., second.
 Twenty-five White Killarney—A. C. Brown, first; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., second.
 Twenty-five My Maryland—Janssen Seed & Floral Co., first.
 Twenty-five any other variety rose—Janssen Seed & Floral Co., first.
 Twenty-five Mrs. Russell roses—Janssen Seed & Floral Co., first.
 Twenty Richmond—Janssen Seed & Floral Co., first.
 Twenty Ophelia—Janssen Seed & Floral Co., first.
 Twenty Killarney—Janssen Seed & Floral Co., first.
 Twenty White Killarney—Janssen Seed & Floral Co., first.

Twenty My Maryland—Janssen Seed & Floral Co., first.
 Twenty any other variety rose—Janssen Seed & Floral Co., first.
 Standing cross, four feet—Hembreiker & Cole, Springfield, Ill., first; Gullett & Sons, Lincoln, Ill., second; A. T. Hey, Maywood, Ill., third.
 Wreath on easel, 24-inch—Hembreiker & Cole, first; Gullett & Sons, second; A. T. Hey, third.
 Floral arrangement, set piece—Gullett & Sons, first; Hembreiker & Cole, second; A. T. Hey, third.
 Basket of chrysanthemums—Gullett & Sons, first; Hembreiker & Cole, second; A. T. Hey, third.
 Basket of cut flowers—Gullett & Sons, first; Hembreiker & Cole, second; A. T. Hey, third.
 Rose bouquet—Gullett & Sons, first; Hembreiker & Cole, second; A. T. Hey, third.
 Bouquet of various flowers—Gullett & Sons, first; Hembreiker & Cole, second; George M. Brinkerhoff, Springfield, Ill., third.
 Spray of roses—Hembreiker & Cole, first; Gullett & Sons, second.
 Spray of carnations—Hembreiker & Cole, first; Gullett & Sons, second; A. T. Hey, third.
 Bride's bouquet—Gullett & Sons, first; Hembreiker & Cole, second; A. T. Hey, third.
 Corsage bouquet and accessories—Hembreiker & Cole, first; A. T. Hey, second; Gullett & Sons, third.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

The Market.

Fall trade has been good, but a good, hard frost would liven things up a bit. There still are a few gladioli and asters; also small garden flowers. Carnations are arriving slowly, owing to the late planting. They still are quite short and poor. Roses seem to be in full crop; both short and long-stemmed grades are plentiful. The supply of lilies is small. Chrysanthemums have not yet arrived in the local market.

West Michigan Fair Winners.

At the west Michigan state fair, which was held September 18 to 22, the following prizes were awarded in the flower division:

Stove and greenhouse plants—Henry Smith, first; Eli Cross, second; Crabb & Hunter Floral Co., third.
 Palms—Henry Smith, first; Eli Cross, second; Crabb & Hunter Floral Co., third.
 Araucaria excelsa—Henry Smith, first; Eli Cross, second; Crabb & Hunter Floral Co., third.
 Asparagus Sprengeri—Henry Smith, first; Eli Cross, second; Crabb & Hunter Floral Co., third.
 Ferns—Henry Smith, first; Eli Cross, second; Crabb & Hunter Floral Co., third.
 Flowering and foliage begonias—Crabb & Hunter Floral Co., first; Eli Cross, second; Henry Smith, third.
 Double geraniums—Eli Cross, first; Henry Smith, second; Crabb & Hunter Floral Co., third.
 Single geraniums—Eli Cross, first; Crabb & Hunter Floral Co., second; Henry Smith, third.
 Fancy foliage geraniums—Crabb & Hunter Floral Co., first; Eli Cross, second; Henry Smith, third.

Flowering abutilons—Crabb & Hunter Floral Co., first; Henry Smith, second; Eli Cross, third.
 Flower design—Crabb & Hunter Floral Co., first; Henry Smith, second; Eli Cross, third.
 Flower basket—Eli Cross, first; Henry Smith, second; Crabb & Hunter Floral Co., third.
 American Beauties—Eli Cross, first; Henry Smith, second; Crabb & Hunter Floral Co., third.
 Roses—Henry Smith, first; Eli Cross, second; Crabb & Hunter Floral Co., third.
 Gladioli—Henry Smith, first; Crabb & Hunter Floral Co., second.
 Asters—Crabb & Hunter Floral Co., first; Henry Smith, second.
 Cannas—Henry Smith, first; Crabb & Hunter Floral Co., second.
 Coleus—Eli Cross, first; Henry Smith, second.
 Dracaenas—Eli Cross, first; Henry Smith, second; Crabb & Hunter Floral Co., third.
 Crotons—Henry Smith, first; Crabb & Hunter Floral Co., second; Eli Cross, third.
 Rex begonias—Henry Smith, first; Eli Cross, second; Crabb & Hunter Floral Co., third.
 Asparagus plumosus—Crabb & Hunter Floral Co., first; Eli Cross, second; Henry Smith, third.

The Crabb & Hunter Floral Co. received first prize in the class for flower designs. It was a large, standing wreath composed of lily of the valley and Killarney roses, with a base of Easter lilies and buddleias. Henry Smith displayed a beautiful wreath composed of pink roses, Easter lilies and cycas leaves, and Eli Cross had a wreath of Killarney roses. A. F. C.

WESTERLY, R. I.

Louis J. Reuter, of S. J. Reuter & Son, was a business visitor to New York last week. The men are cutting large quantities of fine roses, including the new rose, Cleveland, for the New York market, where they are handled by John Young & Co.

S. S. Pennock, of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., New York and Philadelphia, who spent the summer at Watch Hill, has returned to his home.

George L. Stillman is making a great clean-up on awards and prizes on his dahlias at the fall shows.

Conrad Schulz has been especially successful with his carnations this summer. They did exceptionally well in the field and now are a thrifty lot in the benches.

An attachment was placed last week on the contents of the flower store of Lewis P. Larkin, in the Rhode Island block, on Broad street. The amount named in the writ is $500. The store was closed after the deputy sheriff served the papers and took possession. Mr. Larkin went to New York September 12, and he has not been heard from since. W. H. M.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

The W. F. Kasting Co., of Buffalo, N. Y., expects to be well settled in its new home by October 1. It is a fire-proof, 5-story building, modern in every respect and fully equipped to handle the business. The demand through the summer was unusually good, practically everything in the shape of a bloom being cleaned up.

W. J. Palmer & Son, of Buffalo, have an attractive window at their uptown store, consisting of a pond scene, with mill and specimens of a piscatorial nature, the latter being sent in by Will Palmer from his summer retreat at Muskoka lake.

S. A. Anderson, of Buffalo, is again at the helm, after a thorough recuperation, and predicts a good fall business. Begonias Lorraine and Cincinnati are in fine shape, as usual. Store Manager Andy Adams is away on a botanizing expedition; he is an authority on native flora.

The Tong & Weeks Floral Co., of Ashtabula, O., removed its greenhouses in town to the fine location recently acquired just outside the city. "It was a strenuous task," observed Ernest Tong, son of the veteran founder, who now can enjoy the fruits of his labors. Mr. Weeks is a member of the Chamber of Commerce and is keeping up the floral end of the city's interests.

The Cleveland Cut Flower Co. has passed through a successful season.

Adam Graham & Son, of Cleveland, have a full force of men preparing for fall business. Adam, first, second, Brother Charles, all are busy. W. M.

HEAR YE, ILLINOIS FLORISTS.

At a recent meeting of the executive committee of the Illinois State Florists' Association it was decided to abandon the prize feature of our fall show, which is to be held at Bloomington, Ill., November 9 and 10. So the secretary was instructed to write to all members asking their hearty coöperation, to help make this, our first fall show, one grand success, by contributing stock for exhibition. If everyone who can will just contribute a little, we will have a grand show.

Please keep this in mind and send something, and bring yourself along for a fall holiday. Remember this is the semiannual meeting of your association.
J. F. Ammann, Sec'y.

BUFFALO.

The Market.

Although there has been no killing frost in this vicinity, most of the outdoor stock is on the wane. The demand does not quite equal the supply.

Beauties continue to sell well and are good in quality. Russell roses are improving rapidly. Francis Scott Key and Ophelia roses are growing in popularity, although Milady, Sunburst and Mock roses are not losing any of their popularity. Roses of all kinds are more abundant than before, but they are by no means sufficient for all requirements. White roses without any doubt have been about as scarce as any item on the market in season.

As the asters, gladioli and other outdoor flowers pass, carnations are gradually edging their way in, but it will be some time before they will be at their best. Blooms may be had now, but they have rather short stems. Valley and orchids are as scarce as ever, with no promise of immediate relief. Violets made their appearance again for the season, but they are like most early violets—poor and few. Easter lilies clear without any difficulty whatever. Chrysanthemum Golden Glow is as yet the most popular variety on the market. A few Smith's Advance mums are seen occasionally. Some extra fine indoor-grown snapdragon may be had. Calendulas also are satisfactory and sell at a good figure. Greens seem to be the only item that has been sufficient throughout the season.

Various Notes.

Charles D. Ball, Jr., of Holmesburg, Pa., was one of Buffalo's recent visitors.

Raymond House has severed his connection with the W. J. Palmer branch store and is now with John Breitmeyer's Sons, of Detroit.

Mrs. O. C. Gillies, September 20, was suddenly taken sick and shortly afterward was operated on for appendicitis. She now is rapidly recovering her health, and Mr. Gillies and his friends breathe more easily.

Jerry Roach, of W. J. Palmer's, is at Pittsburgh this week attending his sister's wedding.

Wendelin Preisach, of Corfu, has completed rebuilding another house, 38x100 feet. He has started to cut carnations and in a short time expects to make up good consignments. A. E.

Riverton, N. J.—After twenty years of experience in the employ of H. A. Dreer, Inc., Mathew A. Flynn has launched a florists' business of his own.

NOTICE!

To Subscribers whose address labels carry an expiration number higher than 995 (Dec. 21, 1916).

EVERY florist knows through his own purchases what has happened in the paper market the last few months—prices have doubled all along the line.

And it takes more than four tons of paper each week to print The Review!

Many readers have been so kind as to write that The Review is worth considerably more to them than its subscription price. Well, the tremendous rise in the price of paper makes it no longer expedient to sell The Review at $1.00 a year.

The subscription price, therefore, will be advanced January 1, 1917, to $1.50 a year.

Until December 31, 1916, any member of the Trade may subscribe for one or more years at the old rate of $1.00 a year.

Readers whose present subscriptions do not expire until after January 1, 1917, may renew for as many years as they like at $1.00 per year, providing that such renewals are sent during 1916.

Send $1.00 and your subscription will be extended one year from the present date of expiration, whenever that may be.

Send $2.00 and the subscription will be extended two years from the present date of expiration.

Send $3.00 for three years, $5.00 for five years.

No renewals for a full year will be accepted at less than $1.50 unless they are mailed by December 31, 1916.

The Canadian subscription price will be $2.50 a year beginning January 1, 1917. Canadian renewals mailed on or before December 31, 1916, will be accepted at $2.00 a year.

OBITUARY

Reinhardt Cook.

In the death of Reinhardt Cook, which occurred at New Orleans, La., September 19, the profession in the south loses a prominent representative. Mr. Cook was a native of New Orleans and in his thirty-eighth year. He was the youngest son of Mathew Cook, who was one of the oldest and best known florists in New Orleans. Mr. Cook learned his profession in his father's nurseries at New Orleans, and then went into business with his brother, Henry Cook. He subsequently established a retail business in his own name, in which he met with success. Mr. Cook is survived by his wife, who, before her marriage, was Miss Louisa Ruth. The funeral was attended by a large number of prominent people. Interment was in the Metairie cemetery.

Mr. Cook was a man of attractive personality and numbered his friends by the score. His loss will be felt keenly by the profession throughout his native city.

Arthur J. Leary.

Arthur J. Leary, for a number of years head gardener on the estate of Mrs. John Nicholas Brown, at Newport, R. I., died suddenly September 14. He was stricken with a hemorrhage and died within half an hour.

For several years previous to taking charge of the Mrs. Brown estate, Mr. Leary was in the employ of the late

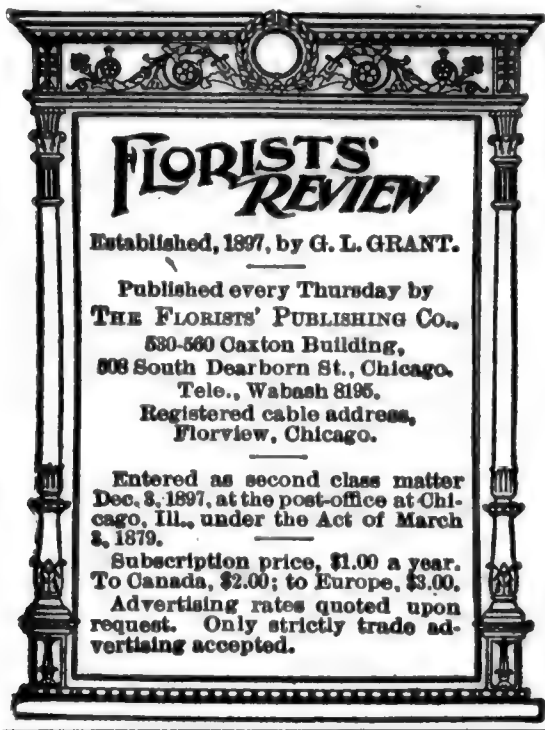

J. M. Hodgson, florist on Bellevue avenue, Newport. He was unmarried and made his home with his sister, Miss Nellie Leary. He was a member of the Hibernians, Knights of Columbus and the Newport Horticultural Society, and for many years was a member of the Newport Democratic city committee. The funeral, which was held from St. Augustine's church, was attended by a large number of gardeners and florists of the vicinity and floral tributes were numerous. W. H. M.

C. A. Starr.

C. A. Starr, 75 years of age, who for twenty-five years was associated with his wife in the florists' business at Pine Bluffs, Ark., recently died of injuries received when an automobile in which he was riding was thrown down an embankment, about nine miles from his home. The deceased is survived by his wife, who is the head of the florists' business, one daughter, two granddaughters and one grandson.

Hackettstown, N. J.—The partnership of Herrick & Roos, landscape gardeners, has been dissolved. A. D. Herrick has taken the entire business, with the exception of several contracts that have been assigned to A. L. Roos.

La Crosse, Wis.—The store of Mrs. A. Guillaume, which has been conducted on one corner for twenty years, has been acquired by L. E. Metcalf, who formerly was road salesman for the A. L. Randall Co., of Chicago. Mr. Metcalf has had the store remodeled throughout, including a new front and larger display windows.

Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.

Officers for 1916: President, Daniel MacRorie, San Francisco; vice-president, R. O. Kerr, Houston, Tex.; secretary, John Young, 53 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, J. J. Hess, Omaha.

Officers for 1917: President, Robert C. Kerr, Houston, Tex.; vice-president, A. L. Miller, Jamaica, N. Y.; secretary, John Young, 53 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, J. J. Hess, Omaha, Neb.

Thirty-third annual convention, New York, N. Y., August 21 to 24, 1917.

RESULTS.

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

FEW growers have made money on asters this year, but the spirit to persevere will cause them all to try it again next season, when we all hope for normal weather conditions.

SINCE time immemorial a presidential election has been expected to upset and retard business for at least two autumn months, but apparently this year that is upsetting all calculations will set a new precedent for presidential years.

FIELD-GROWN carnation plants never sold better than has been the case this season. Anyone who has a surplus can turn the plants into 5-cent pieces or better as easily as anything by offering them in the Classified Department of The Review.

THE desk of the Editor usually is adorned with the flowers of some reader who has availed himself of the parcel post as a means of showing the results of his skill and labor, but seldom has it had a handsomer vase of asters than those received from Frank Winans, Petoskey, Mich.

THERE are, of course, reports that business was dull during the summer just closed, but nine florists out of ten will say that the business this July, August and early September has been the best ever known at this season of the year. No doubt one of the reasons, aside from the general prosperity of the country, has been weather conditions that were unfavorable to outdoor flowers.

NEAR AND FAR.

There is an old saying that "a prophet is not without honor save in his own country." Prophecy is one of the things in which The Review seldom indulges, which may be one of the reasons why it is honored near and far. Like this:

As evidence of the faith its readers have in The Review we would say that a short time ago we advertised a steam trap in its columns and in a very few days received a letter from a man in New York state with a certified check and instructions to ship the trap along at once. That's confidence for you.—Thornton Floral Co., Streator, Ill., September 18, 1916.

And then there is the man who receives more than he expected to get. Like this:

Enclosed find check to pay for the ad you recently printed in The Review for me. The ferns sold well and I am still shipping on that little ad; will sell several times as many as I expected.—Henry Daut, Decatur, Ill., September 18, 1916.

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty sure he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

SUMMING UP THE SITUATION.

It is the custom of the Continental & Commercial National Bank, of Chicago, the largest financial institution west of New York, to publish an annual autumnal review of the business situation as it looks to one in touch with the thousands of banks of the middle west. These paragraphs are from the bank's summing up:

"Seldom has the farmer had a more unpropitious year for the working of his land. Wet and dry have run to extremes in every section; unseasonable cold and heat were disastrous in their alternation. The seed that was planted in every part of the country endured more climatic vicissitudes than usual. Nature smiled but seldom upon the land, and the world will suffer from unusually high prices of the products of the soil already enhanced by war above the normal.

"American business is forging ahead in a way that is highly satisfactory and indicates no decided let-up, at least until hostilities in the European war zone are checked pending negotiations for peace. At the moment this does not appear to be a possible development of the immediate future, hence the outlook is bright for a continuation of industrial activity in this country for a considerable time. As to what will follow the war, there seems to be a wide difference of opinion, but the momentum that business has attained in the last two years, and will reach in the next year or so, is likely to be sufficient to minimize the readjustment that many astute bankers and business men believe will take place."

A CHANCE FOR US.

Every florist should ask his local newspaper if the editor has received the series of nine articles on rose culture just distributed by the Office of Information, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. If the editor has not received them, he should be induced to write to Washington for the manuscript.

The subjects of the articles are: Roses for Lawn and Border, Roses for the Arbor and Trellis, Plant a Separate Bed for Cut Flower Roses, Planting and Caring for Cut Flowers, How to Cut Roses, Hedge and Other Special Purpose Roses, How to Propagate Roses, Rose Diseases and How to Control Them, Insect Enemies of Roses and How to Combat Them.

This series of nine articles has been sent to newspapers for free use in whole or in part. The manuscript for the entire series has been sent at one time, because the articles dealing with planting and pruning recommend fall operations in certain sections. The florist should go over the articles with the editor and mark them with the dates that will make them most timely for local publication. The florist will know at what time they will be most helpful to the newspaper's readers.

The chances are nine out of ten that the editor will welcome the florist's assistance. The probabilities are that if the articles have been received and no plans made for their use, the reason will lie in the editor's inexperience, in his lack of knowledge of the subject to enable him to judge of the merit and interest in the articles. The florist can give an expert opinion.

And if the florist indicates a desire to insert an advertisement of rose plants in the same issue in which the articles appear the editor will make him more than ever welcome.

BEATING THE FLAG.

Word now has gone the length and breadth of the land that the subscription price of The Review will be advanced to $1.50 per year beginning January 1, 1917, and even from the most distant parts of the country subscribers are taking advantage of the opportunity to renew at the old rate. Many of the letters from distant subscribers contain a message of appreciation, like these:

I am sending $3 for the extension of my subscription to The Review for three years. This is one paper we could not do without.—R. V. Boyle, the Clarendon Garden, Santa Fe, N. M., September 19, 1916.

Enclosed is check for $3, for which move my expiration date on The Review three years ahead; I am trying to win out over the advance in the price of paper, but I may as well say that The Review is getting better each week and I do not see how any man in the trade can get along without it. I use it all the time and order almost all our stuff from its advertisers.—N. M. McGinnis, Agricultural & Mechanical College of Texas, College Station, Tex., September 18, 1916.

Enclosed find our check for $3, for which please extend our subscription three years. The Review is most certainly the best and cheapest publication in its line.—Baker Floral & Seed Co., Baker, Ore., September 21, 1916.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

The conditions that influenced the market last week continue with but slight variation. Broadly speaking, everything clears. This, of course, is primarily due to the extreme shortness of supply in nearly every line, but there has been an excellent shipping demand of late and the city business is showing signs of a regeneration.

Beauties, though still scarce, are more plentiful than they were last week and sell readily. The quality, too, is showing a steady improvement. The same may be said of rose stock in general. Supply is slightly increased and quality is markedly better. Russell still falls so far short of meeting the demand that it clears early in the day. This is so far true of most of the standard varieties that late orders stand little chance of being filled in full. Novelty roses, however, do not seem to be meet-

Come to us for your Roses

YOU cannot find, anywhere in America, a larger or better supply of Roses — all varieties are included. At present the demand is such that no Roses go unsold, but we have excellent cuts and can take care of some new buyers if they will send orders early in the day. The present crops are specially strong on Killarney Brilliant, White Killarney, Killarney, Milady and Ward, but we also are well supplied on Sunburst, Ophelia and Russell.

MEDIUM BEAUTIES

You know that every time you sell a dozen medium Beauties of first-class quality, your customer sooner or later comes back for some more just like them—they give satisfaction. Well, we have at present a large cut of medium Beauties of excellent quality. Can also furnish long or short.

GOOD—VALLEY—PLENTIFUL

We can supply Valley on all orders—don't hesitate to take an order if you have time to wire us for the Valley. But why not place a standing order for regular shipments?

WHITE—MUMS—YELLOW

Smith's Advance now can be supplied in moderate quantity, as well as Golden Glow. It is first-class stock in both colors, grown by specialists.

EASTER LILIES

While we never are without good Giganteum Lilies, our supply this week is larger than usual. The stock is fine, cut tight for shipping.

ing with the demand one would naturally expect.

Carnations are all the way back in the market as far as demand is concerned, but when you come to the matter of supply, it is quite another thing. Quality is all that can be expected, and the stems, though still short, are stronger and longer than they were. No one ever expects valley to be anything else than scarce these days, but a few houses seem to have adequate supplies and cattleyas are regarded in much the same light. Quite a few asters persist in coming to the market and a fair supply of gladioli may be found. Neither cut much of a figure, though the former continue to enjoy a fair demand and to command a good price. The demand for chrysanthemums is at last alive, but the supply is woefully short. Of those being received, there are more poor ones than good ones. Easter lilies are enjoying a good demand and share the general attribute of scarcity. A few locally-grown single violets have been seen on the market, but as yet shipments have been so irregular that it is impossible to say what their fate will be.

Green goods are in normal supply and demand with the exception of smilax.

Pollworth Joins Jones.

J. E. Pollworth, who is well known in this market, especially among the growers, states that October 1 he will become identified with Percy Jones, Inc., in the capacity of vice-president and general manager. Henry Van Gelder will continue as president of the corporation, the addition of Mr. Pollworth to the official staff enabling him to give time to his outside interests, which have been growing of late. During the last few months Mr. Pollworth has been with Armour & Co., in the fertilizer de-

It recently was reported in this column that Mr. Pollworth was planning a new commission house, but the interests back of him in that plan will now be consolidated with the Jones business.

around the corner at 5525 Harper avenue, it has a good start.

A new sales manager made his appearance on the floor of A. T. Pyfer & Co., September 25. His name is R. J. Mohr, and up to the end of last week he was manager for A. Lange, 25 East Madison street.

One of those to find himself a loser in no inconsiderable amount as a result of the Industrial Savings Bank's closing its doors was Emil Jehlik, of 1825 South Ashland avenue.

A new store was opened at 955 East Fifty-fifth street, September 23, by H. Jacobsen. Though he has never before operated a store, Mr. Jacobsen is not new to the trade, as he has been working in one branch of it or another all his life. Trained in Denmark, he has been employed as gardener on various estates, among them those of J. Ogden Armour and Henry Bosch. At one time he was employed in the greenhouses of Bassett & Washburn. For some time he has been gardener at the Home of the Incurables, East Fifty-sixth street and Ellis avenue. This position he will continue to hold, employing a young lady to take care of his store. As the store is in the same block as the new Frolic theater, it should prove a good stand.

A most interesting biography of George Harrer, of Morton Grove, appears in a pictorial town book by E. Palma Beaudette. In it we learn that Mr. Harrer was the organizer of the village and its president for fourteen years. He was also a member of the first school board and one of the organizers of the volunteer fire department. He has 20,000 square feet of glass and three and a half acres of ground. At present he is a member of the board of trustees of the village, August F. Poehlmann being president.

Wendland & Keimel Co., Elmhurst, cut 50,000 roses last week.

The president of the Chrysanthemum Society of America again has appointed N. J. Wietor chairman of the Chicago committee to examine seedlings and sports on behalf of the society. The other members of the Chicago committee are George Asmus and Thomas W. Head.

The International Forwarding Co. was unloading five cars of Dutch bulbs September 25, two cars off the S. S. Poeldyk and three cars off the S. S. Noordam, the two steamers that reached New York September 18. One car was for Winterson's Seed Store, while a large number of consignees were represented in the others.

The tall, new chimney of the Albert F. Amling Co., Maywood, has become a landmark visible for miles around.

Robert Newcomb, of the American Bulb Co., has been attending the state fair at Springfield. Secretary Koehler and the home force are busy with bulb imports. The fourth floor of the Lemoyne building, the office being located on the street floor, is being used for warehouse and shipping purposes.

If Raymond Ziska, of Joseph Ziska & Sons, had not stepped from their place of business to the street at a certain moment September 26, the firm would now be short a delivery car. As it was, he was just in time to see a stranger backing the car out of a tight place preparatory to starting. When he saw Mr. Ziska making for him, the thief jumped from the seat, ran west, and lost himself in the State street crowd.

It is reported by W. A. Peterson that the sale of peony roots this season breaks all records at Peterson's Nursery.

The first violets of the season were reported September 21 by the E. C. Amling Co. They came from Rhinebeck.

E. Zimmerman, who has for some time done a successful business at 1130 West Thirty-first street, has decided to sell out and retire.

Eight new display tables have been placed fronting the elevator entrances to the A. L. Randall Co. These will be used to display novelties more advantageously. Eric Johnson, head of the cut flower department, left September 25 on an eastern trip.

After looking over the volume of business done during the last five months, H. B. Kennicott, of the Kennicott Bros. Co., finds they are better by far than the same months in any previous year.

After an extended trip through the eastern states, during the course of which he visited all the more important cities of New England and many of the lesser ones, T. E. Waters, head of the supply department of the Poehlmann Bros. Co., returned to Chicago September 27. He reports a highly successful trip.

For more than twelve years William Fluegge, Jr., of Morton Grove, has been a grower of pansies, geraniums and all kinds of bedding plants. He is ably assisted in his work by his good wife, and their combined efforts have been so successful that there is scarcely a member of the trade in this part of the state to whom they are not known.

The supply department of O. A. & L. A. Tonner is adding a complete line of glassware for table and window decorations.

more rapidly than in former years that at this early date the supply is almost exhausted. Emil Reichling, superintendent of the greenhouses, motored with his family to Ottawa and Starved Rock last week.

Several have prophesied that the large crops of mums will be later than usual this year. Among these was Ole Johnson, of the Batavia Greenhouse Co., who said that last year his mums were in crop the latter part of September. This year they will be a month later.

Nick Speropulos, proprietor of the Wabash Flower Market, and John Moulton purchased the store of Nick Korson at 7 West Monroe street last week and took possession September 22. They will operate it under the business style of the Monroe Flower Market. Nick Korson will devote his entire time to the store at 168 North State street.

Visitors.

Vernon S. Griffen, who conducts the growing end of Griffen's Flower Shop, Hannibal, Mo., spent several days in this market last week. Nearly everything used in the Griffen establishment comes from Chicago, greenhouse material, boilers, fertilizers, bulbs, plants and such cut flowers as are not grown at home. It was Mr. Griffen's first visit to most of the concerns he patronizes, his previous acquaintance having been made through The Review.

Among the week's visitors was E. H. Mazey, of the Mazey Floral Co., Minneapolis, who has been taking a vacation and looking up some novelties and plants. He says business has been remarkably good with him during the summer and he is looking forward to a big fall and winter trade.

George Bayer, of Toledo, who for many years has shipped large quantities of splendid Bonnaffons to Kennicott Bros. Co., is in town this week, called by the meeting of vegetable growers in progress at Hotel La Salle.

Among those visiting the market last week was Paul M. Palez, of Little Rock, Ark.

Charles Bloom, brother of Samuel Bloom, 822 East Sixty-third street, is on the market buying supplies for a store he will open in Clinton, Ia., this week.

Among last week's visitors was George Maunz, representing Reed & Keller, New York.

DETROIT, MICH.

The Market.

Detroit had its first frost last week and this had its effect on the market. There was not a great variety of stock to choose from; in fact, the principal item was roses. Good Ophelia, Sunburst, Hoosier Beauty, Ward and Reid roses arrive and find a ready sale, especially the long cuts. Some Beauties arrived from Mount Clemens last week, but the Chicago shipments were a bit better and cleared more readily. Fine Killarneys also came in from Chicago and they sold nicely. The short-stemmed stock is inclined to drag.

Valley is about the same—the supply is limited. Carnations now are more plentiful, but they still have short stems. A few asters and gladioli are to be had, but the demand for them is indifferent.

Various Notes.

Harold Ivens, of J. F. Sullivan's, last week went to Canton, O., with a large American flag done in flowers, for the banquet of the directors of the McKinley Association.

The park store of John Breitmeyer's Sons had the order for G. W. Zanger's real estate window.

Mr. and Mrs. David Scott, of Corfu, N. Y., paid Detroit a visit last week; also O. O'Field, of Grimsby, Ont.

We florists always are more or less dependent upon the rose, but seldom are we entirely dependent on this flower, as is the case at the present writing. There are a few cosmos, a few gladioli and a stray aster now and then, but roses are the only flowers we can depend upon. We are thankful that the supply of roses is heavy and that the quality of the blooms and foliage is fine. The weather has been ideal, trade is good and the prospects are for a good season.

Jack Carey will move November 1 from his present location at 543 Woodward avenue to one block south on the same thoroughfare.

The Flower Growers' Corporation is handling a fine lot of Ophelia, Sunburst and Richmond roses.

September 18 a part of this section of Michigan was visited by a killing frost. R. M. Champe, gladiolus and dahlia specialist, of Walled Lake, Mich., reports that his total stock of over 2,000 dahlias was frozen to the ground. Mr. Champe was just starting to cut some fine blooms.

B. Schroeter is having his store re-decorated inside and outside and will be all ready for business with a new coat of paint.

The Sullivan store surely is beginning to take on the appearance of a beautiful flower store; formerly it was a millinery shop. All the work of painting, carpentering and tile work had to be done while business was going on and this was a serious handicap to both parties. The handsome show windows now are finished, with a white glazed tile floor and a mahogany finish for the back and sides.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Scribner recently visited the establishment of Christ Winterich, at Defiance, O., and found the range in the pink of condition.

C. D. Ball, Jr., of Philadelphia, paid us a visit recently.

Business has experienced a decided change for the better during the last two weeks. As a result all good stock is cleaned up. Roses still are scarce, but the quality is much improved and the quantity is on the increase. Carnations are coming more freely now and the quality is improving. Though the stems still are a bit short, the flowers could pass muster in the middle of the season. I have seen none of the new varieties thus far this season, but I understand that there will be a good sprinkling of most of them later. Our growers believe in "trying all things and holding fast to that which is good."

Dahlias now are coming in fairly well, though it has been so dry of late that the quality is not of the best. The heavy rains of the last two nights, together with the cool nights, should rapidly improve the quality. Tuberoses are appearing in most of the stores, a sure indication in this market that other stock is scarce. Cosmos is not good this year and little of it is being used. In fact, the summer saw few good cut flowers. Chrysanthemums will not make their appearance for at least two weeks, the trade having found that the early crop is not profitable in this city. It is both hard to grow and hard to sell.

Few of the Dutch bulbs have been seen as yet and some of us are growing a little nervous about them. The French bulbs also are late, only a few having arrived. Those that are here are of good quality, however.

The wholesale business has been unusually heavy thus far this season. The city is shipping more flowers to the out-of-town trade this fall than ever before.

Various Notes.

Frank Cornell is building another house at his range at Eastland.

The state entomologist inspected all the greenhouses about the city last week. He reports that none of the houses has any serious pests.

Miss Lillian Joy has returned from a trip through the east. She has resumed her duties at the store.

Geny Bros. have their old range in the best of condition. They have decided not to dismantle it and so are making improvements again.

The Joys received their first consignment of Paper Whites last week. They are doing a good wholesale business in carnations.

Floyd Bralliar was in Knoxville last week attending to some work in the office of the state entomologist.

I have heard several favorable comments on the part of out-of-town visitors on the cement benches in the greenhouses of McIntyre Bros. The benches have been in use for about four years, but they look as new as if just built.

Haury & Sons had an exhibit at the state fair last week. It pays to show good stock. F. B.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

Funeral work formed the bulk of the business here last week. During the early part of the week stock was scarce, but this was largely due to the fact that there was little sent in until the middle of the week. September 22 and 23 there was plenty of everything, with the exception of asters and lily of the valley. The sales were more brisk and business generally more satisfactory than has been the case for some few weeks. Prices generally remain the same. It is claimed that the roses now being offered here should bring better prices, but these are still to be had on the basis of the old quotations.

The first cosmos of the season was offered last week. There was a fair sale of this flower because it was something new and like a novelty, but it is not a store flower and the bulk of the sales were made in the city markets. Another new arrival was Golden Glow chrysanthemums, but the flowers were not of a good quality, although they sold because they were new.

No one really expects to cut carnations so early in the season, yet there are a few hundreds coming in each day to fill possible calls. Although good for this time of year, the blooms still are small. The dahlia crop is going to be light and the bulk of those coming in are poor. Asters are practically over with. There are plenty of Easter lilies to be had at $8 to $10 per hundred in large quantities, with slightly higher prices in small lots, and the demand during the week was good. Tritomas, cockscombs and statice are among the smaller flowers being offered in the stores.

Various Notes.

The next regular meeting of the Florists' Club of Washington, D. C., is to be held at 1214 F street, northwest, Tuesday evening, October 3. After the completion of the usual routine business there will be a discussion regarding the fall activities of the club. It is the desire of President R. L. Jenkins that as large a number of members attend as possible, in order that a good fall program may be outlined.

Fred H. Kramer, of 916 F street, northwest, last week was made the victim of a smooth confidence man, who was slick enough to get away with $2 in real money in exchange for a "phoney" check. The stranger, who is a white man, called at the store and ordered a $3 funeral piece, stating that his sister was dead. He presented a check for $5 in settlement. This was accepted and he received the change. The messenger sent out from the store to deliver the flowers could not find the place named in the order.

Among the week's visitors here were Charles P. Dudley, of Madison, N. J., and Joseph Heacock, of Wyncote, Pa.

David J. Grillbortzer is erecting two houses at Alexandria, Va., which he will devote to the production of sweet peas. One of the houses is 35x125, while the other is 35x60. Both are modern in every particular. Mr. Grillbortzer is greatly extending his activities and the growing of sweet peas on the scale contemplated is new for this season.

J. Louis Loose, head of the Washington Floral Co., is reported to have purchased a lot at Fayette and Green streets, in Alexandria, where the greenhouses are.

The Leo Niessen Co. now is doing business in its handsome new quarters at 1206 H street, northwest, where FELLOW FLORISTS, the big money in the florist business is going to the man who has live agents working for him. I have done $100,000 business through agents, such as local druggists, undertakers, bankers, etc.

The secret is simple. My beautifully illustrated catalogue makes it easy for the agent to take and send in orders. It illustrates and exactly describes all kinds of floral designs and decorations.

You can use this catalogue as your own, carrying your name (not mine), and duplicate my success.

everything is up-to-date in every particular. The store itself has a floor space of something more than 3,000 square feet, while the cement-floored basement is slightly larger because of the vault, which runs underneath the sidewalk and which will be used for the storage of such flowers as do not require the same degree of cold air as others. The store is well lighted, naturally. There are two large display windows at the front, while there also are windows at the rear. The artificial light is obtained from a number of electric fixtures suspended from the ceiling by chains, the globes being inverted bowls of semi-opaque china. The sales department is practically set off from the receiving and shipping departments by the large icebox in the center cilities. The cellar is to be used for the storage of florists' supplies, including packing boxes, baskets, etc. The office is located in one of the display windows at the front of the store. Arthur Niessen, who came down from Philadelphia to assist Manager Albert Schnell in the final arrangements for the opening of the new quarters, said that he is well pleased with developments. He feels positive that increased business will result from the new location and improved equipment and facilities. Both the gentlemen named have been receiving the good wishes of large numbers of florists who have come to admire the new store. C. L. L.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The waning of the outdoor flower is noticeable this week. Of course, this broad statement must be qualified to be true. There still are outdoor flowers and they are likely to remain for some time, despite the croakers, but the hey-day of their summer glory is over. Asters are the most conspicuous example; good asters are impossible now. Gladioli are on the down track. Dahlias and cosmos are left, with now and then some fair gladioli. The trouble about dahlias is the drought. If it only rains while these lines are being printed, dahlias will come into their glory; if it does not rain soon, it will not make any difference to the dahlia whether or not it rains—they are so awfully, fearfully dry. The flowers show it to a degree that no amount of cultivation can overcome.

Greenhouse-grown flowers are steadily coming forward. There are not enough of them yet to satisfy the demand—not nearly enough good ones, and the indications point to a strongly increasing demand. Carnations show greater improvement this week than at any time during September. Roses are becoming more plentiful, mostly the shorts. The arrival of Cattleya labiata has lowered the price of orchids. Gardenias are here, too, and a few sweet peas and snapdragons. The general tone of the market is better than during the last two years at this season.

Outdoor Roses.

Henry A. Dreer, Inc., now is recognized as our leading rosarian in the east. The exhibit at the National Flower Show last March earned this enviable position. The work among roses this season shows further advance. The efforts made at Locust Farm toward home-grown budded roses is most encouraging. The growth on some of the varieties, notably Duchess of Wellington and Lady Alice Stanley, is heavier in a single season than can be found on imported plants. Turning to the own-root field roses, some of the varieties have done surprisingly well; Frau Karl Druschki and Ulrich Brunner especially so. The experiments made with soil have proved the great benefit of sod turned over for roses. Either crimson clover, or, better still, Timothy and clover, afford fiber that encourages root action even better than manure.

Returning from the great fields of roses at Locust Farm to the exquisite rose trial grounds at Riverton, there is a chance, even in late September, of seeing what some of the varieties will do under the queer growing conditions of this season. England's Glory, imperfect here for seven years, now fully deserves its name and more. Mrs. Wemyss Quinn, the recent Bagatelle winner, is lovely with its deep, rich, golden coloring and exquisite perfume. Mrs. MacKellar, outdoor rival of Ophelia, is in fine form. Lady Ursula is earning its sobriquet of timber producer for the amateur. Mrs. Edward Powell shows fire in its brilliant richness.

The last, but by far the greatest of all in its promise, is seedling No. 102, none less than the famous Los Angeles rose, for which J. D. Eisele has secured for Henry A. Dreer, Inc., the eastern agency, from Howard & Smith, the introducers. Los Angeles bears full, perfect flowers of a shrimp pink color, which is enriched by orange at the base of the petals. It is considered the most beautiful rose since the introduction of the Lyon rose, which it surpasses in many qualities. Los Angeles will make its bow in December.

The Market.

Business increased considerably last week, due to the many decorative orders. Almost every palm, fern and decorative plant was used for the displays for the fashion show and for the convention of the bankers held here. Stock is arriving in large quantities and the quality is improving each week. The supply of outdoor stock is falling off. Roses are more plentiful and better prices are received. The Killarneys, Ophelia and Russell are the leaders in quantity. Beauties are increasing in supply. Lilies and valley are plentiful and of superior quality. Mums now are down to normal prices. There are plenty of late asters on the market and they are of good quality. Smilax is fine and abundant.

Various Notes.

ON TRIAL; or, You Are the Judge

¶ The true rule in determining the qualities of a basket, is not to conclude whether it has bad qualities, for there are few baskets that have real bad qualities; almost every basket has a combination of good and bad qualities. The rule that should be followed is to use your best judgment in the different lines you have handled to determine which have the more good than bad qualities in them.

¶ We naturally claim our baskets have more good qualities for the money than any other, but, as you are the buyer, you of course must be the judge. You cannot judge without evidence or the article. If there is another florist in your city ask him; or, still better, get in a small line of our baskets.

¶ Our line is upon trial and we anxiously await your verdict.

¶ Don't fail to see the line our men have out on the road.

decorative plants were used. He also had orders for the decoration of several banks. Mr. Murray spent a week at Excelsior Springs.

Arthur Newell, too, had orders for decorating a number of banks. He said the fashion show helped florists in many ways. A large number of orders for corsages were filled. Mr. Newell accompanied Mr. Murray to Excelsior Springs.

The George M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. was busy last week with funeral work and decorations. Mr. Parker spent Sunday at Pleasant Hill.

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. had a pretty window display for fashion show week. Cockscorns and ornamental grasses were used.

The Alpha Floral Co. had its share of decorative orders for the dry goods stores and banks.

August Luther decorated the Jones Dry Goods store and used more than 300 ferns. W. J. B.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

September 23 the New York wholesale cut flower market gave the first indications of the opening of the fall season. There was little of value left for the retail stores when the evening shadows fell.

It may be October before the strike ends, the paralysis scourge is conquered, the schools open and society returns to the big city. But there are great expectations as to a record business during the fall and winter—there is so much prosperity in every line of trade.

Shipments were light at the week end and choice cut flowers of all kinds were rapidly disposed of. Prices, however, did not advance, and the quotations of last week, with few exceptions, hold good for this week. American Beauties are fast improving in quality; some especially good ones September 23 touched 30 cents. There was a limited supply of the high grades of the popular and new roses and a surplus of the seconds and thirds. These held at 50 cents up to $2 per hundred and the market was pretty well sold out Saturday afternoon.

The dahlia will be king this week. Already some magnificent specimens may be seen in the retail florists' windows. There is not much demand for the old-fashioned dahlia blooms, but the large, brilliant varieties sell widely, at good prices.

Now that the asters and gladioli have practically retired for the season, the chrysanthemum is rapidly coming to the front. There are not many varieties arriving as yet. Golden Glow now is at its best and the new pink, Alexander Guttman, was held last week at $5 to $6 per dozen. The outlook for the mum in October is promising and great exhibitions are planned for this "queen of the autumn."

Carnations are rapidly improving and some fine long-stemmed Enchantress September 23 sold at $2 per hundred. There continues to arrive a majority of the short-stemmed ones, at 50 cents to $1 per hundred. Valley was selling September 23 at $4 for the best and lilies were down to $6 and under. The orchid supply is increasing and prices declining; gigas are down to 50 cents; cyps are arriving, as well as oncidiums. The prospect is for the usual abundance in October. From now Gilbert Josephson, of Cornell University. Dards decorated the house and church.

A. Kottmiller's new store now is complete and is one of the most attractive on Madison avenue.

Small & Sons also have completed their improvements and decorations and may well claim the handsomest store in this country, if not in the world.

Reed & Keller's new catalogue is ready for distribution. Mr. Reed's latest invention is a floral canopy—a neat, practical and convenient necessity for the decorative artist.

Lewis T. Rankin, of Westerly, R. I., is still missing.

A strike at L. B. Coddington's last week involved about fifty of the employees of this famous rose grower. The strike followed soon after Mr. Coddington had entertained his help at the annual banquet and outing. The men are all anxious to return, but a new force is rapidly being engaged. In the meantime the authorities are furnishing ample protection.

Jack Trepel, buyer for Joseph Trepel, of Brooklyn, back from his auto trip to San Francisco, next week will open his own retail store on Fulton street, Brooklyn. Mr. Trepel is popular in the trade and has the good wishes of a host of friends.

P. J. Smith's big store, at 131 West Twenty-eighth street, may safely be termed "the white house" of the famous wholesale street, now that the decorators have finished their improvements.

Lawrence Kervan, of the Kervan Co., has returned from his vacation at Atlantic City and John Kervan and family are enjoying a few weeks in the Adirondacks.

Percy W. Richter, manager of the United Cut Flower Co., at 111 West Twenty-eighth street, has added an auto to his other facilities.

Great improvements are being made at the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. New York headquarters, which Mr. Rigby says will give him much needed space for his rapidly increasing business.

J. J. Coan says he received $6 per dozen for Dinda's new pink chrysanthemum.

How Much are Dead Flowers Worth?

There is no market for them except the garbage can. And that means not only loss of sales and profits, but it represents money out, because you must pay for your stock whether you sell it or throw it away.

If you could realize on all the blossoms that now wither in stock and are discarded, think how much your profits would increase by stopping this loss. And at no additional overhead or expense.

You can do it with a

McCray Florists Refrigerator

The McCray patented system of refrigeration provides for a cool, even temperature and keeps your flowers fresh and salable, preventing loss from withered stock.

The McCray Florist Refrigerators come with plate glass doors and sides which show the flowers attractively. The different compartments vary in size to accommodate the various lengths of stems.

The woodwork of the McCray may be had in any finish to match your store's interior decoration. The linings may be had in either bevel plate mirror or white enamel, are handsome and easy to clean.

The Market.

Last week's business was not extra good, although there were a couple of busy days. An elaborate coming-out party was responsible for the sale of a large quantity of cut flowers, baskets and elaborate decorations, and about every florist in the city was called on for some kind of flowers. Cut stock has not been plentiful and the cool nights are keeping much of the outdoor stock back. This, however, is fast cleaning up, and it is a problem what can be done without it for the next two or three weeks, as greenhouse stock does not come along fast. Carnations are fairly good and are getting better each week, but they are still short-stemmed. The "blessing of the graves" was observed September 24 and thousands of asters of every grade were disposed of. Gladioli are becoming scarcer every day and are small, but they sell well. Dahlias were plentiful at the week end and moved well. Roses have been fine all the week and the daily shipments are pretty well cleaned up. Valley is in good condition and has sold a little better this week. Some fine Golden Glow and Smith mums are seen in the specimens of corn and onions grown by customers from his seed. He reports fairly good business for this time of year.

Chas. W. Curtis has a large house full of chrysanthemums, which look particularly healthy and are full of good, clean foliage. This is practically a new feature with Mr. Curtis, but he was quite successful in this line last year and has enlarged his mum space this season. His father has been quite unwell for the last two weeks, but is beginning to improve.

An interesting window display was seen in the store of H. E. Wilson last week. It was prettily arranged, with palms, ferns, etc., as a background, and a dining table was set with dishes and silverware, with a pretty centerpiece of pink roses, asters and maidenhair ferns. Individual favors of sweet alyssum and bachelor's buttons added to the effect.

A quantity of miniature asters, put up in small crocks, were seen in the store of George T. Boucher last week. As flowering plants are scarce, these served as good substitutes. Mr. Boucher's store force was kept fairly busy last week with a good quantity of funeral and wedding work.

George Cramer, who had an interesting collection of rock at the recent exposition and flower show, has disposed of it at a good figure.

J. B. Keller Sons had large vases of Michaelmas daisies, etc., in their window last week. These flowers, though not plentiful, are beautiful and are becoming more popular. H. J. H.

The Market.

Business was good last week, and the present week opens with an excellent call for flowers. Roses are more abundant, but prices continue to hold up well. American Beauties remain about the same. Russell is selling well; also Ophelia, Ward, Hadley, Miller and Stanley. Some nice Hoosier Beauty roses are coming in. This variety promises to become quite popular. Carnations are much more abundant and, while the majority are still quite short-stemmed, the quality is improving. Good whites, such as White Wonder and Matchless, have been selling well. Gladioli are selling much better, some reaching $6 per hundred. These flowers have made more satisfactory prices than a year ago.

Asters continue fairly abundant and prices hold up well. Lilies are good property and clean up readily. A good many Golden Glow chrysanthemums are arriving; also, smaller lots of October Frost. The call for these is improving. Lily of the valley, owing to its continued high prices, is not selling particularly well. Buyers refuse to use it in any considerable quantity at present prices. Cattleyas now are in better supply and a fair number of flowers of Dendrobium formosum and other orchids are obtainable.

In the way of miscellaneous flowers, bunches of the pretty blue-fringed gentians are popular. Some good dahlias are coming in, as well as good supplies of hennemannias, salpiglossis and other annuals. The call for asparagus is somewhat improved. There is somewhat more activity in the pot plant trade. Such subjects as crotons, dracaenas, ferns, caladiums and ericas are the leaders.

Various Notes.

Peter Hylen, of Randolph, has completed a bulb shed 20x70 and installed a large, new steam boiler. He has received sixty cases of Dutch bulbs and has more on the way. Gladioli have paid him well this season. He started 6,000 Panama in pots and then planted them outdoors; they brought splendid prices. He has practically all his houses filled with chrysanthemums at present. His earliest variety will be Robert Halliday. All stock here looks splendid.

October 19 will see the opening of the Florists' Bowling League season. Ten teams are included this season, viz.: Galvin's, Penn's, the Cooperative Flower Market, the Flower Exchange, the New England Supply Co., B. A. Snyder & Co., H. M. Robinson & Co., McAlpine & McDonald and the Waban Conservatories. The teams dropping out are Zinn's and the Boston Cut Flower Co. The new teams are Penn's, the a better batch of stevias than ever and carnations are looking well.

The trial of Albert J. Roper has been in progress over a week. So far the evidence presented by the prosecution has turned out favorable to the defendant in many ways.

John McFarland is bringing in splendid lily of the valley and giganteum lilies. He has fifty per cent more poinsettias than a year ago and they are looking remarkably well.

Wax Bros. have a fine display of dahlias almost filling one of their windows. In another window baskets of blue-fringed gentians and Ward roses were effective. Butterflies are also featured here. This firm has had numerous weddings of late, including a large military one at Portland, Me., Septem-

September 20. They had heavy funeral orders for the Greenwood funeral at Jamaica Plain and the Draper funeral at Readville, September 21.

N. F. Comley and John McFarland visited W. H. Elliott's Madbury establishment September 20, going over the road in Mr. Comley's touring car. The mammoth rose houses were found in splendid shape, Ophelia, Hadley, Ward, Stanley, Miller and the various Killarneys being especially fine.

William R. Nicholson is cutting some fine October Frost chrysanthemums. He has a big cut of pompons this season and his carnation houses never looked better.

The Budlong Rose Co. is not getting quite so many roses as a few weeks ago, but the quality remains good. Hoosier Beauty now is arriving nicely, as well as gardenias from the new season's crop.

Local bulb dealers are only receiving their main shipments of Dutch and French bulbs this week, a later date than usual. The demand is strong, as excellent prices for bulbous flowers are looked for the coming winter and spring.

There was an addition of seven new members at the last meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club. At the November meeting of the club John Davey, the well known tree expert, will give a stereopticon lecture entitled "Tree, Insect, Bird." Members desiring to join the landscape and floral art classes should notify the secretary at once.

Penn's windows are attractively arranged with vases and baskets of asters, boltonias, heleniums and other hardy perennials, in addition to chrysanthemums, lilies, roses and other indoor stock. The staff here has been exceptionally busy with wedding and funeral orders of late. Bride's bouquets of

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Finlayson are enjoying their vacation at Washington, D. C.

Some of the best Golden Glow mums I have seen this season came from Axel Magnuson, of Manchester, Mass.

John W. Foote now is getting a fine cut of white bouvardias, in addition to Pink Delight and Matchless carnations.

Displays of nymphæas, dahlias and hardy annuals are features with the Houghton-Gorney Co. at present.

Thomas Capers, of Wellesley Hills, has a splendid lot of carnations this season. His leaders are Alice, Benora, Beacon and White Wonder.

William R. Morris now is getting an average of 5,000 roses daily. He is cutting Killarney, White Killarney and Richmond, but Ward and Ophelia also are showing up well.

J. R. Comley and W. N. Craig judged the flower and grange displays at the Essex Agricultural Society's fair at Topsfield, Mass., September 19.

The Albert Roper estate, of Tewksbury, is sending in some extra fine carnations to George Marshall. The fine, new rose-pink seedling, Albert Roper, looks well, as do Grace, Commonwealth and other novelties.

William R. Thornhill is enjoying a vacation at St. John, N. B.

W. N. C.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

The St. Louis wholesale market showed more activity last week. The cool weather has stimulated business and window displays of cut flowers are seen where only plants were used during the last few months. Cut stock shows great improvement in all items, especially roses. Some extra good Russell, Ward and Ophelia roses are seen daily, and they meet with a good demand. Killarney and White Killarney have the call, while reds do not sell so well. There also is a good supply of short Beauties.

Carnations are improving daily in length of stem and size of flower. The demand for these was strong throughout the week. Asters have shortened up considerably of late and shipments from the north are light. These clean up daily. Valley has been quite scarce and will continue so this season.

Easter lily receipts have shortened of late. Chrysanthemums as yet have not arrived in any marked degree. A few Golden Glow and Smith's Advance mums are arriving, but the time is not far off when great numbers will arrive in this market. In greens smilax continues scarce, but asparagus is plentiful; also other greens.

its regular meeting September 18, at the Mission Inn Garden. President Charles Young presided over the meeting, which was the best attended the association has had for many months, and matters of great importance were discussed. The membership committee did good work last month and almost doubled the membership. The association has filed articles of incorporation with the secretary of state. Secretary Weber says that retailers throughout the city have taken much interest of late in the affairs of the association, and the officers expect that the membership will reach seventy-five by the first of the year. Advertising of special holidays was taken up and fully discussed and a committee appointed to bring in a report on the best ways to advertise these days and the flowers. An invitation was accepted from the St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co. to attend its big opening in a body, October 12. The next meeting takes place October 16.

The Bentzen Floral Co. won the silver cup for the best decorated automobile at the Cherokee carnival, September 17. Harry Schaad came in second. This is the second time this year the Bentzen Floral Co. has won first prize for the best decorated automobile.

The stork paid a visit to the home of Joseph J. Windler August 17 and left an 8-pound baby girl. Mr. Windler has been handing out good cigars in the wholesale district.

Fred C. Weber introduced his brother-in-law, Arthur Beyer, in the wholesale district last week. Mr. Beyer now is in the employ of F. C. Weber and will be the buyer for this concern in the future.

Paddy Patton, of the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., took in the Springfield state fair last week and got back safe and sound. He says he found out that toadstools have no frog legs, and that is as far as the story goes.

Edward Kalisch, of the Kalisch Bros. Floral Co., returned from his annual fishing trip last week. Mr. Kalisch says that the country place is being planted to bulbs and hardy perennials, for next spring's cut Albert Hey, traveler for the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, was here last week introducing John Then's new red carnation, Thenanthos.

Pierre Schneider, who recently leased the Cannon Floral Co. greenhouse range, expects to produce a fine cut of carnations, sweet peas and mums. Mr. Schneider's stock always is classed with the fancies in this market.

L. H. Archias, president of the Archias Floral Co., of Sedalia, Mo., is taking great interest in the Missouri state fair. Mr. Archias hopes to meet many of the state's florists at the fair.

James Gurney, head of Tower Grove park, has lights at the big pond from 8 to 9 o'clock for the benefit of the many visitors who wish to view the night-blooming lilies. Secretary C. E. Hutchings says that the illumination has proved popular and that it will be continued while the weather permits.

Secretary Deutschmann, of the County Growers' Association, says he is looking for a large attendance at the meeting of the association next week, as matters of great importance are coming up for discussion.

John Held, on Tennessee avenue, is building an addition to one of his houses, which will be completed this week. He will build two houses next spring. Mr. Held will, as usual, have a fine lot of cut and pot plants in mums.

Mrs. F. W. Bruenig has purchased a touring car, in which she and her two daughters make frequent trips to Columbia, Ill., where they have a large range of glass.

W. W. Ohlweiler, secretary of the St. Louis Flower Show Association, will return this week from his eastern trip and work will then begin on the preliminary list for the spring flower show, which will be held at Armory hall in March, 1917. All the committees are working hard and a successful show is assured.

Paul Scheider, of Clayton, as usual, will have a large cut of chrysanthemums, sweet peas and carnations the coming season.

The St. Louis Seed Co. received by steamer Empress, of Asia, 183 mats of Chinese lily bulbs; by the steamer Noordam, forty-six cases of Dutch bulbs;
by the steamer Amstelyk, seven cases of Dutch bulbs. This concern has an attractive display of all varieties of bulbs in the big show window.

The St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower
Co. opened its doors for business Monday, September 25, and it made quite a hit with the retailers who looked it over Saturday and Sunday. The first floor is devoted to cut flowers and supplies. On the second floor the colors are forest green and buff. The new company is managed by David Scott Geddis and J. J. Beneke, who are well known to the trade. J. J. B.

INDIANAPOLIS.

The Market.

Thus far September business has greatly surpassed that of September, 1915. Last week was an exceptionally good one; there was much funeral work and there were many bouquet orders for sick rooms. It also seems to have been decoration week for this city, as many of the large stores had their fall openings. Many stores make these openings a feature, using cut flowers as well as decorative plants.

The demand for cut flowers is still great, with the supply short. Roses seem to be in the lead, as they are becoming more plentiful, with the stock good and prices moderate. Valley still is high, but there is more movement.
Cattleya labiata is available at $6 per dozen. Lilies of all varieties are hard to obtain. More carnations of better quality are beginning to appear, the prices ranging from $1.50 to $2 per hundred. Chrysanthemums are coming in more satisfactorily, in white and yellow, and bring good prices. Dahlias and asters are practically out of the market; a few gladioli are still to be seen. Cosmos lingers on, but it is in little demand, the indoor stock taking the lead.

Various Notes.

Indianapolis was visited last week by D. E. Weller, Henry C. Kraft and Robert H. Green, of Louisville, Ky.

Pahud's new roadster was stolen from in front of the store September 18. A liberal reward has been offered for its return, but as yet nothing has been heard.

L. Elder, of Hartje & Elder, was accidentally rendered unconscious while doing some steam-fitting in his new greenhouse. He is slowly recovering.

T. J. Behrens, formerly of the George Wittbold Co., of Chicago, has accepted a position as assistant manager of the Hillsdale Landscape Co.

Robert Ellis, manager of the Bertermann Bros. Co. Cumberland range, has purchased a pleasure car.

Isaac Bayersdorfer, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, and Fred Longren, visited the trade this week.

Martin Brandlein has replaced an old greenhouse with a new one, 22x120.

J. Steddum, of the Westview Greenhouse Co., of Knightstown, Ind., was in the city last week to find a market for his large crop of chrysanthemums, which soon will be on.

Robert Fohl is the proud father of a 12½-pound baby girl.

The Bertermann Bros. Co. has erected a greenhouse 30x225 and planted it to chrysanthemums.

The greenhouses of Mrs. Boney, which formerly were used for vegetables, now are planted to chrysanthemums, carnations and sweet peas. Charles Boney, recently with H. H. Rieman, will manage the range for his mother.

The Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association will meet at the La Salle hotel, Chicago, October 11 and 12. A delegation of about six members will represent Indianapolis.

John Rieman's new display window has a great advantage in that it can be viewed from six corners. This was an important factor in its favor last week when five suffragettes, the reception committee for Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes, were attracted and purchased five dozen of Mr. Rieman's finest roses to present to Mrs. Hughes.

Robert Glaubke has withdrawn from the firm of A. Glaubke & Son and is selling the Smith "Form-a-Truck."

E. H. Ralston, with W. W. Coles, of Kokomo, Ind., visited the retail stores this week.

Ira Clark, of Greensburg, Ind., is for preparedness—he already has been in the city looking after Christmas stock.

The E. G. Hill Co. has been receiving some fine chrysanthemums, Golden Glow and Early Frost, from its Richmond range.

The store of Lester F. Benson has been taken over by R. D. Oilar, who recently was with the Oilar Bros. Furniture Co. The business will be known as the Benson-Oilar Co. and will be managed by Frank W. Ball, formerly with the Benson Floral Co.

Seed Trade NewsAMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich.;
Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

MEMBERS of the American seed trade Association last week received from Secretary Kendel the annual volume containing the report of the proceedings of the June convention.

IN spite of the unusually large imports of French bulbs, already exceeding last year by twenty-five per cent, there is a large unsatisfied demand. Perhaps, however, this will disappear with the distribution of the bulbs, which has been slower than usual this year.

Now is the time to remind the catalogue writer that the American Seed Trade Association, at its June meeting in Chicago, took action urging every seedsman to employ the original disclaimer without modification, believing that every failure to use it, and each change in phraseology, weakens the force of established trade custom and is inimical to the welfare of each individual seed dealer.

LEGISLATING A GUARANTEE?

The seed trade will do well to watch the progress of "A bill to prohibit the manufacture, sale, or transportation in interstate commerce, of misbranded articles, to regulate the traffic therein, and for other purposes." This was introduced in the Sixty-fourth Congress as H. R. 10496. It was reported and was on the House calendar at the adjournment of Congress, but it never passed the House. No doubt it will come up again at the next session of Congress. Although not drawn to cover the misbranding of seeds, no doubt the provisions of the bill, should it become a law, could be construed as applying to this trade. A paragraph of special significance is that which reads: "Where such articles, when so purchased by the dealer, are so branded or labeled as to indicate or purport that same are not misbranded within the meaning of this act, and the dealer in good faith relies on such branding, or labeling, same shall be construed in law as a guaranty to him."

THEY ARE MOBILIZING.

The S. S. Noordam, which arrived at New York September 18, brought a trio of Dutch bulb travelers, the advance guard of the army now mobilizing for the advance on America via Rotterdam.

There now are some ten Holland bulb exporting concerns that have permanent representation in America. In the course of time some of these will come to be recognized as American houses, but at present their travelers class with the itinerants who spend only three or four months of each year canvassing the trade in this country.

The main army of Dutch bulb salesmen now mobilizing will arrive in this country toward the close of October. During November, December and January it will be at its full strength; during February the retreat will begin.

The annual invasion now brings to

THE NUISANCE

—Yes, he tried to tear up all the friendships he knew existed for me; he fixed up the worst kind of stories about my friends to me, and told me of dreadful things they were saying of me. Then I found he was telling them how I was talking of them—the vilest kind of stories. A real, self-respecting man would be too big in principle to talk on such subjects, even if they were true. I finally demanded an explanation from all concerned. Holy Moses—such fights! Well, I nearly put on boxing gloves and went after them. On investigation I found there was absolutely no truth in the stories of either my friends or myself, and his talk was based on his jealousy, and in his rage for my ignoring him he wanted revenge. I never knew a man could stoop so low, to such contemptible and unprincipled tricks, as this man did. It's a shame he can be classed as a man, but, thank heaven! I have learned my friends are men—real, regular, live men—and certainly not in his class.

You see how such undesirable characters as The Nuisance try to force their obnoxious and disgusting selves, but you should have seen the "Hero" the day I had him under arrest—he looked like a

MOTT-LY GLEANINGS.

C. M. Isbell & Co., of Jackson, Mich., report their bean crop about a fifty per cent average. "We are fortunate in having a heavy clover yield," observed Manager A. H. Luck.

Harry E. Saier, of Lansing, Mich., has moved into a more commodious store at 109 East Ottawa street, in which he has installed a full set of Walker seed fixtures. Thirty acres—part of the old homestead—situated a short distance from the city, will be used as trial grounds and nursery. Two greenhouses and a service building will be built, the nucleus for a larger range calculated to supply the store with plants and cut flowers.

The Jones Seed Co., of Grand Rapids, Mich., felt the effect of the wet spring on the counter trade. In discussing the bean question L. F. Jones said the crop in Japan is large and this probably will result in heavy importations if the price lately decided on for home-grown stock is upheld. A sample of Sudan grass from a crop cut August 15, from seed sown June 15, easily places this succulent in the front rank of milk-producing grasses.

The A. J. Brown Seed Co., also of Grand Rapids, reports its usual good run of business. A new variety of sweet clover called White Blossom, of of land near the city. Manager H. E. Chamberlain says that the call for grass seed is unprecedented. As Bent and Fescue grasses are imported and almost unobtainable, native grasses must suffice for the present.

The American Seed Co. and D. M. Ferry & Co., of Detroit, are making extensive additions to their warehouse capacities to take care of the wholesale trade. The retail stores are doing a large business.

The Michigan Bean Growers' Association, in conjunction with the Michigan Bean Jobbers' Association, has practically decided upon a price of $5 per bushel for beans of October harvest, with an additional 10 or 15 cents per bushel for storage and handling. The crop is expected to yield one-half of the normal, while returns from California and Colorado show about the same proportion—a total crop of 9,000,000, compared with 12,000,000 last year.

The Page-Phillips Seed Co., of Toledo, O., reports large receipts of clover and timothy of good average quality. Prices, especially of timothy, show a downward tendency and the present should be a favorable time to purchase.

The W. T. Phillips Seed & Implement Co., of Toledo, fills in the dull time by handling large lots of fruit baskets, at a good profit. W. M.

CLOVER FOR SEED.

According to the Bureau of Crop Estimates of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, the acreage of clover for seed increased this year over last nine and one-tenth per cent, equal or greater acreages being reported in all states except New York, in which it suffered a reduction to ninety-seven from drought, and Wisconsin and Minnesota, in which it fell to ninety and ninety-five per cent of last year from the effects of winterkill, drought and the pasturing of the clover meadows. Marked increases are shown in all other important clover seed states of the north central group, ranging from 105 in Iowa to 125 in Michigan and Nebraska.

The condition of the crop is reported at eighty-four and one-tenth per cent of a normal, which is three and eight-tenths higher than last year and four and eight-tenths above the 10-year average, the condition being between eighty and ninety per cent in all important clover seed states. Oregon re-

DUTCH BULB IMPORTS LARGE.

The two Rotterdam steamers that docked at New York September 18 discharged more than 16,000 cases of Dutch bulbs, according to the manifests on file at the New York customhouse, the total for the two boats being almost four times as large as all previous shipments combined. The manifest of one of the vessels showed that its entire cargo was composed of Dutch bulbs. The aggregate of all the shipments received to date this year at New York now is about equal to the total of the shipments received up to the corresponding date last year. The following were consignees of last week's shipments:

The Market.

The weather continues pleasant, but the nights are cooler and everything seems to indicate that it will not be long before frost puts an end to stock growing outdoors. Although no one is rushed or overworked, business cannot be complained of.

Zvolanek's Well-known Winter-fl'ring Orchid Sweet Pea Seeds in original packages, at his prices. We handle all of his varieties, including novelties introduced this year for the first time, and give the following list of the best of those already introduced:

	1 Oz.	4 Oz.	1 Lb.
Mrs. A. A. Skach, widely known shell-pink.....	$1.00	$3.50	$12.00
Mrs. Joseph Manda, a shade lighter.....	1.25	4.00	14.00
Mrs. M. Spanolin, purest white.....	1.25	4.00	14.00
Venus, white ground, edges pink-blushed.....	1.50	5.00	15.00

Dahlias are arriving in large quantities and the quality was never better. If it were not for these, flowers would be rather scarce, as the supply of roses, carnations, etc., is rather short. The earlier varieties of chrysanthemums will begin to come along in ten days or two weeks.

Various Notes.

Having no business of special importance to transact, the September meeting of the Knoxville Florists' Society was omitted.

Karl P. Baum, president of the Tennessee State Florists' Association, called a meeting of the officers of the association at Nashville, September 21. The object of this meeting was to make arrangements and form plans for the annual meeting and flower show, which will be held at Nashville the last week of January, 1917. He reports seeing some fine carnations and roses in the various greenhouses at Nashville.

A. H. Dailey has remodeled the interior of his store and added greatly to its attractiveness.

Charles L. Baum, Roy Baum, Floyd Baum and Gruder Chesney took a trip to Bristol, Tenn., recently, going by way of Greeneville and Johnson City. They visited the Greeneville Floral Co., of Greeneville; Gunnar Teilmann, of Johnson City, and the Bristol Floral Co., of Bristol. The trip was made in

Mr. Baum's new car. Mr. Baum is cutting quite a number of cattleyas, which are bringing good prices. There evidently is a scarcity of these, as they bring $1 each on the Chicago wholesale market, compared with 35c each during the same period of last year.

The C. W. Crouch Co. is looking forward to a much busier fall season, owing to the large number of prominent weddings that will take place in the near future.
 R. E. M.

ROCHESTER, N. H.

The display in the floral court at the Rochester, N. H., fair, which was held September 19 to 22, was better than ever before. The dahlia specialists, including George H. Walker, of Dighton, Mass.; J. K. Alexander and W. P. Lothrop, East Bridgewater, Mass., and Mrs. H. M. Walker, Kittery Point, Me., made extensive displays. H. E. Meader, of Dover, N. H., had the finest gladiolus display. In his collection were some good seedlings. W. P. Lothrop and J. K. Alexander also made large gladiolus exhibits. H. E. Meader won in the rose, carnation, basket and wreath classes. Perfect weather prevailed throughout the fair and attendance records were broken. W. N. Craig, of Brookline, Mass., was judge of the floral court.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Mount Angel, Ore.—Mrs. S. C. Cannon, proprietress of the Mount Angel Floral Co., who has been ill for a long time, has decided to sell or rent her establishment and retire from the business.

Santa Cruz, Cal.—R. O. Lincoln, of the Los Robles Nursery & Garden, says the season has been a most successful one, the supply of Freesia Purity bulbs being sold out for this year. "Our ads in The Review," he says, "brought splendid results."

BELLINGHAM, WASH.

L. G. Barker, formerly of G. G. Barker & Son, has accepted a position with Horst's Floral Shop.

George G. Kelly, of Seattle, has resumed his duties at Horst's Floral Shop, after having spent some time in travel.

C. A. Shaw has directed all his attention to wholesaling, as he has retired from the retail trade.

John MacRae Smith has built an extension to his greenhouse, which he will use for potted plants and greens. This addition makes the greenhouse one of the largest in the northwest.

There has been plenty of stock and trade has been good during the last two weeks. Garden mums are making their appearance. Indoor-grown mums are looking exceptionally well and from all indications there will be a splendid cut this season.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

Funeral work was not so plentiful last week and this led to a week of dull business. The better quality mums now are in and so far the demand has been good. Crocker, the early yellow, is a fine variety and sells well, but a great many of the later varieties, only half-grown, are in the market, and these hang fire. The late dahlias are exceedingly fine for window displays and make an elegant show, but few are sold. Roses are improving; some of the flowers from the young stock are good in color, though, of course, the stems are a little short. Gladioli still are in the ring and carnations are fine. Centaureas are almost over; violets are coming in better and there is a fair supply of baby roses, orchids and valley. In pot plants, cyclamens, Chatelaine begonias and ferns are being shown and are good for the season. Cut cyclamen blooms sell freely.

Various Notes.

R. W. Gesler, formerly of Galesburg, Ill., has bought the business of L. B. Hill, of Alhambra. Mrs. Gesler is helping out in the business. Mr. and Mrs. Hill have gone east.

George F. Otto, the well-known florist and nurseryman of San Diego, was a visitor last week.

J. Fincken, of Staiger & Fincken, stole a march on his friends the other day and returned a few days later with his bride.

Horace Cheeseman, representing

Ralph M. Ward & Co., New York, called on the trade last week. He has been on a triumphal march through the south and west ever since the Houston convention. He left for San Francisco from here.

A. W. Pooley, florist and nurseryman of Pomona, was a visitor last week.

The chrysanthemums at the store of the California Cut Flower & Evergreen Co. are superb, and J. Roller says he is more than satisfied with the way orders are coming in. By the time these notes appear Bonnaffons will be in. The plants in the growing quarters certainly look well.

At Wolfskills' & Morris Goldenson's store funeral work keeps up well.

Jack d'Ortignac says that the Chatelaine begonias from the Superior Nursery Co. are the best sellers in plants just now.

D. Stathatos, of the Broadway Florists, is well pleased with the way business is coming in.

A new store room and basement have been leased by the California Cut Flower & Evergreen Co., at 435 West Seventh street. The old location at South Broadway will be retained.

Howard & Smith announce a dahlia show, this being their second. Last year a magnificent show was held; many fine varieties grown at the Montebello nursery were exhibited and this year the flowers are in even better condition.

CAN YOU USE THESE PLANTS IN YOUR BUSINESS?

Streptosolen Jamesonii, elegant 2-inch stock, $2.00 per 100.
Romneya Coulteri (Matilija poppy). California's grandest flower; too well known to need description. Grand plants in 6-inch pots, 2 feet high and bushy, 30c each; $3.00 per dozen. Never before offered at such a price.
Creeping Coleus. Also grand for baskets or wall pockets, 2-inch pot stock, $3.00 per 100; larger, $5.00 per 100.
Begonia Chatelaine, 2-inch, $4.00 per 100.
Begonia Luminosa, Vernon and Prima Donna, strong transplanted stock, $1.50 per 100.

owing to the cool weather. The success of the new rose, Los Angeles, has been so great locally that the firm has advanced the price.

H. W. Turner has recovered from his recent illness and is back on the job, though still showing the effects.

H. R. Richards.

SPOKANE, WASH.The Market.

Although several frosts have come and gone, they have been neither severe nor general enough to influence trade to any great extent. Outdoor stock, such as asters, gladioli, dahlias, daisies, delphiniums and gaillardias, are still arriving of good quality and apparently in sufficient quantities. Retail trade in general is quiet, funeral pieces taking most of the flowers.

A week of bright, warm weather, following a cool and rainy period, has brought into bloom a large quantity of roses, for which it is hard to find profitable use. Mums are to be had in extra good quality, but there is practically no demand for them as yet.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Olsson took an auto trip down through Colfax, Wash., and Lewiston, Idaho, in which they combined business with pleasure. They visited the florists at these and other points in Washington and Idaho, spending a week on the trip.

A. J. Burt is planning to redecorate his store this fall and probably will make several alterations. He has completed an addition to his range on Augusta avenue, consisting of one house 25x105, which is to be devoted to pot plants. Will Edwards, in charge of the greenhouses, has been turning out some fine potted stock since he got on the job a year ago.

Adolph Donart is growing roses for the first time at his range at Coeur d'Alene, Idaho. That he will be successful is assured by the quality of stock he is sending to the Spokane market. A. J. Burt is handling the bulk of the cut.

Bernson & Halle are cutting about the best carnations in this section, the blooms being unusually good for this early in the season. L. B. H.

ROMNEYA COULTERI (MATILJA POPPY)

The difficulty in raising this grand plant from untreated seed is well known. For many years George Southard, of Redlands, has treated his seed and can absolutely guarantee at least 90 per cent germination. The Southard process consists of removing the glutinous seal with which this seed is coated in the natural condition so that instead of waiting two or three years, as in the past, growers of this noble plant can obtain seedlings in two months. The genuine treated seed can only be obtained from us direct, and the price to the trade is:

35c per packet of 1000 seeds

$3.50 per dozen packets

SAN FRANCISCO.The Market.

Florists here are encouraged by the way fall business is opening up. Most of the downtown stores were well satisfied with summer trade, and with increased sales during the remainder of the year the total volume of business will compare favorably with last year's record, which was particularly good on account of the exposition. Stock is gradually shifting from the great quantities of outdoor summer varieties of flowers to the usual fall offerings. There still is a fair supply of marigolds, marguerites and scabiosas, but most of these are inferior. Asters are trashy and the quantity is falling off rapidly. Some nice zinnias continue to arrive and they clean up readily. The gladi-
